B.C. Prison Overhaul Planned

Anticipating crime will double in B.C. in the next eight years, Attorney-General Alex Macdonald today announced reorganization of the provincial prison system.

Correctional services will become a division within the attorney-general's department, headed by a new assistant deputy minister.

★

Edgar Epp, former warden of the Haney correctional institution, and corrently employed by the Ontario government, was named to the post.

Headquarters of correctional services will be moved from Vancouver to Victoria.

Selwyn Roxborough-Smith, who is now B.C.'s director of corrections, was appointed full-time chairman of the provincial parole board.

MacDonald said negotiations are under way with the federal solicitor-general's department to explore the possibility of the provincial parole board taking over some of the case load of the National Parole Board where British Columbians are involved. A conference will be held in September when Macdonald will discuss the matter with Solicitor General Warren Allmand.

A master planning unit will be established to co-ordinate and project crime and penal research, Macdonald said. The unit will be headed by Malcolm Matheson, now deputy director of corrections.

Matheson is chairman of the three-man Task Force on Correctional Services and Facilities, appointed by the attorney-general last December, whose report was released today. Reorganization of the prison system and its administration were among recommendations of the task force.

Its report noted that Criminal Code offences doubled in the eight years between 1962 and 1970 and forecast a similar increase in the next eight years. B.C. has a significantly higher over-all crime rate than the national average the report said.

Macdonald said the report showed "a rather frightening picture" and the government is seeking "greater citizen input than we have ever had before" to meet the rapid increase in crime.

He said crime is growing because of the province's population growth and because of continued problems of drugs and alcohol use. Fifty to 70 per cent of persons presently in provincial jails suffer "some sort of alcohol problems," he said.

Macdonald said doing away with Wilkinson Road Jail is not a major priority.

He said Oakalla Prison in Burnaby is a "more urgent concern."

"We look to its ultimate abolition as a unit," he said.

The Wilkinson Road Jail — the official name is the Southern Vancouver Island Regional Correctional Centre — is not as old, Macdonald noted, and "we don't regard it with the same urgency."

TRACK, FIELD RECORDS IN DANGER

National age-class records will be in danger at Centennial Stadium Saturday and Sunday when some of the brightest young stars on the track and field horizon go gunning for medals in the annual Victoria Y-Times meet.

More than 900 athletes, including a dozen Vancouver Island aces selected to represent the province in the Canada Summer Games, will be competing in the numerous events, which range from tyke to junior divisions with a few open contests.

Competition starts at 9:15 a.m. Saturday and continues through the afternoon. It resumes Sunday at 10 a.m. and is expected to conclude about 3:30 p.m. (See story on Page 13).

Big 2 Vow Peace

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — President Nixon and Soviet Leader Leonid Brezhnev, already planning another summit meeting next year, formally pledged today to avoid military confrontations and threats of force that might trigger nuclear war.

The vows were contained in a policy declaration which also said the leaders of the two superpowers would "immediately enter into urgent consultations with each other" if a nuclear conflict threatened.

Shortly before Nixon and Brezhnev signed the agreement in the East Room of the White House, Treasury Secretary George Shultz and Soviet Trade Minister Nikolai Patolichev met across Pennsylvania Avenue in Blair House to initial another pact intended to strengthen commerce between the United States and the Soviet Union. About 50 captains of U.S. industry were present at the signing.

The two latest accords brought to eight the number reached since the start of the summit talks Monday. They were signed a few hours before Nixon and Brezhnev were to depart aboard the president's jetliner for San Clemente, Calif., where they planned to conclude their conferences over the weekend.

The decision by the two leaders to hold a third summit meeting in as many years was announced Thursday night at a lavish banquet in the Soviet Embassy.

Their promises to meet again in Moscow next year were accompanied by champagne toasts. The jovial atmosphere reflected the signing earlier in the day of pacts intended to accelerate negotiations to limit and reduce offensive nuclear weapons and exchange research on peaceful uses of nuclear energy.

Today's promises to refrain from military confrontations went into effect immediately upon signing of the policy declaration.

NO, IT'S NOT a new type of protest sign — it's a potential pie. Parole Changes Sought

OTTAWA (CP) — National parole board reorganization, including a decentralized system of local and regional boards, is recommended in the prison study conducted after last year's Kingston penitentiary riots.

The report was tabled in the Commons today by Solicitor-General Warren Allmand.

The Kingston riots left two prisoners dead and 12 injured. The penitentiary was scheduled to be vacated when the riots started.

Justice James K. Hugessen of the Quebec Superior Court headed the four-member study group which recommends replacing the nine-member parole board with five regional boards plus local boards closer to federal and provincial prison institutions.

Criteria for granting parole, the conditions and safeguards should be spelled out in federal legislation, the report says.

The study was ordered in June, 1972, by former Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer. The report was made last Nov. 30 but was not made public then.

BANKS 'DELIVER CANADA'

OTTAWA (CP) — Mel Hurtig, chairman of the Committee for an Independent Canada, used the very words of two Canadian banks Thursday to back up his contention that they are helping increase foreign ownership. (See also Page 3.)

During remarks before the Commons finance committee, Hurtig displayed a November New York newspaper advertisement by the Royal Bank of Canada reading, "We deliver Canada."

"We're happy to be accused of un-Canadian activities," read part of a January Paris newspaper advertisement by the Toronto-Dominion Bank.

Hurtig said Canadian banks are often more willing to finance foreign-owned corporations in Canada and abroad than they are to finance Canadian enterprises.

"All they care about is safe investment," he said in an interview later.

Stop All Hanging, Grits Urge

By IAIN HUNTER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The minority Liberal government changed its position on capital punishment Thursday, proposing total abolition of the death penalty.

Solicitor-General Warren Allmand, in a surprise move, recommended to a Commons committee that the capital punishment bill now before parliament be amended to remove the death penalty for all crimes without any time limitation.

The bill as originally presented would amend the Criminal Code to extend for another five years the trial period for abolition of the death penalty for all crimes but the murder of policemen and prison guards.

Allmand's amendments to remove the exception to abolition and the five-year time limit was coupled with other changes to extend the time which convicted murderers must spend in prison before being eligible for parole.

Most committee members Thursday appeared to support the new total abolitionist stance of the government, but two Ontario Conservatives criticized the move.

"What this means is that the bill is being completely scrapped and we are now being asked to deal with total abolition," said Tom Cossitt (PC—Leeds).

"I must say the suggested amendments leave me a little bit breathless," remarked Allan Lawrence (PC—Northumberland-Durham).

"There was no hint in the House that the government had anything like this in mind."

Lawrence suggested that the solicitor-general's proposals were out of order since they deviated from the principle of the bill to extend the partial ban trial period.

"I suspect the government is trying to do in committee

SKYLAB TEAM HOME SAFE

Times News Services

ABOARD TICONDEROGA — Skylab's astronauts came home safely from man's longest space journey today and shunned stretchers to walk unsteadily across the deck of this United States Navy recovery carrier.

The wobbly 60 steps from the Apollo ferry ship to a medical laboratory indicated Charles Conrad, Dr. Joseph Kerwin and Paul Weitz had suffered some effects from a record four weeks' exposure to space weightlessness in earth orbit.

Doctors, not knowing how they might react to earth's gravity after their long weightless exposure, were prepared to lift them out on litters.

Kerwin and Weitz reported some dizziness after splashdown and Kerwin inflated a pair of pressure pants to keep his blood pressure from dropping to the point where he might faint. This temporary effect was expected because of the tendency of astronauts' blood to pool in their legs, away from the brain, as a result of heart laziness induced by long exposure to the lack of gravity.

This time it was a faulty freezing system that began acting up just as they were ready to come home.

Even without the system, two other eight-week missions aboard the spaceship aren't expected to be seriously affected.

Japanese Takeover Halt Demanded

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

The B.C. government is demanding that Ottawa stop the sale of a Prince Rupert fish packing company to a Japanese firm.

Highways Ministers Graham Lea and Minister Without Portfolio Frank Calder said today they have information that Cassiar Packing Co. Ltd. has been sold to a Marubeni Corp. of Japan.

In a telegram sent Thursday to Federal Fisheries Minister Jack Davis, the two ministers said:

"We ask that you intervene to stop the sale of this Canadian fishing company, if the transaction has not been completed and if the sale has been consummated, we ask that you retroactively stop the sale."

The provincial government will buy the fish packing company, Lea said, if the federal government stops the sale.

"We feel that whatever the price is that it can't be too large to save a Canadian industry for Canadians," he said.

Cassiar Packing, situated about 15 miles east of Prince Rupert, is owned by three holding companies — Georgia Packing Co., MacMillan Enterprises Ltd., and Bellmac Enterprises Ltd.

The ministers, who represent Prince Rupert and Atlin constituencies, say the Japanese firm has bought 75 per cent of the shares in the holding companies in the sale negotiated March 15.

Calder said he learned of the sale in talks with Ottawa fisheries department officials.

Lea said he met with Davis

DUAL DAYLIGHT TIME EYED IN CALIFORNIA

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Legislation giving Californians an extra hour of sunshine during summer evenings has cleared the assembly.

The bill by Assemblyman Bob Wilson won approval Thursday on a 41-28 vote and was sent to the senate.

It would require clocks to be set ahead two hours instead of one during the daylight savings months of June, July, August and September. The current one-hour daylight savings time period would apply to May and October.

Wilson said his "sunshine act" would reduce crime and traffic accidents because of fewer nighttime hours and lower electrical usuage because of better use of morning daylight hours.

But Assemblyman Robert Badham warned that parents would have trouble getting their children to bed on time due to the extra sunshine time.

He said "beleagured parents" would be saddled with the antics of their "cheery little children running around the house until after 10 p.m."

U.S. POLICY 'CLARIFIED'

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States government announced today a "clarified" policy for crude-oil imports from Canada, designed to provide Ottawa with guidelines for allocating Canadian oil to U.S. customers and to prevent American demand from swamping Canada's supplies.

A knowledgeable treasury department source said the clarification issued today were the result of consultations between Canadian and U.S. authorities designed to help Ottawa adjust its oil exports to new American policies proclaimed by Nixon last April 18.

Jet Explodes During Fueling

Times News Services

TORONTO — An Air Canada DC-8 was destroyed by fire and a series of explosions at Toronto International Airport Thursday, only minutes before 120 passengers were to board it for a flight to Europe.

An airline spokesman said it was not known what led to the explosions, but he noted "there was a report of a fire in one of the engines, or under the wing at the time of refueling."

Police and airline investigators have ruled out any possibility of sabotage.

Twenty flights were delayed and eight cancelled because of the fire.

At Terminal 1, across the ramp from the burning jet, about 1,000 people looked on as flames shot 100 feet into the air.

A spokesman for Air Canada said the aircraft, which was purchased for $8 million in October, 1968, was "a total write-off. Only a shell of the plane now remains."

10 BUSES ORDERED FOR CITY

Ten new 35-foot buses have been ordered for Victoria from General Motors at a price of $440,013 by the provincial government.

General Motors was the higher of two bidders for the contract, Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer said, but GM got the sale because of the availability of GM parts in Victoria.

The government expects delivery in November.

The other bidder was Western Flyer of Winnipeg.

Qualicum Beach Swimming Curb

The posting of the 200 feet of waterfront at the mouth of a small creek came as a surprise to residents of this resort community.

Provincial health officer Dr. Peter Reynolds of Nanaimo said the move was taken because of the high fecal count.

He said the problem is caused mainly by about 25 stores discharging human waste down a storm drain which empties into the creek.

The creek winds through the golf course and empties into the sea.

He said tests showed that even the government liquor store contributed to the pollution problem.

The stores, he said, have not the space to treat the sewage through tile fields.

"The coliform count is exceptionally high," he said. "We had to take steps to protect public health."

Earlier this year, Qualicum residents turned down a referendum for construction of a sewage system.

Harry Klassen, chief of the industrial section of the Pollution Control Branch, said most harbor waters on eastern Vancouver Island are contaminated by heavy concentrations of industrial waste.

"But we are making some progress," he said. "Industries have applications before the branch for permission to upgrade methods of discharging waste."

The Qualicum warning comes hard on the heels of a provincial order closing hundreds of miles of Island beaches to oyster picking and clam digging because of human and industrial pollution.

Also, the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health said the same 16 areas closed to swimming last year are again affected this year.

UN ADMITS 2 GERMANYS

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — The Security Council agreed unanimously today to the admission of the two German states to the United Nations at the General Assembly session which opens Sept. 18.

West Germany will be among the biggest contributors to the UN budget. Its assessment is expected to be about 6.8 per cent, higher than the assessments of France or Britain, which are permanent members of the Council.

East Germany's assessment is expected to be about 1.5 per cent, also higher than those of most of the member states.

In East Germany's case, admission will not be unanimous. Israel has served notice it will oppose East German entry on the grounds that state has declined to accept any obligation to compensate for the millions of Jews murdered during the Nazi period and has become the most outspoken anti-Israeli member of the Soviet bloc.

Riot Toll: 76 Police

PARIS (UPI) — Riot police battled thousands of crash-helmeted leftist students Thursday night in the 93rd and most violent mass demonstration in Paris this year.

Authorities said at least 76 policemen were injured.

Students armed with iron bars and fossing Molotov cocktails fought for hours in the Latin Quarter with police who retaliated with tear gas volleys and club-swinging charges.

Officials said 16 of the injured police were hospitalized, nine of them suffering burns, and 15 youths were arrested. Scores of demonstrators were injured, police said, but the exact number was not known.

Two police vans, a police bulldozer and six automobiles were set afire or damaged in the melee, witnesses said.

The main clash came on the Rue Monge where hundreds of youths — wearing crash helmets and armed with axe handles, iron bars and bottles filled with gasoline — tossed firebombs at police from the street and from rooftops in a vain attempt to prevent a rally held by an extreme rightwing group, Ordre Nouveau (New Order).

The demonstrators, dispersed by thousands of police called to the riot area in scores of vans, failed to stop the New Order meeting and some 500 of their rightwing counterparts cheered speakers inside the police-ringed mutualite hall.

Near the end of the evening, the rioters split into smaller groups and hurled stones and other objects at police on the Left Bank. That fighting spread to the Place de la Bastille on the Right Bank.

Many leaders of the left-wing movement in France, including writer Jean-Paul Sartre, had called for demonstrations against the New Order rally. The rightists were demanding a one-year halt of immigration into France, where more than 20 per cent of the labor force is composed of immigrants — mostly North Africans.

FISHING STRIKE LOOMS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Shoreworkers and tendermen in the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union have voted overwhelmingly to strike for better wages and prices.

Union business agent George Hewison disclosed the vote result Thursday as officers of the union met with mediator Charles Stewart in a deadlocked dispute with the Fisheries Association of British Columbia.

The union is seeking a wage increase of $1 an hour in each year of a two-year contract for shoreworkers, and a $175 a month raise each year for the tendermen.

something it didn't have the courage to do in the House," he charged.

He accused the government of trying to bring in total abolition "through the back door."

But the change in the government's attitude also seems to reflect the unexpected support which it got among MPs for its compromise measure merely to continue the partial ban experiment for another five years.

Both Allmand and Prime Minister Trudeau had supported total abolition, and Allmand has stated that the government decided to propose the compromise of fear that a bill advocating total abolition would have been defeated.

This would have meant that hanging would be reinstated for all premediated murder, killing during the commission of another crime and the slaying of police and prison guards.

To meet concern of MPs over the present easy parole provisions for convicted murderers, Allmand proposed two changes:

— In addition to the present requirement that a convicted murderer must serve at least 10 years of a life sentence before being eligible for parole, he proposed that trial judges be given the option to stipulate that he must serve up to 10 years more before reaching eligibility.

— And in place of the present requirement that a convicted murderer must serve at least three years before being eligible for day parole or temporary absence from prison, the solicitor general proposed that no day parole be granted until the convicted person has served seven years of his sentence.

World Court Asks France To Halt Test

THE HAGUE (UPI) — The International Court of Justice asked France today to suspend nuclear testing in the South Pacific, but the French government denied the world court's jurisdiction in the case.

In an eight to six vote, the court said "the French government should avoid nuclear tests causing the deposit of radioactive fallout on Australian territory."

The court said the governments of Australia and France should "ensure that no action of any kind is taken which might aggravate or extend (their nuclear tests) dispute submitted to the court or prejudice the rights of the other party in the respect of the carrying out of whatever decision the court may render.

In Paris, France reitereated its stand that the world court has no jurisdiction in matters of national defence.

"I am authorized to recall the well-known position of France which is not to admit the competence of the International Court of Justice in this affair, which relates to a matter of national defence," a foreign ministry spokesman said.

In Canberra, Australian Prime Minister Gough Whitlam said today he expected the French government to postpone its Pacific nuclear program.

"At this stage I just want to say that we in Australia are very gratified by the court's decision," Whitlam said in a brief statement.

FISH PLANT FURORE

June 8 but at that time Davis said he did not know of the sale but had heard rumors about it and would not commit himself to asking Ottawa to halt the takeover.

B.C. may still have the upper hand in the sale, however, since it controls the issuing of fish processing licences. Lea says the government will not transfer the Cassiair licences to the Japanese firm.

The fact that the Japanese have actually bought out the holding companies won't matter, Lea said.

"We contend that doesn't really matter. There has been a transfer of ownership and we can hold back the transfer of that licence."

If it comes to that, Lea said, it will probably result in a court battle.

"Davis has been telling the world that he's going to protect the fishing inndustry here by possible extension of the boundaries to 200 miles," Calder said.

Referring to the Ocean Falls pulp mill and Colcel both of which have been taken over by the NDP government. Calder said "at least these companies were good enough to come to see us and tell us they had problems. If the federal government had co-operated . . . we were prepared to buy Cassiar."

The minister said he did not know the cost of the plant but Calder said it was originally set at $2.7 million and is rumoured to have risen now to $4 million.

"We're not saying what we are willing to pay," Lea said, when asked if the government would hand over $4 million for the plant.

"The plant isn't worth that much, it's the licences (fish boat licences) that are the important thing," Lea said.

"It's similar to the taxicab business, where the licence is the important thing and the boat isn't and the processing plant isn't."

The provincial government had hoped to finance a native Indian co-operative packing plant at Port Simpson, but if the Japanese company takes over Cassiar they will also take over the 100 fishing licences controlled by the plant.

Only a set number of licences are issued by the federal government each year and without the licences the Indian co-op could not get off the ground.

The idea for the co-op began over four years ago but the federal government never came up with the funding.

The Social Credit administration said during the last election campaign it would fund the co-op and now the NDP government is negotiating to set up the co-op.

Small Car Demand Outpaces Supply

Demand for cars is running ahead of supply in Victoria, especially in smaller models.

Victoria dealers say they are able to supply most requests this month, although a general shortage could develop over the summer.

In the Ford line the main problem is a shortage of light trucks. One dealer said he could sell more than 50 trucks if he had them but only has 15 on hand. The trucks are in the half ton and three quarter ton range.

Cars from Maverick on down in size are in demand but orders are being filled so far.

Like Ford, GM is finding most of the Victoria demand is for compact and subcompact cars.

Fully 80 per cent of car sales are in the medium or smaller styles, one Victoria dealer said.

Special Study on the National Capital

REQUEST FOR SUBMISSIONS

On May 17th, 1973 the Prime Minister and the Minister of State for Urban Affairs announced my appointment to carry out a special study for the federal government on the future development of the National Capital Region. The terms of reference are "to undertake a study of the most effective arrangements for the future administration of matters directly affecting the National Capital and its development, including the role of the National Capital Commission and its relation to other bodies concerned with the governing of the Capital Region and the co-ordination of those federal activities which bear upon the development of the Region as a national capital."

In furtherance of the objectives of this study, I would welcome the submission of briefs, memoranda or letters from individuals, organizations, or local governments. The submissions should be in typescript form, in English or in French, should relate directly to any or all topics included in the terms of reference, and six copies should be sent to this office before October 1, 1973. Information may be submitted on a confidential basis if so desired.

It is not my present intention to hold public hearings, since these would more appropriately flow from the review of the National Capital by a Special Committee of Parliament, the establishment of which the government is considering recommending at the next Session. However, persons or organizations submitting material to me will be given an opportunity to discuss their proposals.

The ridge of high pressure over western B.C. will drift slowly eastward and will weaken during the next 48 hours. An active Pacific storm centred near the weather ship will spread rain and strong southeast winds over the north coast this morning and over the outer south coast this evening. This system will weaken as it moves south eastward over Vancouver Island and the Cariboo Saturday morning. It will have little effect on the southern interior where it will remain mostly sunny and warm tomorrow.

OTTAWA (CP) — United States-owned companies are helping drain $270,000 an hour from Canada, 24 hours a day, 365 days a year, a spokesman for the Committee for an Independent Canada told the Commons finance committee Thursday.

Toronto businessman Jim Conrad said that money — $2.36 billion last year — represented the net flow of capital to the United States from Canada and shows that Canada does not need foreign capital for development.

The net outflow resulted from fees, royalties, interest payments, dividends and profits, plus investment by Americans into Canada and Canadians into the U.S.

Conrad said that over the next decade there will be a net outflow of $35 billion to $45 billion.

Representatives of the CIC argued that the government's foreign investment review bill will be inadequate to deal with the problem of foreign ownership and should be considerably toughened.

In its brief, the CIC said a propsed government agency to screen foreign takeovers and establishment of new foreign-controlled businesses "is a toothless jellyfish with very narrow screening powers and no requirement to make adequate investigation or reviews on a continuing basis."

The CIC recommended the agency be directed to supervise the activities of all foreign-controlled corporations in Canada, with a view to providing information that could be used in future measures to control foreign investment.

CIC chairman Mel Hurtig of Edmonton said the bill would not regulate expansion of foreign-controlled enterprises into related businesses.

He said that will do nothing to stop diverse firms such as International Telephone and Telegraph, which he said has 58 businesses in Canada handling everything from nuts and bolts to forest products.

LAWYER 'PORK BARREL'

OTTAWA (CP) — The justice department won't admit it, says Conservative MP Tom Cossitt, a former Liberal, but it maintains a huge patronage pork barrel for lawyers loyal to the Liberal party.

Cossitt says the department has a master list of lawyers who are contracted to do government legal chores.

He said he doubts whether the list, said to cover all electoral districts in the country, contains the names of any Conservative or New Democrat supporters.

B.C. Eyes $725,000 Fanjets

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia government has expressed definite interest in buying at least one new fanjet aircraft from the Cessna Aircraft Company, sales manager Jed Brandeth said Thursday.

In a telephone interview from the company's headquarters in Wichita, Kan., Brandeth said he has had talks with government officials but is not sure whether B.C. is thinking of one, two, three or four Cessna citations, which cost $725,000 each without spare parts.

Government spokesmen could not be reached Thursday night for comment on a report that B.C. has decided to buy two Citations.

Brandeth said the twin-engine, six-passenger aircraft has a range of 1,000 miles and would be used mainly for photo-mapping here.

He said he understands the government is considering using the Citation to replace twin Beechcraft planes.

Pulp Unions Caucus

Negotiations will resume Monday or Tuesday between two unions and representatives of pulp and paper mills in British Columbia.

Involved are the United Paperworkers International Union, with 7,200 members at 11 mills, Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, with 4,500 members at eight mills, and the Pulp and Paper Industrial Relations Bureau.

The two unions, bitter rivals over the last decade, bargain separately from each other with the companies' bargaining agency.

Both unions will hold caucus meetings of their negotiating committees Monday prior to re-opening negotiations, broken off June 8 while UPIU members took a strike vote which averaged 86 per cent approval.

The other union has not moved to hold a strike vote.

The contracts expire June 30.

E. P. O'Neal, regional vice-president of UPIU, said today it is the policy of PPWC not to take a strike vote.

He accused PPWC of "hiding in the weeds," waiting to see what his union comes up with.

Cold Spray Death Link

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Eleven deaths have been associated with Pertussin's medicated aerosol spray for treating cough and cold symptoms, the Ralph Nader-backed Health Research Group disclosed Thursday.

The Food and Drug Administration confirmed the deaths but said that at least eight were related to abuse of the product, such as deliberately inhaling it from a paper bag.

Efforts to reach the spray's manufacturer for comment Thursday night were unsuccessful.

The group has petitioned the U.S. government to remove all aerosol cold and breath sprays from the market, including the Pertussin one.

Dr. Sidney Wolfe, director of the group, told the FDA that a five-year-old Cleveland, Ohio, girl died April 18 after "Pertussin Night-Time Medicated Vaporizer" was sprayed in her room.

The death of the girl, Marcia Overfield, and that of one or two other persons among the 11 cases, may have been caused by freon gases used as propellants in in the aerosol devices, he said.

"Even though this product is approved by Parents' Magazine and the company (Chesebrough-Pond's) describes it as 'safe even in the nursery,' the can warns against spraying near birds and fish," Wolfe said.

An FDA spokesman said the agency has a special team of investigators checking for a possible hazard in about 18 aerosol cough preparations.

Conference For Life Underwriters

Annual sales conference of the Victoria Life Underwriters Association will be held at the University of Victoria June 29.

Speakers will be P. J. Goodenough and Clayton Klein of Palo Alto, California, Clifford Bertram, Vancouver manager of Manufacturers Life and Brice Etherington of London Life, Toronto.

Methods of locating prospects and techniques for selling are the main topics to be discussed.

Contracts Tendered

Contracts totalling $157,345 for renovations to the Legislative Buildings have been awarded by the government, it was announced Thursday.

The work involves panelling in the west wing, a new elevator, fan units and alterations to the central heating plant.

New elevator, Otis Elevator Company Limited, Vancouver, $38,745;

Clawed by the Wildcats

A union spokesman has qualified the implication that members of the International Association of Machinists were wildcatting Wednesday when they walked off their jobs in four cities, disrupting, if only briefly, the Air Canada service in those locations. The walkouts, two days after settlement in principle had been reached by the airline and members of the IAM on matters in dispute, were due to local problems and misunderstandings, the spokesman contended.

Whether or not the explanation is correct, the actions of union members in four cities indicate that they did not consider themselves committed by the decision of their negotiators at the time.

Extenuating circumstances may have applied. The union members conceivably misunderstood what their duly constituted negotiators had approved. That could be a pacifying explanation of events.

But it brings into focus a practice becoming more frequent in union negotiations. That is an inclination of some dissidents to take action which cannot be assessed in any other category than a walkout, whether brief or prolonged, when the wishes of their minority are not met.

The situation was amplified in the case of fallers who refused last year to accept the terms approved by IWA union negotiators for resumption of work in Vancouver Island woods. The fallers, though a distinct group within the logging force, were nevertheless members of the IWA and, if democratic principles are to be followed in the unions, were bound by the majority-approved decisions reached by union representatives — the executive officers chosen to negotiate with employers.

In actual fact, the fallers, after defiant talk, filtered back to work and did not break away from the IWA to form their own union.

The fallers' action demonstrated more dramatically than most one of the problems besetting unions and their leaders in other fields. It involves the repudiation by a minority of the majority decision reflected in the terms approved by the official union representatives. If that rejection materializes in the form of a wildcat strike, it can continue to tie up an industry, or seriously disrupt it. When the IAM crews ceased to function in Vancouver, Montreal, Toronto and Halifax for a period long enough to disorganize general operations, flights had to be cancelled.

Such incidents are inevitably damaging to union negotiators. What, their opponents in a dispute can ask, is the sense of reaching an accord with you around the conference table when enough of the union members you are supposed to represent will not honor the commitment and walk out?

The issue here differs in degree and effect from those instances in which a majority of a union repudiates its negotiators and leadership. In any such display of lost confidence, the negotiators or leaders should resign. Not so when a minority is involved.

The leaders have, of course, a defence against such eventualities. When a minority rejects an accord reached by negotiation, the leaders, if the majority supports them, can declare the dissidents excluded from the union. In a closed shop, the rebels then lose union protection and with it the defence of their jobs.

The point should be kept in mind as wildcatting continues, not only to protect the public from serious inconvenience caused by minority walkouts, but to safeguard the position of union leaders and negotiators. They should know that they are speaking for the majority and that the majority's case will prevail. No less than the public, the unions are being clawed by the wildcats.

Vancouver and the CDC

After 10 years of doubt and debate the Canada Development Corporation appears ready to go. But where it will go is still doubtful considering the dissent between directors and government detailed elsewhere on this page. When the corporation was originally proposed by Walter Gordon in 1963 its purpose was to buy back Canada from foreign investors. That rationale was lost along with Mr. Gordon. A new version unveiled in 1971 by Edgar Benson emphasized future investment in tandem with private enterprise. Prime Minister Trudeau has announced the $2 billion corporation will be located in Vancouver but the majority of directors appear to favor an Eastern location.

The CDC will be Canada's third largest corporation after Canadian Pacific's conglomerate and Imperial Oil. Locating it in Vancouver has been called a sop to the disenchanted West. But the location is logical as the federal government turns its attention to developing secondary industries in the West. It would also make Vancouver a new Canadian financial centre analagous to San Francisco's position in the U.S. Among counter arguments, CDC Director Anthony Hampson favors an Eastern location because of the "economic climate" in B.C., referring to the NDP victory last year.

Such naive excuses can only revive the regionalism which this country is slowly burying along with other East-West grievances. We're all in this country together and a Vancouver location for the CDC is a political and economic necessity as well as a signal of faith from the federal government.

GEORGE OAKE

The CDC Fights for a Home

A confrontation over the location of the Canada Development Corporation may be shaping up between CDC Chairman Anthony Hampson and the federal government.

In November 1971 Prime Minister Trudeau said CDC headquarters should move to Vancouver within two years. A majority of the CDC's 21 directors think otherwise and appear willing to buck the government that appointed them. They want the corporation which is designed to encourage Canadian ownership of domestic industry, to remain in Toronto.

Divide and Rule

Mr. Hampson also suggested there was no fundamental reason why Vancouver should be the location. Wouldn't somewhere else in the West provide just as convenient a nest? The four Western directors did not rise to the bait by dividing in favor of individual home towns.

The arguments that sway most CDC directors to eastern Canada are:

A move to Vancouver would uproot civil servants who have lived in Ottawa all their lives. Most of Canada's money markets are in the east. Putting the corporation in the west would cripple its financial clout and leave it out in left field, away from Canada's power centres.

Counter arguments are:

The West feels alienated from the rest of Canada. It makes good political sense to put such a plum in Vancouver. Most of the resources which the government hopes to develop through the CDC are in the west, so that's where the corporation should be.

TRUDEAU

stayed out of the ring. Things may be different now that Mr. Hampson, the 43-year-old former president and chairman of the board of Capital Dynamics Management Ltd., Montreal, publicly stated that CDC directors are not obliged to accede to the prime minister's wishes.

Technically he is correct. Under its enabling legislation up to 90 per cent of CDC shares may be held by the public. It is a public corporation, not a Crown corporation. But biting the hand that appointed you is not exactly tactful.

Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford has already said it is inconceivable for CDC headquarters to be anywhere but Vancouver.

Mr. Hampson's thoughts "were not well chosen at all," he grumbled.

The only CDC director from B.C., Hugh A. Martin, president, Western Construction and Engineering Research Ltd., understandably is in Mr. Basford's corner.

"The control of corporate decisions by the Ottawa-Montreal-Toronto axis is fragmenting this country," he says.

Favor the West

Mr. Martin and the other Western directors — J. P. Gallagher, president, Dome Petroleum Ltd., Calgary; Frederick W. Sellers, president, Spiroll Corp. Ltd., Winnipeg; J. N. Turvey, president, Interprovincial Steel and Pipe Corp. Ltd., Regina — all favor the western location.

But when Mr. Hampson calls a vote on the location issue at a CDC meeting later this month majority sentiment will probably favor the East. Then the gloves would be off.

If the CDC fights government wishes on location, who knows what it might decide about other government policies? And what a time to be balky, when the precariously placed Liberals are anxious to give any sop they can to the unruly West.

A Hampson-Trudeau showdown seems near. If it takes place there is little doubt who will prevail.

C. L. SULZBERGER

NATO Partners Grow Uneasy

BRUSSELS — NATO was thrown into a tizzy by a speech made here the other day by the U.S. Defence Secretary, James Schlesinger. Schlesinger appeared deliberately to play down Soviet military capabilities in direct contradiction of a report simultaneously delivered by the alliance's own intelligence analysts.

The latter concluded that new missiles and other weapons systems had increased Soviet striking power and that between 70 and 75 per cent of its air and ground forces were poised against NATO, despite the buildup aimed at China.

Schlesinger, in contrast, cautioned against exaggerating the adversary's strength. He reckoned approximately 35 fewer Russian and Warsaw Pact divisions faced NATO than the alliance's own assessment calculated.

Puzzles and Worries

The gap in estimates and their implications puzzles and worries allied leaders. They conclude either that U.S. intelligence is not sharing its true information with its partners or that the potential enemy's power is being deliberately minimized for political reasons. Neither suspicion is comforting.

American allies fear that Washington, seeking to reduce its balance-of-payments deficit and facing the imminent shift from a Selective Service to a wholly volunteer armed service, is trying to ease European worries, envisioning force withdrawals, for political and budgetary reasons rather than offering objective analysis.

The United States keeps assuring NATO there will be no unilateral reduction of American strength in this theatre. But everyone is so sensitive on this point and also so aware that U.S. taxpayers are bound to pay more for fewer volunteer servicemen that they wonder if Schlesinger's speech wasn't tailored to prepare for cuts.

There is a feeling that Washington now "governs by surprise" and is getting ready to spring something. While this may not be true, the sentiment is disquieting. Moreover, it has been suggested by frustrated American officials that if Europe cannot do more to help the United States ease the balance-of-payments burden of keeping troops here, they may be extricated and Washington could make its own deal with Moscow.

There is much loose talk along such lines. President Nixon has promised there will be no unilateral cuts. But Brezhnev's American journey — following his talks with Kissinger—are never forgotten, although it is acknowledged these must be seen against the background of similar colloquies between Soviet and European leaders.

JAMES SCHLESINGER
. . . different arithmetic

The lacuna between the military estimates of Schlesinger and alliance experts appears large. The Americans seem to think NATO forces as now constituted could in the remote likelihood of war hold out for two or three months against conventional attack.

NATO's international experts feel it is improbable they could resist more than two or three weeks, and that Soviet fear of China breathing down its neck is as much of a deterrent as Western power.

This becomes more than a theological debate when related to insistent U.S. demands—repeated by Schlesinger—that the European allies take up the entire American balance-of-payments slack for financing the garrison the U.S. maintains here as part of its defence role.

There is undoubtedly allied sympathy for Washington's budgetary problems and their reflection in Congress. Nevertheless, it is pointed out each ally has its own parliament which must accept national financial obligations.

Moreover, if there is an increase in payments of one or another sort to offset American troop costs here, this may be mirrored in reductions of individual national defence outlays. Furthermore, other NATO partners such as Britain and Belgium keep troops stationed in Germany without the kind of rebate Washington demands.

Troublesome Problem

This is a troublesome problem. The tentative figure offered by Schlesinger as one that should be offset to the United States is $1,500,000,000 annually, although no prices program has yet been set forth. It is pointed out this represents less than one tenth of the current U.S. balance-of-payments deficit.

Some among NATO's smaller members fear the United States is being so tough on this question that it risks straining the alliance. It makes U.S. troops here appear to be mercenaries by insisting they be paid for by others. And threats to pull them out otherwise or to make some kind of private deal with Russia — never formally outlined but often hinted at — encourages an explosion of verbalism which, in its turn, scarcely disguises growing isolationism.

Americans, concerned about the neo-isolationism seen these days in their Congress, sometimes forget that there is also isolationism on this side of the ocean. Wherever it originates, it could kill NATO.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Alternatives

You will agree, I hope, that editorial comment — a newspaper's contribution to the shaping of public opinion — should be based on accurate information. The editorial that appeared in the June 13 edition of the Victoria Times under the title "Eye to the Future School" was based on misinformation, or misinterpretation, or both.

The two schools are not "experimental" in nature. They were created in order to offer distinct alternatives at either end of the spectrum of educational philosophy for parents who are not satisfied with the general "middle of the road" character of the existing schools in this district. As such they are not temporary additions that would enable the mythological experts, mentioned by the writer, to determine which school "is more effective in developing the pupil's aptitude, encouraging a good attitude and nurturing creativity." As long as the parents who send their children to either one of the two schools are happy with what the school does for their offspring, the schools serve the purpose for which they were created. They will, hopefully, become a permanent feature of School District No. 61, the logical consequence of the Board's Policy No. 6155. — W. J. Havelaar, 51 Kingham Place.

Gay Boxes

The recently distributed 'flier' printed in glorious technicolor and entitled "POSTAL NEWS" (Notes Postales) does little to assist the letter-writing public, which is not particularly interested in the chimerical 'assured delivery' (which it is practically impossible to substantiate), and generally accepts the premise that, once a letter is collected from the box, delivery is effected as speedily as is practicable.

It is implied, though still not specifically stated, that box collections are made at 10:30 a.m., 3 p.m., and 5:30 p.m., but in the case of 'residential' boxes apparently only at 10:30 a.m. In other words, if a missive (say a note to a friend a few blocks away or a payment to a downtown store) is dropped in a residential box after 10:30 a.m. it is not collected until the next day, and not delivered until the day following (or if posted on Thursday, not until the following Monday).

While the multi-colored boxes (if maintained in condition) will doubtless enhance the gaiety of our streets, more so than the assorted 'artistry' on which public funds are so constantly lavished, it is doubtful if any other benefit will accrue except perhaps to the painters and paint manufacturers. It seems strange that a service which presumably caters to the more literate section of the community should resort to a color-coded imagery more suited to an illiterate and barbarous society. — N. T. Porter, 245 Linden Ave.

Unemployed Nurses

Being a simple clunk from the backwoods who has worked 43 years without drawing unemployment benefits, I would like to know the answers to a few questions and perhaps some college-boy-city-slicker type can enlighten me.

Headline in Times, Jan. 13th, "Nurse Shortage Hits City." Bottom of same page small item from Montreal, headed "$100,000 goof," describes how nursing students will receive that much in benefits when they finish training because nobody had told them they would not receive benefits if they quit their jobs voluntarily.

Why are nurses unemployed if there is a nursing shortage?

If the answer is because they are in a different part of the country, why cannot they be moved to where the work is?

If people are trained for a job at government expense, do not wish to be so employed as in this case, why are they not required to reimburse the government instead of being given more handouts in the way of unemployment benefits?

At what time did it first become legal to draw unemployment insurance benefits after quitting a job voluntarily, before it became illegal on April 1, 1973?

Are all federal government retraining schemes operated in this loose fashion, training then unemployment insurance benefits automatically if the course commenced before April 1, 1973, whether or not employment is available? — The Choreman.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of June 22, 1913

The Bishop of London speaking at the Mansion House today said he believed that the Anglican Church may have started too late in the Canadian Northwest but he believed they are not too late in British Columbia. Canada was the garden of the world, he said, and was absolutely a God-given cure for our overcrowded population, but not for wastrels. During the next fifty years, he added, if it did its duty, Canada would become the most God-fearing nation of the world has ever known.

Single Image Won't Fit Soviet Union

By HENDRICK SMITH

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union of Leonid I. Brezhnev is a land immensely powerful, yet strangely insecure; eager to promote detente, yet anxious to contain it; reaching out to the world, yet trying to hold it at bay.

Under Brezhnev's leadership, it has achieved global and nuclear parity with the United States and shrewdly consolidated its hegemony in Eastern Europe. Yet it remains obsessed by rivalry with China, a country far weaker in economic and military terms.

To an outsider, its political structure looks solid and secure and its society, by Western standards, seems a model of law and order. Yet it has tightened cultural controls and its secret police have been engaged in a relentless campaign to crush a small scattering of nationalist and other dissidents as if they somehow presented a real threat to Soviet power.

This is a country publicly triumphant and privately defensive, constantly vaunting its socialist superiority and yet evidently fearful of falling still further behind the capitalist west. It has become industrialized yet not really modern. It has gained growth but lost momentum.

Today, its leaders seem motivated not only by a messianic ideology but, like Russian rulers in centuries past, by a hatred of backwardness and a consuming desire to be taken as equals by the West, especially by Washington.

Like czars since Peter the Great, they are borrowing and adapting techniques from their adversaries, the U.S. and West Germany, to better compete with them peacefully.

In the service of this cause of detente, Brezhnev made an historic trip to Germany last month and told the Germans that the Soviet Union did not want to live in isolation from the world. This week he is meeting with President Nixon in the U.S. Nonetheless, the Soviet public remains strikingly cut off from the mainstream of life and ideas abroad.

So proud and secretive is Soviet society that its mass media can extol the benefits of co-operation with the West, without informing its people about the massive grain purchases from Western nations last year.

Western bankers are asked to put up billions in loans but deprived normal financial facts on the country's foreign exchange reserves or its gold supply.

Foreign enterprises are negotiating for long-term natural gas deals but are not permitted to have their own specialists check out the size of Soviet gas fields.

The Soviet leadership talks of opening up East-West relations yet proposes a ban on satellite television relay from one country to citizens in another, except with prior approval of the contents.

The Communist leadership has invested enormous sums of money and reams of propaganda on industrialization and has now discovered that, as far as the world-at-large is concerned, their real riches are not machines but natural resources — oil, gas, uranium, diamonds, and gold—and they are vast indeed.

The Russian standard of living is not only below that in the developed West but also below most, if not all, of Eastern Europe. Yet many ordinary Russians seems genuinely to consider their system the best in the world and can conceive of no other. What matters most to them is that they live better today than a decade or two ago. And in the past two decades, meat, milk and vegetable consumption has doubled, wages have doubled and during the Brezhnev era (since 1964) much more housing has been provided.

The emigration of 60,000 Soviet Jews during the past 30 months points to serious disaffection among some segments of the population. Yet, were doors thrown wide open to all, most Western specialists doubt there would be any great exodus. For Russians are a proudly nationalist people, deeply rooted to their land in a way Americans, as a nation of immigrants, can hardly comprehend.

Moreover, in spite of years of cold war propaganda, detente with the U.S. corresponds to the public mood. For the Russian people are as strongly and genuinely for peace as their leaders proclaim.

The Soviet economy has been capable of great achievements, like the first Sputnik of 1957 or the first manned space flight in 1961, the building of huge dams on its Siberian rivers at Bratsk and Krasnoyarsk, the extremely rapid development of its west Siberian oilfields or the buildup of a sophisticated defence arsenal. But its development has been lopsided.

The signs of this unevenness are everywhere. At Voronezh, about 300 miles south of Moscow, Westerners occasionally visit the aviation plant that manufacturers the sleek, new IU-144 transport plane. They came away impressed with the plant and Soviet engineering techniques. "They're doing things with titanium that we haven't got to yet," said one knowledgeable U.S. visitor.

Then visitors are sped past the weatherbeaten log homes of peasants and little shack-like country stores. In the bitter cold of winter, farmers tote their water from village wells in two buckets dangling from a shoulder yoke, and in warmer seasons, peasant women do their wash by hand in meandering country streams.

Another industrial project, equally typical of Soviet planning and its gigantomania, is the huge truck factory complex now rising on the banks of the Kama River, 500 miles east of Moscow. It is a prime symbol of the Soviet passion of bigness and the faith that bigger means better and more efficient.

When finished, the Kama River plant will be the largest truck factory in the world, capable of rolling out 150,000 big trucks and 250,000 diesel engines a year.

This is the kind of massive, crash project Soviets relish. Two years ago, they started from scratch. What was then an open rye field has been transformed into a city of 100,000 with workers' highrise apartments wall-to-wall on the horizon.

●

"They look great at a distance," commented one recent U.S. visitor. "But up close they're falling apart already." When the American inquired why workmanship was so often shoddy on such projects, a Russian replied, "No one owns it, so no one cares."

Instead of boasting of "burying capitalism" as the late Nikita Khrusrchev did, Brezhnev is going to seek the help of capitalism to modernize his country.

The Soviet Union's centrally planned economy, in the view of Western specialists, lacks the driving force of competition that stimulates technological development in the West.

Drought Unites India In an Heroic Struggle

By ABU
Manchester Guardian

They're digging for victory in Maharashtra. And victory is in sight in the great battle against the drought. I went to the blighted districts expecting to see famine and misery all round, but I've come back heartened by what I saw. The spectacle of thousands of men and women digging and carrying loads of soil and rocks on their heads was reminiscent of a Chinese propaganda film

What is going on in the Maharashtrian countryside is no longer a relief project; it has become a massive operation of development. Thousands of wells, tanks and irrigation canals are being dug. Bunds are built on the slopes of hills to retain rainwater and let it percolate underground. Huge dams are being completed and hundreds of miles of new roads have been built. Such an explosion of sheer physical energy has never before been seen in these parts. This is what involvement and commitment mean, and this is what every state in India can do if it wants.

It took three successive years of drought for Maharashtra to achieve this phenomenon, but it is what should happen throughout the country even in times one chooses to call "normal."

The black soil of the Deccan looks deceptively wet, but is in fact bone-dry. You can drive a hundred miles without seeing a blade of grass. The heat is oppressive, and bony cattle wander around tired and hungry. One passes acres of orchards dried up beyond revival. The landscape is bleak, but the people look remarkably brave and cheerful.

Women Work Harder

Nearly two-thirds of the workers are women. They seem to be the tougher and more hardworking sex. The Maharashtrian woman has a dignity and openness that sets her apart from her coy, giggly, half-veiled sisters of the North. But strangely enough, these ranis of Jhansi were being paid, until last April, wages lower than for the menfolk, many of who reminded me of the remark of the American who said, "I love work, I can watch it for hours."

According to government figures 4,400,000 workers were employed on some 54,000 projects at the end of April. In the 11 years after the formation of Maharashtra State in 1956, five major irrigation projects and 52 medium projects were completed. This brought 2¼ million acres under cultivation by June 1972, now nine new major projects are under way and 19 medium projects.

Just now only 8 per cent of the cultivable land in Maharashtra is irrigated. When the new schemes come into operation the proportion should go up to 10.5 per cent. But Maharashtra will have a perennial water problem, as most of the state lies on the wrong side of the Western ghats. Even if all the water resources are harnessed, not more than 20 per cent of the cultivable land will be brought under irrigation.

The relief program this year will cost the Maharashtra government £52 million of which £24 million is met by the Centre in grants and loans. Only a small proportion of this money goes in the form of dole to the weak and old. The rest is paid in wages.

Just Aches and Pains

The health of the workers has remained pretty good. At least there have been no epidemics. The leader of a touring medical team of young graduates from the KEM Hospital and the GS Medical College of Bombay, told me they treat about 200 "patients" each day. The usual complaint is aches and pains. The medical team distributes iron and vitamin B complex.

Then there is the "Sukhadi" distribution programs. Sukhadi is a tasty powdery meal made of flour, cane sugar, vegetable oil, minerals, and vitamins. It is prepared in a number of centres and half a pound of it is supplied free to every worker each day. This program is organised by the Sadguru Seva Sangh, a volunteer body headed by a Bombay philanthropist, Arvind Mafatlal, and the expenses are covered by the government.

There is a program for the famished cattle, of which there are some two and a half million. The present scale of this relief operation seemed to me meagre. There are a few cattle-feeding centres and a few places to grow fodder, as at the Mahatma Phule Agricultural College in Ahmednagar district.

The most neglected program is that of forestation, though I was assured that thousands of trees will be planted after the rains have come. What the Maharashtra countryside most needs is trees.

The immediate battle is almost won. The peasants are working hard, and with faith they are moving mountains. The officials are optimistic. The first of the rains fell in Nasik when I was there. I could have danced with joy.

Curb Interest Rates on Housing

THE GLOBE AND MAIL

Land is not the biggest villain in the rising costs of housing. Interest rates are. This is true even in the urban areas and their commuter satellites, where speculation has sent land prices skywards.

Eldon Woolliams (PC—Calgary North), reduced it to simple figures for the Commons. An ordinary bungalow in many urban centres now costs $35,000 or more, he said. If the buyer puts $10,000 down and carries a 40-year $25,000 mortgage, his total cost when the mortgage is paid off, depending upon the interest rate, would be: $75,000 at 6 per cent interest; $101,000 at 9 per cent; $110,000 at 10 per cent.

The government and the Bank of Canada can present various reasons for permitting bank interest rates to rise. As Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau put it in the House, some parallel between Canadian and United States rates has to be maintained because if our rates are too much lower "United States borrowers will tend to come and use our funds here for United States purposes." Higher interest rates may also help to dampen the economy and inflation before boom drops into bust.

These arguments may make sound economic sense at one level; but why must housing be dragged along, almost without thought?

It is years since the Economic Council of Canada argued that housing should not be used as a tool for manipulating the economy. Yet governments continue to use it so. This in spite of the fact that almost all governments, at federal, provincial and municipal levels, agree that there is a grave housing shortage, despite the last few years' increases in housing starts. More low-income families are constantly listed for subsidized housing; more and more middle-income families find themselves unable to buy a house of their own.

It is significant that urban housing starts, which had been climbing steadily in Canada during the first four months of 1973, dropped sharply in May (in Toronto the drop was 41 per cent compared with last May). A coincidence in no way related to rising interest rates?

Governments have taken minor measures to ease the load on housing — special bonuses for winter building, homeowners' grants, cuts in the sizes of downpayments, land grants, subsidies. All of these were highly visible: a government handing something to the people and being seen to do it. Measures with real meaning, such as removing the 11 per cent federal sales tax and the 7 per cent provincial sales tax on building materials for housing, have been determinedly avoided.

So has any effort by Ottawa to make the economics of housing feasible for the individual, or the most of housing as a job creator, although it is one of the most job-intensive industries, and although unemployment remains high.

There is only one system which would work. Sever housing entirely from other economic sectors and the manipulation of those sectors to achieve effects which have nothing to do with housing. Put a lid on the interest rates that can be charged for mortgages. Require the chartered banks and other lending agencies to set aside a percentage of their available lending funds for housing. Even at 6 per cent, as Mr. Woolliams' figures show, they couldn't lose.

At least half of the idea is not new. In New York State, interest rates for housing may not exceed 7.5 per cent. The Federal Home Loan Bank reports that the U.S. national average may now run to 7.5 per cent or 8.5 per cent — still well below Canadian rates. Interest on a mortgage may also, in the United States, be deducted for income tax purposes.

Control of rates is only half the equation: the other half is to require the lending agencies to make a portion of their funds available at these rates. The New Democratic Party would have the government force the lending institutions to set aside some of their funds for housing at the bank's prime rate plus a small administration fee. That would be an advance, but would still leave housing as a tool for manipulating the economy. A better system would set a special low housing interest rate unrelated to fluctuating bank rates. If Liberals and Conservatives were earnest in their desire to provide housing and fight unemployment, they would see the logic in it.

Bilked by the Boards

FINANCIAL POST
An Editorial

Those who like fine (and even not-so-fine) wines will witness the passing of some old friends in the weeks ahead.

Dozens of the better-known burgundies and bordeaux will disappear from the shelves of provincial liquor stores. Prices for even the most modest French wines are soaring, and the boards, exercising to the full their limited wisdom, say the wines will be so expensive no one will buy them. So the wines will be delisted. Simple, businesslike, brutal.

The liquor boards claim, rightly, that wine prices in France are doubling and tripling — the result of rising costs and fast-growing world demand for a limited product. Those price increases, the boards point out with some unction, inevitably must find their way onto board price lists.

That's true as far as it goes. But it's not price hikes by the vintners that may well make even French vin ordinaire prohibitively expensive in Canada. It's the compounding of markups and taxes on top of increased prices.

The price of a St. Emilion, for example, may triple in France to $3, and the French wine lover may groan at a $2 price increase. But he can still buy at $3. Not so in Canada.

In Ontario the liquor board applies a 109 per cent markup to the FOB price, plus various federal and provincial taxes, and shipping costs. The net effect on lower and medium-priced wines is an average markup of 300 per cent.

At the same time, the Ontario Liquor Control Board, among others, continues to protect the domestic industry by charging a smaller markup — about 65 per cent — on domestic wines. In effect, this is a protective tariff for a domestic industry, and in the light of the marketing strength of most local companies it is arguable whether such a preference is still necessary.

Most Canadians have resigned themselves to the usurious behavior of the appointed liquor control boards. Being bilked by boards, wine critic George Bain frequently notes, is a way of life in Canada.

But when provincial markups lead to prices so high the liquor boards themselves say no one will buy them, the boards are denying the public the products the government monopolies are set up to market.

All monopolies, it appears, don't have to be as grasping as the Canadian provincial boards. Sweden has a monopoly to buy and sell wines and spirits. The Swedish monopoly has an international reputation as one of the most astute wine purchasers in the world.

One reason is the Swedish monopoly's shrewd use of large buying power. But the magazine also says, "on the one hand the monopoly is not impelled by the need to make more than a running profit; and, on the other, the government feels that, since they themselves reap such a vast harvest in taxes on wines and spirits, it would be indecent to allow anyone else to milk the long-suffering drinking public still further."

No such scruples afflict the liquor boards here. To take Ontario again as an example, the LCBO turned a profit of $210 million on sales of $476 million last year — a ratio that would make any businessman green with envy.

CURBS EYED ON ANIMAL KILLS

A hunting permit system to control the number of animals killed in every area of the province will be given "serious consideration" by the B.C. government next year.

Speaking in Prince George Thursday, Recreation and Conservation Minister Jack Radford said the measures will be aimed at protecting the trophy species, such as grizzly bears and mountain sheep, as well as the more common species, moose and deer, in critical areas.

The first step in the tentative plans would be an increase in the number of game management areas from 28 to 32. Each game area would then be subdivided into 175 smaller units.

"This will provide a local basis for setting seasons based on such factors as population trend, availability of winter food, accessibility, need for special protection and impact of local environment changes."

★ ★ ★

He told the guiding committee of the Fish and Wildlife Branch and executives of the Western Guides and Outfitters Association that wildlife groups would be consulted on implementation of the system.

If the number of hunters exceeds the number of permits deemed appropriate, distribution would be on a draw basis but first consideration would go to residents.

He gave no definite date for starting the experiment.

Brain Machine Under Fire

NEW YORK (CP) — So-called brain machines on the market for home use pose a potential health hazard to the uninformed user and their sale should be regulated by government, a leading neurophysiologist says.

Dr. Michael Chase, director of the brain information service of the University of California at Los Angeles, says amateurs should not experiment with the "bio-feedback machines" used to "control" brain waves.

Writing in the magazine Psychology Today, he says individuals who purchase such a machine, for as little as $100, run the risk of impairing their psychological and physiological condition.

Conscious control of the brain waves is not new. Control of alpha waves, associated with a drowsy or sleepy state of mind, has been promoted as the key to relaxation, even creativity and euphoria.

But Dr. Chase rejects this theory.

"I believe there is little difference between being drowsy and relaxed and being in the alpha state. There are no known therapeutic effects from prolonged alpha activity."

Used intelligently and under proper supervision, control of brain waves could have "incredibly far-reaching therapeutic value" once more data is compiled, he says.

"Mind control in the manner of 1984 may be within our grasp" and may be used to control such diseases as epilepsy and Parkinsonism.

He reports that "by conditioning a person to reduce the electrical pattern that is responsible for (an epilepsy) attack . . . we might be able to reduce his seizures. . . .

"In cases of Parkinson's disease, if we could determine the neurological discharge that is responsible for the tremor, we might be able to use similar conditioning strategies to reduce or eliminate the abnormal motor activity."

GOVERNMENT OF B.C.
Dept. of Labour

REVIEW of LABOUR LEGISLATION

Approximately 60 written submissions have been received by the Special Advisers to the Minister of Labour concerning the Labour Relations Act, the Trade-Unions Act and the Mediation Services Act.

A list of written submissions received may be obtained by telephoning 733-8518. Submissions are available for examination at 2128 Burrard Street, Vancouver 9, B.C., between the hours of 10 a.m. and 12 Noon, and 2 p.m. to 4 p.m., Monday to Friday.

Daily Vetoes French School Proposals

Education Minister Eileen Dailly met Bergman and four other federation members in Victoria Thursday and told them the government could not at this time support their proposal for a parallel school system taught in French.

"The reaction was that we have to work within the NDP to get the party to actually adopt that as a policy," Bergman said. "But she (Dailly) did not feel that politically it was feasible at this time."

The B.C. electorate, said Bergman, "would be very, very scared if indeed all of a sudden their provincial government said you're going to have French schools."

Dailly was not available for comment on the meeting which lasted more than an hour.

"We were asking to be considered as equal citizens with the other founding nations," said Nestor Therrien, president of the Vancouver-based federation.

While census figures show 38,000 French-Canadians in the province, the federation estimate a more realistic figure may be as high as 100,000.

"We don't want specific schools to be built," said Bergman.

"I think our main point is that the public school system of British Columbia should indeed be available in French if there are people who want their children to have it available."

The men stressed they were not looking for bilingual education, nor were they proposing a separate school system.

The government, they said, "is not agreeing to the principle that we can in fact have education in two separate languages in a unitary system . . . they can not see that they could still have the single school concept and yet have it functioning in two separate languages."

Bergman said Dailly was sympathetic to their cause and the cabinet, he believed, would support them individually but not move to adopt such a major policy.

"We did hope that the statement Barrett made right after he was elected — that B.C. was back in confederation — would indeed apply in concrete terms to our particular problem," he said.

"Because to us, confederation means a bilingual and bicultural country or else we have no purpose being here. In fact, we cannot exist here except with the ultimate aim of being totally assimilated."

"If we are told by B.C. authorities 'look, we cannot help you,' then those of us who are mobile will inevitably return to the Quebec ghettos and that is a very, very sad consequence," said Bergman.

Asked if they would follow Dailly's advice to work through the party to change NDP policy, Bergman said they didn't have enough members.

AN AWARD HAT-TRICK FOR DEBBY

Deborah, 16, of 555 Davida Ave., won the Colquitz Trophy for top all-round Grade 10 student, the Walter P. Jeune Trophy for top academic Grade 10 stuent, and the Major Athletic Award.

No student at Colquitz has ever before received all three.

Top honor academic students in Grade 8 were Ian Whitehead and Jo-Anne Wong, and in Grade 9, Warren Bell.

The Michaux Trophy for music went to Linda Armstrong.

40-Year Teacher Retires

After 40 years as a teacher on Vancouver Island, Miss Kathleen Porter of Margaret Jenkins Elementary School is retiring.

For 30 of those years, she has been teaching primary grades at Margaret Jenkins, except for two years spent as an exchange teacher in Montreal and England.

Born in Chefainus, Miss Porter started her career at the Indian residential school at Alert Bay in 1933.

Four years later she moved to Chemainus where she taught for five years. Then she taught a year at Westview Elementary School in Powell River before moving to Victoria.

A reception for Miss Porter will be held Monday from 3:30 to 5 p.m. at the school. All ex-students, parents and friends are invited.

$5,600 Grant For City Poet

Dorothy Livesay, nationally-known poet now living in Victoria, has been awarded a Canada Council grant of $5,600 to write her memoirs.

Dorothy Kennedy, "a researcher with the B.C. Indian Language Project, received $3,000 to track down manuscripts and documents on B.C. Indian culture, which are now in many American and European universities.

The grant will be used to finance her travels to Ottawa and eastern American universities looking for manuscripts, she said.

Once her ethnological bibiography of B.C. is completed, UNESCO and the National Museum of Man in Ottawa have offered to buy copies of all the manuscripts to put in the B.C. Archives.

Derek Pethick, 53, author of three books on B.C. history, has received a $1,500 grant to write a book on exploration and the maritime fur trade of the B.C. coast from earliest times until 1808.

The fur trade was conducted entirely by sea until Simon Fraser travelled overland to the coast in 1808, said Pethick.

Pethick works on his books in the B.C. Archives when he has time, but runs a farm on the Saanich Peninsula as well.

A book of her short stories, A Winnipeg Childhood, will be published next month.

Vietnam Battles Ebb

SAIGON (AP) — Fighting across South Vietnam fell to its lowest level in five months today, with the number of Communist violations reported by the Saigon command down by nearly half.

A communique from the command listed 57 Communist truce infractions during the 24 hours ending at dawn. It was the third consecutive day that reported incidents had dropped far below the average of 100.

Meanwhile, a Vietnamese believed to be a war veteran burned himself to death in front of the Saigon Cathedral. The motive was not known.

On another front, a weekly liaison flight which is supposed to shuttle observers between Saigon and Hanoi was cancelled in a dispute over passenger safety procedures.

A Light-Hearted Welcome

The "new boy" took over command of the Pacific maritime forces Thursday after receiving a light-hearted briefing from the old master.

NEW COMMANDER of maritime forces Pacific, Rear-Admiral Reginald Pickford inspects his 50-man honor guard at colorful change-of-command ceremony held in the dockyard of CFB Esquimalt Thursday.

There was the usual 13-gun salute, Naden band and 50-man guard on hand in the dockyard of CFB Esquimalt when Rear-Admiral Reginald Pickford arrived to take over the reins from Rear-Admiral R. H. Leir.

The briefing from Leir, however, did not follow the usual format.

Turning to the gallery of civic dignitaries, American naval officers and other guests on hand for the traditional ceremony, Leir introduced his successor as "Pick" and proceded to give him a rundown on the civic side of his duties.

Pointing out there were five mayors in the assembly, "a veritable stable of mayors," Leir told Pickford:

"They're not pompous, they don't stand on ceremony much but every spring they ask you to perform like the second act of Gilbert and Sullivan."

He told Pickford that he would also be expected to visit the University of Victoria and speak on the military arts.

"I found it a frightening but very rewarding pastime," he said.

He told Pickford that the private sector, including bank managers, were also represented in the audience.

These were the people, he said, who made it possible for the thousands employed by the defence department in Victoria to spend their money in the city's shops.

"As a new boy," Pickford said, "I'm not expected to say very much."

He said he was no stranger to Victoria, this was his fifth tour on the West Coast.

Addressing the troops, Pickford said:

"I'm extremely proud to be your commander. You have an enviable reputation for your professional airmanship and seamanship.

SME SALES & MARKETING EXECUTIVES INTERNATIONAL

Leaders in their Field —the 1973 DISTINGUISHED SALES AWARD WINNERS

In Victoria, Tuesday, June 19th was "Oscar Night" for the members of the selling profession. At a banquet held in the Empress Hotel, representatives of many of the leading businesses in Victoria gathered with their wives to watch Mayor Peter Pollen present the Distinguished Sales Awards. These coveted trophies symbolize outstanding proficiency in the art of selling, and a dedication to the professional principle of service to the customer, a principle which has helped give us the highest standard of living in history.

The Trophy — the Sales 'Oscar'

Each award winner received a Distinguished Salesmen's Award Trophy, a golden statuette mounted on a handsome wooden plinth bearing a suitably engraved plate. This attractive emblem measures about 11" high and makes a worthy memento of the occasion.

A personalized scroll was also presented to each of the 21 salespeople honored on June 19th.

The 1973 Distinguished Sales Awards were organized under the chairmanship of Don Jenson, Regional Manager of Investors Syndicate Ltd., and conducted as a public service undertaking by Sales and Marketing Executives of Victoria.

Canadian Dividends Reach Record High

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

Dividend payments by Canadian companies for the first half of 1973 have totalled $836.1 million, a record for the period, according to figures released today.

Previous first-half record was in 1970 when the total was $793.1 million.

The payment of $836.1 million is 7.9 per cent above last year's $770.6 million and 8.5 per cent above the $765.3 million in 1971.

Industrials accounted for $417.4 million of the dividends (up from $363 million in the first half of 1972) while mines contributed $127 million (down from $127.3 million) utilities paid out $150 million ($148.6 million) an institutions and trusts paid $141.6 million ($131.5 million).

June dividend payments of $220.8 million was the highest June payout on record.

Industrials accounted for $124.1 million of this month's total, up from $100.4 million last June. Higher payments by Shell Canada, Ford of Canada and Simpsons-Sears and a dividend by Massey-Ferguson (first since December, 1970) contributed to the gain.

June dividends from mines totalled $64.3 million, up slightly from the $62 million last June. Cominco's June dividend was $2.6 million higher than its payout last June.

The decline in utility payments in June to $6.6 million from $10.7 million last June was due mainly to the decision to excude the $4.7 million dividends of IU International from the total because it no longer has residence in Canada.

Amnng those paying higher dividends are Laurentide Financial and IAC Ltd.

Meanwhile General Distributors of Canada Ltd. subdivided its shares on a two for one basis this week for shareholders of record on the close of business Wednesday.

Additional share certificates will be mailed about July 31. The authorized capital becomes 10 million shares with 6,118,640 shares issued.

The new companies posted for trading on the interim board of the exchange this week are Cutlass Exploration Ltd. and Driftwood Mines Ltd.

Cutlass (CUX) has a capitalization of 3 million shares of which 1 million are issued while Driftwood (DWL) has issued 664,000 of its capitalization of 3 million shares.

Nixon Lifts Dividend Ceilings

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Nixon administration has relaxed its voluntary ceilings on dividend payments. It said the restrictions worked a hardship on 31 million shareholders, especially older persons who depend heavily on income from common stocks and other securities.

The liberalized guidelines, announced Thursday by the Committee on Interest and Dividends, are expected to snap the stock market out of a five-month slump. The administration also hopes they will help attract more capital to Wall Street and more taxes to the treasury, thus bringing the federal budget closer into balance.

Under the previous guideline, a part of the economic stabilization program, corporations were asked to limit the increase in dividends each year to no more than 4 per cent above the previous year.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A man who said he spent his profits from drug trafficking on dancing, drinking and dates was sentenced to 18 months in jail.

Alan N. Park, 23, of 201 Ontario, pleaded guilty in provincial court Thursday to trafficking 123 caps of MDA, possession of 19 caps of MDA and possession of one ounce of hashish.

Park was arrested in May after he sold quantities of MDA to undercover policewoman Karen Dunn on three separate occasions.

Judge William Ostler said he would take into account Park had no previous criminal record, but that he had "used his profits for hedonistic purposes."

Park will be on probation for 18 months after his jail term.

Daryl Vincent Baratta, 17, of 3263 Alder, was sentenced to six months definite and eight months indeterminate after pleading guilty to trafficking in a restricted drug and possession of a restricted drug.

"He has now realized the foolishness and the stupidity of the acts he has committed," Ostler was told.

"He was more of a follower than a leader of his group."

Ostler agreed Baratta had got into trafficking in drugs "at the instigation of an older friend, but I hope this is the last time for you in court."

★ ★ ★

A man who said his crime was "not that of a hardened criminal" was sentenced to one year in jail and one year probation for breaking and entering and theft.

Frederick M. Smith, 26, of no fixed address, pleaded guilty to breaking into a Victoria garage June 7 and stealing a car.

"This is more the crime of a young man trying to find a way to live in a society which is not all that easy," Smith told Ostler.

"I don't think the jail sentence is the answer for me. If I had some way of bettering myself I would, but I'm not going to find it in jail."

In refusing Smith's plea, Ostler said he was interested in rehabilitation, but he was also interested in the protection of the public.

"You must go to jail with the proper attitude, make amends and upgrade yourself," Ostler said.

The court was told Smith had broken into a garage, taken a B.C. Telephone Co. vehicle and driven to the Courtenay area where he smashed the car into a telephone pole.

B.C. Telephone was given a compensation order of $1,100 for damage to the car and the pole.

Richard Alan Bennett, 23, of 1721 Adanac, was fined $350 for stealing a telephone from a Saanich hotel May 10.

Bennett, a workman at the hotel, said he had taken the phone from a stock of phones which were to be installed.

★ ★ ★

A Victoria woman was fined $100 for stealing $52 worth of clothes from The Bay June 5. Sara Dennis, 30, address unknown, told Ostler she "realized my mistake."

★ ★ ★

Basi Gurnam, 35, of 3175 Balfour, was fined $250 for stealing $15 worth of food from a Victoria supermarket May 9.

★ ★ ★

Three people were charged with impaired driving.

Clarence Webster was fined $50 for the offence and put on probation for one year. Webster, 17, of 890 McKenzie, was also fined $25 for driving without a licence.

Helen Eversole, 48, of 1417 Harrison, was fined $50 and put on probation for six months after she was found guilty of impaired driving on Yates Street April 9.

Herman Henry, 51, of 8750 West Saanich, was fined $350 and had his licence suspended for three months for impaired driving April 21.

★ ★ ★

Richard Owen James, 24, of 616 Catherine, was fined $100 after he broke a piano panel and pushed the instrument over at a public dance June 17.

James pleaded guilty to charges of mischief and causing a disturbance by being drunk at the Esquimalt Sports Centre.

As the dance was ending, Ostler was told, James climbed on the stage to play the piano. When he was asked to leave, he started to break up the instrument.

He was ordered to pay $275 to the T. Eaton Co., the owner of the piano, for repairs.

Decision Finally Made On CDC Office

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Canadian Development Corporation will establish its headquarters in Vancouver as originally announced, and probably by the end of this year, William Hamilton, president and chief executive officer of the Employer's Council of British Columbia said Thursday.

Hamilton told a Vancouver service club he has received information within the past week making it clear final decisions have been made.

When the CDC was established in 1971 Prime Minister Trudeau announced it was government policy that the headquarters be established in Vancouver.

OAPO Asks Pension at 60

PENTICTON (CP) — An increase to $150 in the basic federal old age security pension, with increments tied to the cost of living index, was urged Thursday by the Old Age Pensioners Organization of British Columbia.

The basic federal pension now is $100, which can rise with supplementary payments to a maximum $170.14. British Columbia adds $29.86 for a maximum monthly pension of $200.

Delegates meeting here for the organization's annual convention also urged th federal government to implement the pension at age 60 instead of 65.

In other resolutions, the OAP called on Ottawa to impose controls on wages, profits, prices and interest to combat inflation and asked that old age pensions be made tax-exempt.

Also requested was establishment of a federal senior citizens affairs department, interest-free loans for senior citizens and mandatory retirement at age 65 for MPs, MLAs and Senators.

In resolutions specifically aimed at the provincial government, the OAPO wants free drugs, eye glasses, hearing aids, dentures and dental care and ambulance service.

A freeze on assessments and taxes for pensioners who own their own homes and some control on rents is also being sought.

The organization asked the provincial government to take over rest homes and nursing homes "so that the elderly can be assured of accommodation when in need" and said the B.C. medical plan should take care of expenses.

A brief is to be compiled for submission to the Union of B.C. Municipalities urging municipalities to exempt from school taxation all old age pensioners living in their own homes.

An increase in the provincial renters' grant to $65 a month from $50 will also be sought, and as another move to ease the cost-strain on pensions, delegates voted to seek removal of the sales tax applied on heating oil, gas, telephone and electricity.

The OAP Oalso called for reduced bus fares throughout the province and for half-fares for passengers and cars using the B.C. ferry system any time during the week.

Rejected was a resolution which urged a ban on the issuing of further liquor and beer licences in the province.

No Confidence Voted In Hospital Board

CLOVERDALE (CP) — Members of the Surrey Memorial Hospital Society Thursday night passed a strong vote of non-confidence in the hospital's board of trustees over the firing in March of hospital administrator Ian Manning.

But the 400 people who packed the Cloverdale Community Centre stopped short of expelling the elected members of the board from the society, a move which would not have deposed the trustees anyway.

The non-confidence motion, requiring a simple majority, passed 202-to-67. An hour later the expulsion motion failed 209-to-91 because it required a 75 per cent majority.

The debate on the expulsion motion ended with an impassioned plea from Eileen Manning, the administrator's wife, who told the board, "I can't see how you can face your children at night with the kind of morality you represent."

She said the 20 minutes notice Manning received from the board when he was fired March 26 was "a rotten thing to do."

"If you had one iota of decency you'd resign right now," she said.

Approval of the expulsion motion would have had no effect on the board's three-year tenure because the bylaws state only that a trustee must be a member when elected.

Board chairman J. C. Rife said at the end of the meeting the board viewed the meeting, which featured catcalls and booing of the board and stomping applause for Mrs. Manning, "very seriously."

"I must say, after the expression of opinion here tonight, we will all be considering our position," Rife said.

Manning said after the meeting he was hopeful a petition calling on the provincial government to dissolve the board and appoint a public administrator of the hospital would be effective.

"This is the end of phase one," he said. He decilined to say what the phase two would include but said a lawsuit was a possibility.

Metis Want $300 Million To Meet Housing Crisis

VANCOUVER (CP) — The federal government will be asked to set aside $300 million over the next five years to meet a housing crisis which "kills and cripples thousands of Metis and non-status Indians annually."

Metis leaders attending a national housing conference at the University of British Columbia said Thursday most of the 500,000 Metis are forced to live in buildings which are or should be condemned.

A five-year plan leading to the construction of up to 30,000 houses is being drafted and the Metis leaders said they want it on the agenda of the next federal-provincial housing conference.

★ ★ ★

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Armed forces personnel at the Mount Lolo base near here tracked an unidentified flying object on their radar screen for about an hour before discovering it was several plastic bags filled with helium.

★ ★ ★

VANCOUVER (CP) — Persons convicted of impaired driving should be treated more severely than at present, the provincial superintendent of motor vehicles, Ray Hadfield, told the B.C. Safety Council.

Speaking at a luncheon after the council's annual general meeting, Hadfield said, however, that the public attitude is very important and drunk drivers get "all the sympathy in the world."

He said suspending licences except for employment purposes isn't effective because hours of work can't be pinned down—especially for occupations like salesmen, doctors and lawyers.

Shirley, Dale in Final

As predicted by many "experts" before the event started last Monday, Dale Shaw of Glen Meadows and Shirley Naysmith of Gorge Vale were to meet today in the final of the Victoria and district women's golf championship at Royal Colwood.

Miss Shaw, trying for a fourth consecutive title, won medal honors and reached the final with a 4 and 2 win over Gorge Vale's Nita Moody on Thursday.

Mrs. Naysmith, who is looking for her sixth title and first since 1968, downed Elaine Anderson of Royal Colwood 4 and 3 in the semi-finals. She first won the laurels in 1955, then followed with victories in the 1960, 1962, 1967 and 1968 events.

Meanwhile, 14-year-old Vancouver Island junior champion Sydney Thomson was setting a hot pace on her home course to claim a 7-and-6 victory over Ivy Blunt of Gorge to reach the consolation flight final.

CHAMPIONSHIP: Dale Shaw (GM), defeated Nita Moody (GV), 4 and 2; Shirley Naysmith (GV), defeated Eileen Anderson (RC), 4 and 3.

THIRD FLIGHT: Jane Fall (Cow), defeated Freda Munch (RC), 6 and 5; Irene Ritchie (GV), defeated Jean Smith (CH), 1 up.

Rebels Turn Wimbledon Into 'Ghost' Tournament

LONDON (AP) — The international tennis rebels insisted today on going through with their boycott of Wimbledon and one of the world's prestige championships became a ghost tournament.

After a meeting lasting most of the night, the militant Association of Tennis Professionals (ATP) snuffed out flickering hopes of peace and confirmed that 78 of its members were walking out.

The announcement came seven hours before officials of the All-England Club sat down to make the draw. The tournament starts Monday.

It meant that dozens of lower-ranked players, who normally would have little hope even of qualifying for Wimbledon, were thrown into a hunt for prize money totalling about $130,000.

With defending champion Stan Smith of the United States among the boycotters, Nastase found himself challenged seriously only by men like Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia, Alexander Metreveli of Russia and Jimmy Connors of the U.S.

ATP first announced its boycott plan two days ago after a British High Court judge refused to interfere in tennis lawmaking and lift the suspension of Nikki Pilic of Yugoslavia.

Pilic had been suspended by his national federation because he refused to play for his country in the Davis Cup.

The draw, originally scheduled for Wednesday, was put back 48 hours in hopes of a settlement.

Hopes began rising Thursday that the rebels might find a formula for abandoning their boycott without losing face.

Cliff Drysdale of South Africa, ATP president, was called to a meeting with Britain's minister of sport, Eldon Griffiths, and said afterward a new factor had arisen.

He did not say what it was, but ATP executive-director Jack Kramer said the Yugoslavs might reconsider their position on Pilic.

It was 3 a.m. (9 p.m. EDT) Thursday when Drysdale, looking haggard and drawn, came out to tell reporters the boycott was "final and irrevocable."

He said the executive had voted 6-2 for the walkout.

Wimbledon was left with a slim hope that some players might desert the ATP camp and play. Declarations of withdrawal were not being handed in by ATP until just before the draw was due to start at 10 o'clock this morning.

Wimbledon originally accepted 112 players for the men's singles and left 16 more places open for winners of the qualifying tournament which has been going on intermittently between rain showers since Monday. More than half of the 112 were involved in the boycott plans.

Officials had an alternative list of 128 made up of the non-boycotters plus the hopefuls who entered the qualifying event.

The women's singles goes on unchanged. Billie Jean King, reigning Wimbledon queen, called a meeting of the girls Thursday night and formed a 35-strong women's association to fight for higher prize money.

But, she said, there were no plans to boycott what she called "the greatest tournament in the world."

JUDGE RULES FOR JANIE

ATLANTA (AP) — A United States district court judge has ruled that anti-trust laws were violated when golfer Janie Blalock was accused of cheating by fellow members of the Ladies Professional Golfers' Association.

Judge Charles A. Moye Jr., ruled Thursday in favor of the 27-year-old Miss Blalock, citing in his ruling that LPGA players cannot police their own members.

Miss Blalock of Portsmouth, N.H., currently has a $2 million anti-trust suit pending against the LPGA. She filed the suit after she was suspended by the LPGA for one year on May 30, 1972, for alleged cheating in tournaments.

Moye blocked the suspension, allowing Miss Blalock to continue to compete on the tour pending disposition of the jury trial.

Miss Blalock's lawyer, Gene Partain, said Thursday the ruling "was vitally favorable to her case. It need not go to a jury."

Partain said the ruling finds that "the suspension was ill-founded and it is unnecessary to go to trial."

Moye's ruling came in a partial summary judgment asked by Miss Blalock's lawyers, who contended that anti-trust laws were broken when other players, who compose the LPGA's executive board, voted for the suspension.

LPGA lawyer John Allen Howard said that "a legal question was decided Thursday, that's all."

"It was not decided whether she cheated or did not cheat."

The alleged cheating incident took place in May, 1972, when the LPGA said she had been guilty of improving the lie of her ball in the Bluegrass Invitational in Louisville, Ky., from which she was disqualified.

Those Lovable Losers Are Back in Business

By The Associated Press

Remember when the New York Mets used to be lovable, laughable losers?

They brought back the "good, old days" to Pittsburgh's Three Rivers Stadium Thursday night, finding another way to lose—2-1—to the Pirates.

With the score 1-1 in the ninth, the Pirates had the bases loaded with nobody out when Bob Robertson hit a ground ball to second baseman Felix Millan.

Millan threw home to force Gene Clines. Then New York catcher Duffy Dyer, trying to complete a double play to first, threw the ball into right field.

Right fielder Rusty Staub, playing in close, saved a wild throw and fired the ball to second base to nip Al Oliver, who was trying to duck back to second after over running the bag.

Dave Cash, who started the play on second base, rounded third on Staub's throw and scored the winning run.

"There's no such thing as bad base running when you win," said Pittsburgh manager Bill Virdon.

In the other National League games, St. Louis Cardinals beat Montreal Expos 4-3, San Francisco Giants downed Cincinnati Reds 7-1, Houston Astros routed San Diego Padres 12-2 and Los Angeles Dodgers blanked Atlanta Braves 5-0.

In the seventh inning of the Mets-Pirates game, Pittsburgh's Al Oliver came home from first on Manny Sanguillen's double and appeared to be out by three steps on the relay throw when catcher Duffy Dyer missed the tag.

"The ball had me beaten," said Oliver, "but I really don't know if he tagged me."

New York manager Yogi Berra thought he did, and was thrown out of the game for protesting the "safe" call by umpire Tom Gorman.

Bob Gibson scattered eight hits and slugged his 23rd career home run to lead St. Louis over Montreal.

In the American League, Oakland A's put it to Chicago everywhere but on the scoreboard Thursday night, getting to pitcher Stan Bahnsen for 12 hits before bowing to the White Sox 2-0.

The hit barrage was just two shy of the most hits ever allowed in a nine-inning shutout.

Elsewhere in the American League, Minnesota Twins and Bert Blyleven edged California Angels 1-0 on a ninth-inning pinch single by Joe Lis, New York Yankees trimmed Detroit Tigers 5-1 in a rain-shortened six-inning contest, Baltimore Orioles beat Boston Red Sox 6-3 and Cleveland Indians whacked Milwaukee Brewers 9-1.

Painter Holds Lead

Painter had the best gross score after the second round, a 146. His nearest competitor in class A, 55-60 years old, was Carl Johnson of Bellevue, who carded a 148.

In the net results, Painter slipped down into a tie with Frank Mattausch of Bremerton for third at 136. The best net score was 133, turned in by Stuart Cooper of Vancouver, leader in class B, ages 60 to 65. The second best total was 134, carded by George Caldwell, Seattle, also class B.

BEACON HILL TENNIS TEST

Approximately 40 of the regular tennis players at Beacon Hill Park have organized a tournament, scheduled to start at 1 p.m., Saturday.

Competition in women's and men's singles and doubles, and mixed doubles events continues at 1 p.m., Sunday, and 4 p.m. weekdays through to Thursday.

Nina Bland Posts Upset

Miss Bland upset second-seeded Vivian Davies 3-6, 6-3, 6-0 in the women's singles and partnered club professional Ray Aldeguer to a 6-1, 6-1 victory over Sally and Roger Hemeon in a mixed doubles contest Thursday.

She also has advanced to the semi-finals with her mother, Corina, in the women's doubles.

Today's draw:

3:30 p.m.—S. Moss vs. N. Bland.
4:15 p.m.—R. C. Miller and V. Davies vs. D. Senese and R. von Iiberg.
5 p.m.—R. Aldeguer and N. Bland vs. S. and C. Bland; G. Miller and W. Cuppage vs. G. and A. MacMinn.
5:30 p.m.—S. Moss and G. Hartley vs. P. Blake and B. Cameron; T. Smythe vs. B. Waters.

It's a Happy Habit

The lanky blond had just put together a three-under-par 67, including a hole-in-one, for his first competitive round since he won the United States Open golf championship with a record 63 last Sunday.

Miller's 67 on the long, tough Firestone Country Club course Thursday gave him a share of the first-round lead in the American Golf Classic.

He was tied with 23-year-old Forrest Fezler, a tour sophomore, who also clipped three strokes off par on the lush 7,180-yard layout.

"I'm encouraged, but not satisfied," the 43-year-old Palmer said after moving into a tie with big J. C. Snead, Jim Wiechers and rookie Tom Kite.

Jack Nicklaus, who has collected a leading $190,000 and four titles already this season, topped a big group at 69. He reeled off one string of three consecutive birdies but dropped back with a bogey from a bunker on the final hole.

"It was an easy 67," Miller said. "I've been getting the absolute most possible out of my rounds. This one wasn't like that. I feel like it could have been a lot better."

He missed two birdie putts of four feet or less, lipped out another one on the 17th hole and almost birdied the 18th from an end trap, the explosion shot going in and out of the hole.

Miller, who played with Palmer, said Arnold distracted him while he was on the tee on the fifth, the 230-yard, par-three hole on which he made an ace with a four wood shot.

"Arnold dropped his ball just as I was standing over my tee shot," Miller said. "I stepped back. Arnold said 'Excuse me.' Then I got over it again, hit it and the ball trickled in the hole. I said, 'Thank you, Arnold.'"

CHAMPIONS SET TARGETS FOR GOLFERS

Bob Panasiuk, defending Canadian PGA champion, and Marlene Streit, 11 times winner of the national women's open title, have set target scores for this year's beat-the-champ golf competition at one-under-par 69 and three-over-par 76 for men and women, respectively.

The annual beat-the-champ competition is to raise funds to develop junior players in each province. Entrants pay $1 each and if they beat the target scores set by the champs — better than 69 for men and 76 for women — they will win token prizes. Calculation is based on net scores, including allowances for handicap.

The two champs, both from Toronto, set the scores at Calgary Golf and Country Club.

Cougars Trade One for Three

REGINA — Victoria Cougars completed a one-for-three Western Canada Hockey League trade with Regina Pats on Thursday.

Cougars dealt centre Dave Faulkner, 18, to Pats in exchange for two experienced players and a promising rookie.

Moving to Victoria are wingers Brad Anderson and Glen Ing, both 19, and Ron Reinhart, 18, top scorer last season in the Pats' Saskatchewan Junior League affiliate.

Reinhart comes to Cougars on a "make-good" basis. If he cannot make the club he will be returned to Regina and another player will be selected.

Tyees Spy Silver Lining

Barry Gillia came out last weedend to back up Jim Broad. If and when Clay Allinott shows up, Courtenay Tyees could throw the roadblock in front of Victoria Bates' hopes of defending the British Columbia men's softball championship.

That's the hope of Courtenay manager Barry Ferguson.

The Tyees, Bates and Abbottsford Merchants — all members of the Northwest International Fastball League — will rate as the top threats in the B.C. finals to be staged at Royal Athletic Park Aug. 18-19.

Winners of the provincial title will represent B.C. in the Canadian tournament at Hull, Que., the following week.

Ferguson doesn't believe Tyees' 1-10, won-lost record in the league "is a good preview" of what to expect in the B.C. tournament.

Allinott, the lefthander voted the outstanding pitcher in the B.C. tournament last year, has yet to report. Big Ken Larson of Nanaimo has been troubled by a sore arm and Courtenay's load has been carried by Broad. Until last weekend.

Gallia, recruited from Nanaimo, started twice against unbeaten Seattle Pay 'N' Pak. He lost a rain-abbreviated 2-0 decision and then was beaten, 2-1, in 13 innings. Courtenay out-hit Seattle in both games.

Abbotsford is 2-9 in league play whicle Bates hold down second place with a 7-5 mark.

Ferguson feels his Courtenay squad "is starting to come" and that is why he is "looking forward" towards the weekend's four-game NWIFL series at Royal Athletic Park.

Bates meet Courtenay at 7 and 9 p.m. Saturday and again at noon and 2 p.m. Sunday.

Salmon-Fishing Outlook Appears Good for Island

With the exception of a "dead" area around Nanaimo, salmon fishing should be good just about anywhere around Vancouver Island this weekend.

Chinooks up to 15 pounds have been landed in the vicinity of Goldstream Island, Misery Bay and Chesterfield Rock while bluebacks are nearing the five pound mark in the same areas.

Jacksprings from five to six pounds and blues are coming in from McKenzie Bay, McCurdy Point, The Boulder, Bamberton and Willis Point.

Lots of jacks, the odd larger chinook as well as a few ling and halibut are being produced from Oak Bay, where fishermen using strip have been claiming the best success.

If you want to strike it lucky along the kelp bed at Pedder Bay, try getting there at the crack of dawn (about 4:30 a.m.) or just at dusk. Use strip, 12 ounces of weight and about 50 feet of line.

Tops this week at Becher Bay was a 40-pound chinook. Numerous fish around 16 pounds have been landed both at Church Island and Beechey Head.

Secretary Island waters (just along the reef nearest the entrance to Sooke Basin) are yielding chinooks up to 34 pounds to fishermen using large minnows and about a pound of weight.

Killer whales have been making periodic visits to both Sooke and Becher Bay in the past couple of weeks but the subsequent slowdown of action doesn't seem to last long.

Back on the east coast of the Island, jacks are sparking a little interest along the southern coast of Salt Spring Island.

Spin-casters fishing off the government wharf in Cowichan Bay are picking up some good-sized chinooks on deadly-dicks and buzz-bombs while trollers are enjoying similar returns near Bold Bluff, Burial Island, Tent Island and Kuper Island.

Other buzz-bombers using the four-inch "polar bear" are landing chinooks from six to 18 pounds off Comox Bar but coho have not yet shown up in the same area.

Artificial lures such as spoons and spinner flies work best for coho around five pounds off the end of Francisco Point on Quadra Island. Chinook catches around Campbell River are more scattered at such spots as Cooper Bluff, Quathlaski Cove and Duncan Bay.

For the angler on the south end of the Island, now might be a good time to try for bass in Elk and Beaver Lakes or steelhead in the San Juan River and Harris Creek.

Farther up-Island, best spots for trout fishing have been Skutz Falls on the Cowichan River (late evening with a white fly), the river between First and Second lakes near Nanaimo, Sproat Lake, Comox Lake (with flies near the top end) as well as Lower and Upper Campbell lakes.

NIBBLES: Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association will be staging its annual Goldstream Conservation Derby Sunday .... This fishfest raised $179 for the Goldstream rehabilitation fund last year ... Hours are from dawn to 2 p.m. with weigh-in stations at Anglers' Anchorage, Hall's Boathouse, Brentwood Boats, Gilberts and Deep Cove Marina ... Top three fishing prizes are $50, $30 and $20 ... In addition to numerous hidden-weight prizes, there will be a draw for $100 — so you don't necessarily have to fish to win ... Tickets, which must be submitted with each fish weighed in, cost 25 cents or five for $1.

Island 'Stars of Future' Bidding for Track Honors

They're being tipped as the stars of the future.

Already they have been chosen to represent their province and the wide world of track and field—international competition, the Olympic Games—could eventually lie at their feet.

They will all be at Centennial Stadium Saturday and Sunday taking part in the annual Y-Times meet.

"They" are the 12 Vancouver Island athletes named following trials at Richmond last weekend to B.C.'s track and field team in the Canada Summer Games in Burnaby in August.

Track fans will get a chance to see all 12—nine from Victoria and three from Nanaimo—competing in the meet that is sponsored jointly by the Victoria Times and the Victoria YM-YWCA.

A talented trio from the Victoria Mercuries Track Club, sprinters Cheryl Blevins and Vince Sequira and middle-distance runner Tom Griffin, are included in the nine Victorians on the B.C. team

Other team members in sprint events will be Bruce Vye of Mt. Douglas High School in the 100 and 200 metres and John Gage of Oak Bay and Tom Mitchell of Claremont in the 400 metres.

The remaining Victorians aboard the B.C. team who will be in action are Bev Cox of Vic High, who also competes for the Vancouver Olympic Club, in the 400 and 800 metres, hurdler Tim Page of Oak Bay and distance runner Richard Kirkham, also of Oak Bay High.

Also performing will be Joanne Calverley, a discus thrower and shot putter, Phil Olsen, a javelin thrower, and hurdler Laurie Budd, Nanaimo's trio on the Games team.

The talented 12 will be among 900 athletes from 30 clubs in B.C., Calgary and Washington competing.

Entrants in the biggest track and field event of the year in B.C., constitute a big enough "crowd" by themselves, but meet director Jack Rowe, believing age-class competition is generating increasing interest, expects a good number of spectators.

Organization of a meet of such magnitude, however, is posing more than a few headaches.

"We will have to do some very hard thinking about this before next year's event," says Rowe.

The meet gets under way at 9:15 a.m. Saturday and Sunday's events start at 10 a.m.

ROLLER DERBY ARRIVES WITH CANADIAN TOUCH

The entertaining sport popularized by television, the International Roller Derby League, moves into Memorial Arena tonight with a game between Boston Bucks and the Canadian All-Stars.

Action starts at 8.

Regarded as an expansion team in the pro league, the All-Stars recently defeated Los Angeles, the league champion, 6-2 in an eight-game series.

In addition to the team name, Canadian flavor is supplied by Harry Morgan, a 24-year-old native of Vancouver making his name in a sport that has been dominated by American skaters.

Morgan was the leading scorer in the series against Los Angeles. Along with Morgan, featured skaters include Dianne Syverson and player-coach Paul (the Bear) Rupert.

Burrards in Breeze

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Vancouver Burrards moved back into first place in the Western Lacrosse Association Thursday with an 18-11 victory over New Westminster Salmonbellies.

It was the sixth straight victory for Vancouver over the Salmonbellies, who are just getting back to full strength after a series of injuries left the team short as many as 12 regular players.

Brian Davidson scored five goals and assisted on three others to lead the Vancouver team, which scored 11 goals in the third period to run away with the decision before 1306 fans.

The veteran forward, who owns nearly all the scoring records in the WLA, needs only one goal to reach the 800-mark.

Following the game, New Westminster coach Keith Jackson said all his last-place club needs to win is to get in better physical shape.

Salmonbellies trail the third-place Victoria Shamrocks by two points in the battle for the final playoff berth and both teams have 12 games remaining.

Tight Struggles In McGinnis Race

Century Inn extended its lead in the Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League by defeating Mike's Sport Shop 1-0 Thursday night at Central Park.

Thursday's other league game was also decided by one run as Bell's Men's Wear nipped Seaboard Construction 2-1 at Heywood Avenue to move into third place.

Ross Johnson picked up the 14th straight Century victory by allowing only one hit — a single to Ron Grant in the fourth inning — and two bases-on-balls.

Jim Moody led Bell's batting with two hits on two trips to the plate while Darold Mills and Rick Jones singled in the fourth-inning runs.

Greig Rallies English Side

LONDON (Reuter) — Tony Greig rallied England to a total of 240 for nine wickets after a mid-innings collapse on the first day of the second cricket test Thursday against New Zealand.

Greig, dropped by wicket-keeper Ken Wadsworth off a sharp cut when he had made only six, went on to become England's top scorer with 63.

Judo Team Visits

Victoria judo fans will have a chance tonight to see West Germany's top young exponents of the art in action.

The West German national youth judo team, 10 fighters aged between 17 and 18 and a coach, will work out with members of the Victoria Judo Club at 7 tonight in the clubrooms at 715 Johnston Street.

The Victoria visit is part of a cross-Canada tour that began with an exhibition in Vancouver Thursday night. The West Germans leave Sunday morning for Campbell River.

There will be no charge for spectators at tonight's workout.

Leaders Tripped By Service Crew

Al's Home Service tightened the Victoria Senior Baseball League race another notch Thursday night by tripping first-place Gorge Hotel 5-1 at Lambrick Park.

Victory moved Als into a tie for third with Greaves Movers and left only two and one-half games separating the top and bottom clubs.

Sailing Schools on Wheels

One of the biggest contributions the British Columbia Sailing Association makes to the sport is the mobile sailing schools it sends out annually to various parts of the province.

This is the fourth year of operation for the mobile schools which begin their seasonal tour on Saturday.

This year the program has been expanded so that three schools will be bringing instruction to youngsters in various parts of B.C.

One school will cover the central and northern area of the province, a second will teach in the lower mainland, Okanagan and Kootenay areas while the third will travel through Vancouver Island and the lower Sechelt peninsula.

The Vancouver Island school will be at Sidney from Monday to next Friday. Fees for 15 hours of instruction are $6 for youngsters aged 10 to 16 and $12 for those 17 years or over.

If you want any more information give John Sharpe a ring at 652-2617. Boats and lifejackets are provided.

The school will be in the Comox-Courtenay area from July 3-7, Port Hardy from July 16-20, Campbell River-McIvor Lake from July 23-27, Ucluelet from July 30-Aug. 4, Port Alberni-Sprout Lake from Aug. 6-10, Nanaimo from Aug. 13-17 and North Cowichan-Fuller Lake from Aug. 27-31.

AROUND OUR SHORES

By Pat Dufour

The Esquimalt Squadron, Canadian Forces Sailing Association, will hold its annual invitation race from Cattle Point to Roche Harbor Saturday.

The 9.7-miler gets under way at 10 a.m., finishing at the southern entrance of Mosquito Pass. There will be trophies for both Sailerettes and cruising class winners.

Entries all need valid Pacific Handicap Racing Fleet ratings. They should also meet category III safety requirements.

The Canoe Bay Sailing Club will hold its annual picnic on Sunday. Festivities are slated to begin at 2 p.m. at Portland Island.

Bud Peetz's Columbia 26 earned herself championships honors in the club's two-weekend regatta which ended Saturday. She won the two previous races and came third in Saturday's ending up first over-all.

Other over-all leaders of the three-race regatta were Willi Fahning's Lille Laelt, second; Dave Thomas's Mary Bower, third; F. L. Thomson's Cal T2, fourth; Alan Dickinson's Viking, fifth, and John Barker's Crown 23, sixth.

Lille Baelt won Saturday's race, the Cal T2 placed second, Viking won fourth spot. After her came Bert Buchanan's Lairig Ghru, Mary Bower and Denny Davis' Rozinante.

Jack Woodward's Puff II won the Lipton Cup in Sunday's race for International Offshore Rule boats, organized by the Royal Victoria Yacht Club. She beat out Miles Dighton's Obsession and Greg Oliver's Departure.

The Whitehouse Trophy for PHRF boats racing the same course went to Cecil Miles' Ixta. In second spot was Gordie Nickells' Redskin.

Ixta also was first PHRF boat in Wednesday night series racing, edging out Gerry Howell-Jones' Sian and Guy Screech's Morgan.

First Thunderbird home was John Dewey's new fiberglass boat, Shuttlecock. After her were Bob Grundison's Owl and John Malleson's Sunday.

Nancy Lovett's Red Baron was top Cal 20. In second and third spots were Dick Readshaw's Massilia and Bill Vogel's Murrelet. Rich Heatherington's Merph won in Crown 23 competition.

★ ★ ★

The Victoria Canoe Club will head for Shawnign Lake on Saturday for an afternoon picnic, followed by an evening paddle. Those intending to take this one in should check with John Harding at 592-1958.

Tuesday, VCC members will meet at Craigflower Park for a paddle in Portage Inlet and Colquitz Creek. Sylvia Luzzi can give you more details if you phone her at 478-7262.

One of the biggest events of the season takes place the weekend of June 30 — the annual Pacific International Yachting Association regatta.

FIGHT ENDS FOR LEAHY

PORTLAND (UPI) — Frank Leahy, who coached Notre Dame to seven unbeaten seasons in football, died Thursday after a five-year battle against leukemia and other ailments. He was 64.

Leahy succumbed to massive heart failure at Good Samaritan Hospital. He had also been suffering from spinal arthritis, an infected bladder and diabetes.

Leahy coached the Fighting Irish to an 87-11-9 record from 1941 to 1953, with the exception of 1944-45, when he was in the navy. Before going to Notre Dame, he coached Boston College to a 20-2 record.

Secretariat Runs June 30

NEW YORK (AP) — Secretariat will race June 30 in Chicago for the people, trainer Lucien Laurin said Thursday.

"We're not going for the money, but to insure that as many people see the horse as possible," Laurin said about the decision to race Secretariat in a $125,000 match race, with $75,000 to the winner.

"We didn't suggest what the money should be, they (the track) took care of that.

"I think Mrs. Tweedy is a wonderful sport to do this," Laurin said referring to Helen Tweedy, operator of Meadow Stable, owner of the Triple Crown winner who will leave racing by Nov. 15 to go to stud under a world record $6.08 million syndication."

Laurin, former Montreal jockey, said Secretariat will go to Chicago next Thursday for the race in which he will meet Our Native and probably Blue Chip Dan.

Blue Chip Dan would be a substitute for Linda's Chief, winner of a major race at Chicago's Arlington Park, in which Blue Chip Dan finished second.

Neil Hellman, owner of Linda's Chief, said Wednesday night in Albany, N.Y., "we will not race him at a mile and an eighth.

SAM EYES 1,000 SAANICH CLUNKERS

Up to 1,000 junk cars are expected to be rounded up in Saanich by Oct. 31 in the first visit of Project SAM to a core municipality starting Monday.

The Salvage, Assembly and Manufacture program sponsored by municipalities and Capital Regional District is designed to clean up the environment by collecting and crushing old cars into recyclable bales.

Unorganized parts of the regional district have been attended to during the past year. Saanich and the district have budgeted for $9,000 to sweep the municipality of discarded cars.

A contract has been let to Mountain Hideaway Ltd. at a cost of $17 per car to pick up and haul vehicles to a collection point at the municipal gravel pit on Cordova Bay Road near Sayward.

Owners are liable for a $7 fee for the first car removed from a parcel of land, and the full $17 for each additional vehicle taken away by the contractor.

When sufficient cars are accumulated, the provincial government's crushing machine will be brought in to bale the old bodies, starting probably at the end of summer.

Between 600 and 1,000 junk cars are expected to be processed, said assistant municipal administrator Dick Gibson.

He cautioned residents to wait until next week before contacting the municipal hall for pickup.

The applicant must fill out a form, pay his fee and sign a release from ownership and indemnification at the municipal hall.

"We don't want people hauling in cars themselves. We don't have the facilities for that," Gibson said.

In most cases, he pointed out, it is illegal to tow cars unless with a properly equipped truck.

Each occupant of a land parcel in Saanich is entitled to have one unlicensed car. Any others are illegal, unless stored out of sight.

Gibson said discarded farm machinery may also be disposed of by SAM if items can be hauled away by truck. Assorted vehicle parts unattached to a frame or body will not be accepted.

Medicine Men Top Shrinks

VANCOUVER (CP) — Medicine men with the aid of drums, dancing and rituals are far more successful than North American psychiatrists in treating Indians, the Canadian Psychiatric Association was told Thursday.

Psychiatrists Dr. Wolfgang Jilek and Dr. Norman Todd, both of Chilliwack, B.C., said in a paper presented to the CPA's annual convention that health problems of the local coast Salish Indians are "inseparable from their socio-cultural situation and that the therapeutic armament of Western psychiatry and medicine is often insufficient to meet the specific needs of the Indian clientele."

They said Indian doctors and ritualists, in response to these needs, have been travelling around southern British Columbia and Northern Washington.

"Indigenous therapists consider persons suffering from depression, anxiety and somatic complaints unresponsive to Western treatment, as well as persons with behavioral and alcohol problems, as candidates for spirit dance initiation," the paper said.

The Indian diagnosis of spirit illness permits re-identification of an alienated Indian with his aboriginal culture by way of initiation into spirit dancing.

"The first act of initiation, the grabbing of a candidate, consists of a surprise attack on the prospective new dancer who, in an unexpected moment, is seized by husky ritualistic aides."

The candidate then meets the ritualist who is empowered to symbolically club to death the initiate's faulty and diseased old self, to let him awaken with a new potential for total change and to guide him on the path of Indian tradition.

The doctors said they followed the cases of 24 young spirit dancers initiated in the Fraser Valley between 1967 and 1972.

Predominant symptoms in 11 of the cases were depression, anxiety and psychogenic somatization, often associated with alcohol or drug abuse. "Of these 11 candidates, three now have been free of symptoms since the time of their initiation, seven have shown definite improvement and one no change."

In 13 cases, behavioral problems with aggressive and anti-social tendencies, usually in the context of alcohol or drug abuse, were manifest before initiation. Of these cases, seven have been behaviorally rehabilitated since the time of their initiation, four have improved, one showed no change and one has deteriorated after quitting the ceremonial.

"The conclusion we have drawn is that many Indian patients are likely to benefit more from involvement in native therapeutic activities than from exclusive contact with Western resources."

"We have taken a two-pronged approach in the health-care delivery to Indian patients which aims at combining Western treatment with indigenous procedures in close co-operation with native therapists."

Science Policy Switch Urged

Special to The Times

OTTAWA — Since science policy is an aspect of public policy and involves the spending of public funds, it must be formulated by the politicians, not by the scientists, according to Science Council chairman Roger Gaudry.

"It may be influenced by scientists and indeed it should be, but the ultimate decisions must remain political ones," Dr. Gaudry explains in his annual report as chairman of the Science Council to government.

"This assertion may disturb some scientists who cling to the hope that science policy in some sense will be more 'scientific,' that the decisions will be 'objective' and not subject to the trading off among conflicting goals which marks other policy making," Gaudry says.

And he warns that: "As changes wrought by technology become more complex, as comprehension of the effects requires more sophisticated knowledge, there is the temptation in any society to leave decision-making to the expert."

The Science Council, he suggests, should no longer be considered as purely a "federal body," nor should it be regarded as an expert body faced with a problem only an expert can solve.

Cambodia Raids Detailed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the few months since the Vietnam ceasefire, the United States has bombed Cambodia as heavily as it did in the preceding three years, according to just-released Pentagon statistics.

The bombing statistics also show that in the seven years of Indochina war, the United States pummelled its ally, South Vietnam, four times as hard as its enemy, North Vietnam.

The Pentagon has declassified for the first time 12 pages of documents detailing month-by-month the number of attacks flown and the tonnages of bombs dropped on each of the four states of Indochina.

In the past the Pentagon has released total tonnages dropped each month but refused to break down the figures.

In the three years before the January ceasefire, U.S. aircraft dropped 175,000 tons of bombs there.

But in just the three months of March, April and May this year, 140,000 tons have been dropped on Cambodia.

Duties Shirked: Cocke

VANCOUVER (CP) — Health Minister Dennis Cocke told the Canadian Psychiatric Association Thursday it's high time some of the country's professionals — "some of the lofty citizens" — took a stand on community problems such as high-rise living, day care and family breakups caused by wilderness jobs in mining or logging.

Cocke said the psychiatric profession and the various health departments across the country "have a real responsibility to give leadership in reforming the environment, that is, the climate in which people live."

He said the provinces have a responsibility to create a decent living environment along with the development of industry.

"We're heavily dependent in British Columbia on the resource industries. We've harvested minerals in this province and we've harvested, also, a fantastic number of problems and human difficulties."

He said occupations such as logging and mining often separate families. The men are off in the bush with no women or children to talk to and the women are at home somewhere trying to single-handedly bring up a family.

"I believe that the chaos and emotional illness that this causes should give us some cause to think about what we might do to reduce the impact of this sort of thing on the people."

The health minister said there was a lack of emphasis on prevention in this particular area.

He said it was absurd to treat people suffering from environment-related problems, only to discharge them back into the same situation.

Cocke said another set of problems springs from the density of city living.

"Some way or another we're going to have to create green areas," he said. "We're going to have to create boundaries — and I don't mean to contain cities so that they go straight up but that maybe they have to jump over the boundaries to create a new one (city) so that the density doesn't become so bad."

He said the B.C. government is discussing the density-limit proposal.

Cocke said he was aware of studies by psychiatrists on the effects of living in high-rise apartments. "I hope that those studies begin to come out and are made public so that we can get an idea of whether we are creating a monster."

He said members of the psychiatric profession are listened to by the general public and they should take advantage of that.

"Who's doing all the talking about day care? Not you. At least I haven't heard you," he told the 500 psychiatrists attending the convention.

On the other side of the coin, he said, there are mothers who shouldn't be looking after children because of their natures.

Cocke said the problems he mentioned were perhaps considered peripheral "but may be if we did a little more research we'd find them quite central."

"We can strive to give some leadership, we can help groups plan."

Cocke said it was a psychiatrist who came up with the current No. 1 advertising slogan: "You're not getting older, you're getting better."

He suggested that psychiatrists take the lead in other, more constructive areas.

He said there were only 170 psychiatrists in B.C. and that psychiatric nurses should be given more responsibilities than they currently have.

Federal Health Minister Marc Lalonde told the conference there still are serious inadequacies in Canada's health care system, particularly in the quality, availability and accessibility of diagnostic and treatment services for geographically and socially isolated groups.

In a speech to the Canadian Psychiatric Association annual convention, Lalonde said the incidence of persons suffering from psychiatric or emotional disorders—but not in hospital or receiving treatment—is estimated at about one in 10 of the population.

FOILED BY HIS FRECKLES?

Bob . . . and freckles

DETROIT — Robert Driskell, a would-be city busdriver, is afraid his freckles may keep him out of a job.

He filed a complaint Thursday with a city civil rights office, saying his job interview at the Detroit Streets and Railways office was almost entirely devoted to a conversation about his freckles.

"He started off by asking me did I ever think about getting my freckles to 'blend in'," Driskell said of the interviewer, who wrote on Driskell's exam form: "Excessive noticeable freckles."

"I told him I thought it (the blending) would look kind of funny. He said they (the freckles) might hinder me getting a job," Driskell said.

State Control Under NDP, Asper Warns

Times News Services

WINNIPEG — Manitoba Liberal leader Izzy Asper campaigning in the June 28 provincial election said Thursday that while the NDP government "has done good things" is Manitoba over the past four years, the price has been too high.

Speaking to about 75 garment workers, Asper said many people came to Canada to escape state control, but "this government is leading us this way — with state takeovers of businesses, industries, housing."

Tory leader Sidney Spivak said, meanwhile, that the NDP government is taking farmers "back to the feudal system" through its use of the Manitoba Agriculture credit corporation.

The Schreyer government has changed the corporation from "an instrument to assist and encourage independent family farms to an instrument of growing government control and ownership," he said.

A Tory government after the general election would make every effort to keep the original owner on the farm, he added, and if foreclosure was unavoidable, the farm would be sold to another independent farmer.

Premier Schreyer, speaking in Somerset, said a program to guarantee adequate ambulance service in both rural and urban areas would be the next step in the provision of health services if his New Democrats were returned to power.

"Our government would be willing to make funds available to provide new ambulance units to any municipal government where the present number of units is below standard requirements," he said.

"In addition, we would negotiate some form of cost-sharing agreement for the operation of any non-profit ambulance service."

BOOST ON WAY

OTTAWA (CP) — The basic rate for a single, full-disability, armed forces pensioner would be raised more than $900 a year under a bill introduced in the Commons Thursday.

The changes to the Pension Act will increase the basic annual pension to $4,704 from $3,793. The new rate corresponds to the average salary, after income tax, of five categories of unskilled employees in the public service.

The bill would raise the basic rate for married pensioners with 100-per-cent disability to $5,880, an increase of $1,047.

Widow's pensions would be increased by $56 a month, raising the annual benefit to $3,528.

Provincial Involvement Urged in Science Report

OTTAWA (CP) — Provincial involvement is essential to development of a fruitful national science policy, the Science Council of Canada said in its seventh annual report today.

"Canada . . . has long been aware of the difficulty of producing national policies of any sort, whether they be for energy or agriculture or whatever," Council chairman Roger Gaudry said in his section of the 48-page report.

"Such national policies must attempt to encompass all of the differing needs, goals, aspirations and priorities perceived in the various regions across the country."

This, Gaudry said, is a fact of political life, which applies to science policy as readily as any other policy affecting the public.

The council has argued in past years that an effective national science policy should consist of a multiplicity of science policies, each reflecting regional needs within the framework of a national perspective.

"Each of Canada's provinces needs to give thought to the way in which science and technology will affect the future development of the province and the way of life of its citizens.

"To cope with technological change, the province needs to be informed about technological change and its potential ramifications . . ."

Provincial organizations dealing with science — as opposed to science policy — have existed for some time. Quebec became a leader when it formed a cabinet-level science policy committee in March, 1971. It took another step forward with the formation of an advisory science policy council in January, 1972.

Gov't Firm on Price Gap

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Canadian government intends to hold the automobile companies to their commitment with the respect to narrowing the price gap between cars sold in the United States and those sold in Canada.

Industry Trade and Commerce Minister Alastair Gillespie told the Commons Thursday of his determination to see to it that the differential between the prices of cars sold in Canada and in the U.S. is further reduced.

Questions were asked in the House concerning the disclosure by Roy Bennett, president of Ford Motor Company of Canada, that the retail price for 1974 model Ford cars in this country will be an average of $175 higher than the 1973 models.

He also claimed that Ford's total marketing costs are 20 per cent higher because of the existence of two official languages in Canada. He made the statements at a luncheon press conference here Wednesday. He said bilingualism was another factor contributing to the higher cost of doing business in Canada.

Outside the House Thursday Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said the time has come for a detailed and careful assessment of the automotive agreement by a parliament committee.

In the House he asked Gillespie the government's position regarding the 15 per cent Canadian tariff on motor cars and whether a reduction or elimination of the tariff is now under discussion with the United States.

Gillespie said he could not add to the comments he has made on previous occasions with respect to the auto pact talks between Canada and the U.S. He said he believed the talks are now back on the rail. He hoped soon to have further information.

Stanfield inquired about the proposed measure with regard to the reduction in corporate tax rates. It received second reading in the House Wednesday.

He said he asked the question in view of the statement by the president of Ford Motor Company of Canada who had said he was uncertain whether the proposed corporate tax cut would in fact reduce the price gap.

Gillespie replied:

"I intend to hold the automobile companies to their commitment with respect to the 1973 model year and with respect to their commitment to meet the government's objective of further narrowing the differential in the 1974 model year."

ITT $1M POWER PLAY RAPPED

WASHINGTON (WP) — The International Telephone and Telegraph Co. "overstepped the lines of acceptable corporate behavior" in seeking covert Central Intelligence Agency intervention in Chile's 1970 presidential election.

So concluded the senate foreign relations subcommittee on multi-national corporations in a report on ITT's unsuccessful campaign to block the election of Marxist candidate Salvador Allende.

Subcommittee chairman Frank Church (D—Idaho) said, however, that there was nothing illegal in ITT's offer of $1 million to the CIA to finance Allende's opposition in 1970. Church nonetheless said he was "very much disturbed" by the conduct both of ITT and the CIA in Chile.

The report was accompanied by proposed legislation which would make it a crime for an American citizen or resident to offer money to U.S. agencies in order to influence the outcome of a foreign election. Solicitation of such contributions by government officials would also become a crime under the proposed measure.

Incest Not Uncommon: Psychiatrist

VANCOUVER (CP) — The amount of incest in Canada "is considerably more than we have thought," Dr. George Molnar, a psychiatrist at St. Joseph's Hospital, Hamilton said Thursday.

Dr. Molnar said he couldn't give figures because no national survey had been conducted. But he said from his own studies and reports from random places in Canada, he estimated the incidence at "four times more than that of the battered child."

He said incidents don't usually come to light until the girls "became aware of social pressures and of their own sexuality and could contrast the family mores with the moral code prevailing in the community."

No Gas Ads

NEW YORK (AP) — Mobil Oil Corp. said Thursday it is discontinuing gasoline advertising, including television and radio commercials. The company said it would direct its efforts instead to public information concerning fuel conservation.

THERE'S GOLD under those scales — the first shipment of coho to hit the city fish markets. The season opened June 15 and boats are coming in early with better-than-average catches for this time of year and the fishermen are coming home to better-than-ever prices. Local fish buyers are paying 72 cents a pound for prime coho. The opening price last year was 45 cents. At left there was a lineup at the B.C. Packers depot at Ogden Point and at right — coho destined for the fresh and canned fish market. Fishermen usually make 10-day trips. (Photos by Bill Halkett).

Judge Rebuffs Lawyer

The lawyer for three nuns sitting in at St. Mary's Priory was rebuffed in a Supreme Court ruling today, latest development in the struggle for control of the Society of the Love of Jesus.

Judge M. L. Drake emphatically dismissed a motion made Wednesday by Hugh McMillan, counsel for the three sisters, which sought a ruling giving them and two supporting sisters in Mill Bay control of the society.

The five sisters had launched a suit against another faction in the society in the dispute which has been under way close to 10 years.

McMillan had argued the other faction had failed to respond to his writ and statement of claim. But he also told Judge Drake that the documents outlining his case (which must be served on the defendant) had been served at the society's registered office, the priory, where the only residents are the three sisters.

In effect, copies of the plaintiffs' case intended for the defendant had been served on the plaintiff.

In his judgment today Judge Drake said "apart from expressing astonishment at the conduct of the plaintiffs' solicitor in bringing this motion at all in these circumstances, I say only that such service was not good service; and the cost of this motion will be paid by the solicitor personally."

Cecil Branson, counsel for the society, said he had been completely unaware of McMillan's moves in the matter, despite the fact McMillan knew Branson's firm was representing the society.

The society will be entering a defence to the claims made by the other side and will be presenting counter-claims. It appears the entire dispute will be taken to court to be settled once and for all, he said.

In statements supporting his motion, McMillan described his clients as the "traditional" faction in the society and the other side as the "modern" faction.

He described the differences in viewpoint between the two and claimed the "traditional" faction has been unable to continue the work the society was organized to conduct, care of the elderly and infirm.

Boy, 14, Leads Wild Chase

A 70-m.p.h. chase through Colwood and Langford Thursday night ended when police arrested a 14-year-old Victoria boy for theft and dangerous driving.

The chase, which covered 25 miles in 25 minutes, started when Colwood RCMP spotted a stolen car on the Trans-Canada Highway near Helmcken at 10:45 p.m.

"We dodged in and out of passing motorists and quite a few cars had to pull way off to the side of the road," said one of the policemen involved in the chase.

The boy was put in the juvenile detention home overnight and was to appear in juvenile court today.

The chase took police along the Trans-Canada to Burnside, to Tillicum, Gorge, Admirals and Craigflower, then to the Old Island Highway and to Atkins Road in Langford.

"After he got into Langford, he drove around and around the streets in circles for about 15 minutes until we finally got him," the policeman said.

At Deville Road and Atkins, the boy stopped the car, jumped out and was grabbed by police officers.

A police car parked across the road at Florence Lake Road failed to stop the speeding car. A police spokesman said the car was parked in such a way as to let the boy around it "if there was no way he was going to stop."

$40,000 for James Bay 'Horizons'

A community centre — for young and old — may become a reality because of a $40,000 New Horizon's grant to the James Bay New Horizons Group.

The grant, largest to any single group from Thunder Bay west, is for 18 months and includes money for a survey to find a permanent home. All told, Greater Victoria groups received $77,703 out of a total $1.4 million.

Also locally:

New Horizons Craft Village Committee was given $19,108 to open a store staffed by elderly discharged mental patients. The store will sell handicrafts made by former mental patients and will later be expanded to include crafts made by the physically handicapped.

The core group is composed of 21 elderly former mental patients. The project is sponsored by the mental health association.

The New Horizons Gordon Head $12,000 will be used for a retirement activity centre at Gordon Head Parish Church at Tyndall and San Juan.

And also, $6,595 for recreation equipment to the Colwood 60-and-up Club.

The 155 undertakings affecting more than 19,000 people in four provinces were approved to help retired persons benefit themselves and their community.

In supporting need for a drop-in or community centre, group president Gordon Stewart said there are 3,000 retired persons living in James Bay, and the only place available for meetings is the basement of James Bay United Church, 511 Michigan.

The group has access to the hall until fall when church activities will require space.

In a budget presented with its application for the $40,000 grant, the group designated $5,100 for rent, utilities, maintenance and telephone, and $2,000 for a survey aimed at finding a permanent home.

There is $11,350 earmarked for staff including a co-ordinator and office help, $4,500 for a cookery and home economics program, $2,700 for gardening and beautification, $3,500 for contingencies, $2,800 for miscellaneous and $2,000 for recreation projects.

Stewart objected to remarks attributed to Victoria Ald. Tom Christie at a finance committee meeting, about two weeks ago. Christie criticized plans for a new community school, indicating there were plenty of recreation facilities.

"You show me where we have recreation facilities galore in James Bay or any other place," Stewart said. "That's why we're meeting here.

"Three of us searched this area from Douglas Street to the waterfront and couldn't find a place to suit this group.

"I think we have a wealth of brains in this group . . . maybe Mr. Christie could come down for a little night school," the president remarked.

"We are a large force in James Bay and I think we should make our opinions heard," said Mrs. Kay Ransom, chairman of the Green Thumb gardening club who also urged a drop in centre for young and old.

Plans by her group include a clean-up-paint-up campaign throughout the district. "There are a lot of places that can be cleaned up, including places owned by the city," she said, citing the front of Safeway store on Simcoe.

The six-months-old New Horizons group lists among its objectives:

Compilation of a history of James Bay, organization of walking and bus tours, discussion groups, services to the housebound and handicapped, low cost transportation and a regular newsletter.

Stalling Charged On $10M Fund For Recreation

Times Staff

Oak Bay MLA Dr. G. Scott Wallace today accused the provincial government of using delaying tactics in administering its $10 million fund to help municipalities in building sports complexes.

Alarmed at Recreation Minister Jack Radford's announcement that technical and advisory committees will be set up soon, Wallace attempted to see the minister today.

He had urged Oak Bay council to move quickly when the municipality applied for a $333,000 grant after the fund was announced in February. It was on the assumption that the provincial grant would be made that the council went ahead with plans to build a $1.6 million sports complex without going to referendum.

Mayor Frances Elford said today the provincial government's dallying was "inexcusable".

Wallace said that instead of getting an appointment with Radford he was "referred to his executive assistant."

"There's no question of the applications being dealt with in a chronological manner," Wallace said, "the fact that Oak Bay had its application in quick like a bird dog in February doesn't mean a damn thing."

He said the technical committee was to be set up next week and the advisory committee the week following.

"I was told the technical committee would require all sorts of information," Wallace said, "size, shape, construction, whether there's frills or too many frills.

"Oak Bay hasn't been asked for anything, yet I understand all this information could be provided overnight, more or less. This could turn out to be simply a delaying factor."

He said Oak Bay should keep in close contact with department officials dealing with the fund.

"We don't want to be told Aug. 1 (the date Radford has said the first announcements of grants will be made) that the technical committee doesn't have enough information."

Wallace said he was told that the advisory committee would be "landed with the job of deciding which municipalities would be granted money from the fund."

WALLACE

He said he was unable to find out whether the applications already amount to more than the $10 million in the fund.

"He refused to disclose the answer to that question," Wallace said. "I'm beginning to wonder if we have as open a government as Premier Barrett tells us we have."

He decried the amount of government handling involved before grants can be made.

"It has to go from the technical committee to the advisory committee and then to the minister. There is a great deal more bureaucracy involved than was mentioned when the bill was first introduced in the house," he commented.

He'll Run Bureau For Half the Price

The founder-operator of Victoria Rental Aid service has renewed his offer to assume control of a landlord-tenant advisory bureau for half the current estimated annual cost of $12,000.

Jim Nelson made his offer in a letter to Community Council director Garth Homer, with copies to Saanich, Esquimalt, Oak Bay, Victoria and Sidney, and to Lorne Nicolson, provincial minister responsible for housing.

The Community Council is directing a landlord-tenant advisory service on behalf of Victoria city during 1973 for a budget of $12,854. Costs would rise only marginally with the entry of other Greater Victoria municipalities.

Some form of landlord-tenant advisory and complaint-chasing service must be provided by all municipalities this year according to new provincial legislation.

Nelson, who runs a voluntary service designed to help the poor and elderly obtain rental accommodation of acceptable standard, claims to have expertise in the landlord-tenant field generally.

His previous offer to take on the additional work of an advisory bureau for $6,000 was rejected, he said, without being placed before Greater Victoria Intermunicipal Committee.

If the offer is not acceptable to all municipalities, Nelson suggests, then the province should set up a bureau to deal with rental disputes and other housing matters.

Nelson said his offer to serve would cover Central Saanich and the unorganized areas of Colwood, Langford, Metchosin, Glen Lake and Sooke in addition to the areas named.

Service would include information, advice, investigations, court assistance, research, data collection, rental aid and reports to municipalities at least every six months, Nelson said.

The service would be offered to landlords and tenants on a seven-days-a-week basis.

Freight Ferry Returns Tonight

Canadian Pacific's freight ferry Carrier Princess is expected to be back in service tonight after a two-day layoff for repairs to a propeller.

The propeller hit a log near Active Pass on Wednesday and the ferry was able to return to Vancouver under her own power. She was repaired at Burrard Dry Dock.

The ferry has been in operation for three weeks. She carries trucks and some passenger cars between Swartz Bay and Burrard Inlet.

Inquest Ordered in Crash

An inquest has been ordered into the deaths of four Burnaby persons killed Wednesday when their light aircraft crashed in Sidney.

Sidney district coroner Gordon Gerrie said today a date will be set after transport ministry officials have completed an investigation.

Each couple is survived by three children.

Anderson, owner and pilot of the Cessna 170, was an accountant for Hoffars Ltd., a Burnaby marine-engine firm. Sondrup was president and manager of Western Sash and Doors, also in Burnaby.

Battered Child Is Everyone's Concern

elizabeth forbes

Early in January this year, Health Minister Dennis Cocke and Human Resources Minister Norman Levi announced a new study of child abuse in this province—with emphasis on prevention.

In connection with that study, Cocke and Levi said it was intended to prepare a profile of a typical child beater, in an effort to assist in spotting such men and women.

In stark white letters on a black background it claims the most significant thing about an abusing parent is how much like ourselves they are.

They come from all walks of life and from rural communities as well as cities.

They are often successful people who hold good jobs and keep neat and clean homes. And, contrary to general belief they are seldom terribly sadistic people.

Many cope very well outside the home. It is in the interaction between themselves and their children that the problem arises.

The brochure goes on to say that in most instances, abusing parents were found to have been themselves abused as children. "If they have not actually suffered physical abuse, they will have often grown up in a home with parents who were overdemanding, critical and very controlling."

In other words: "As children they felt unloved and undeserving of love."

It says abusing parents are often people who are socially isolated, who have few real friends and who are not active in their community.

Most are easily frustrated and when frustration builds up in their daily life, they are more likely to injure their children.

They have very poor control over their impulses. They usually have unreasonably high expectations of their children and expect them to respond in ways far beyond their stage of development.

When the child is unable to respond to those unnatural demands he is seen by such parents as wilfully ignoring their wishes. The parent then feels justified in the punishment inflicted.

This revealing treatise presents the belief that abusing parents do not perceive their infant as an infant, but rather as an organized human being — almost an adult.

Many such parents seem constantly angry. Others may appear very submissive and dependent. They tend to react to most confrontations with strong denial, anger, tears, perhaps even withdrawal.

They also tend to be highly mobile, moving to different neighborhoods and "shopping" among doctors, to avoid detection.

In the pamphlet the department of human resources reminds us that "abuse of a child is seldom limited to a single instance. If the first and perhaps relatively mild incident is not discovered, the incidents that follow will get worse. One of these may be fatal."

It tells us too, that abused children tend to repeat the same pattern of abuse when they in turn become parents.

In order to institute a firm and lasting program of prevention, all instances of child abuse must be reported.

Right now, known cases of such abuse are estimated by the human resources department to be less than one-third of the actual cases.

It then goes on to say the greatest tragedy is that the majority of battered children are infants under three years.

"Of these, most are under one year of age, and totally dependent for nurture and protection on the very people at whose hands they are suffering."

It gives a description of a battered child as "any child who is physically mistreated and on whom unjustifiable physical pain is inflicted or who is subject to any cruel or inhuman punishment or non-accidental injury."

The pamphlet concludes with a statement that it has been designed to be used by people in the best positions to detect and prevent child abuse in British Columbia—doctors, social workers, teachers, hospital personnel, etc.

However, it does present sections of the Protection of Children Act that deal with physical ill-treatment or need for protection of a child, and with reporting such incidents.

And it urges that if "anyone is in doubt as to whether any circumstance they witness constitutes child abuse, for the child's sake, make a report and let us make the decision."

I suggest that word anyone means you . . . you . . . and you!

In Victoria, such a report can be made by contacting the Children's Aid Society, the department of human resources or the social welfare office. The last two will be found under "B.C. Government" in the phone book.

The pamphlet clearly states that since reporting abuse or neglect is required by the Act, the person reporting is fully covered against any legal action against him.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Drinker Needs Drying

In that fine journal, Traffic Safety, I find an interestng review of the book Alcoholism and Driving, by Dr. Carl Bridge, published by Charles Thomas of Springfield, Ill.

The author conducted driving-while-intoxicated examinations, made under New Hampshire's new law, and reported a study of 200 drivers randomly selected from hundreds of drivers arrested for driving when intoxicated. At least 175 of the cases were rated upon examination as ranging from moderately to markedly intoxicated, and those tested had relatively high blood alcohol concentration. Interestingly, most of them had a record of drinking that bordered on alcoholism, and many had long records of alcoholism.

Albert Hugunin, a traffic safety specialist, hopes that many traffic court judges, drivers' license peple and traffic police will read this book and find some way of helping heavy drinkers to avoid serious accidents.

As he points out Bridge's study showed that the average drunk driver is at least a problem drinker, if not a full-blown alcoholic; they were more involved in the use of alcohol than mere social drinkers.

Obviously, then, the alcoholic driver should be removed from the highway, and as Mr. Hugunin says, such a person should not be allowed to drive until he has been dry long enough to recover good judgment — at least a year or more.

In the same interesting journal I see a picture of a device developed by General Motors which is designed to prevent a drunken driver from starting his car. Before he can turn on the ignition, he has to make a certain needle on a dial move over to a certain place. If the driver's reactions are impaired, the needle swings back and forth outside the designated area, a red "reset" button lights up, and the starter will not work. The man then has two more chances to pass the test.

If the driver is able to keep the needle in the centre area, the "pass" button lights up and the car may be started. Sober drivers can quickly do this in 10 secods or so, but half of the would-be drivers who had been drinking failed the test, and so they could not start their car.

Another interesting device shown in the journal is a breath tester which one can hold in one's hand and which will tell a driver quickly if he has a dangerous amount of alcohol in his breath. If I were a heavy drinker and was stil driving a car, I would immediately buy one of these little meters.

People interested in the journal of the National Safety Council, Traffic Safety, can write to 425 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Convicts Log 'Slave' Lake

HANEY (CP) — Thirty prisoners from the Haney Correctional Institute call it the Slave Lake project.

But along with the 12-hour shifts of hard labor, prisoners get weekend passes, the privilege of camping by the lakeside in unlocked trailers and what one prison official describes as some of the best food around.

The prisoners are logging a forest of dead trees exposed by the low water level of Stave Lake, which was created in 1911 when a dam and power plant were built near this Fraser Valley community.

The salvageable logs are sent to a sawmill built by the convicts 20 miles away and lumber is supplied to government agencies at low cost.

The Stave Lake work crew is clearing the lake with a view to creating a recreational area under the direction of the British Columbia Forest Service. The workers are paid a dollar a day.

Bill Davis, forestry liaison officer, says in about three years a channel will be marked with log booms and boaters will be able to navigate without difficulty through what now is the tangle of stumps and deadheads.

Davis said prisoners with the Stave Lake logging experience behind them can expect to find good job prospects when released.

He estimates the clearing project will take another five or six years. Some of the trees are tackled by workers on rafts with chain saws. Others are blasted and dragged into piles at the camp.

Long-Handled Back Brush Best for Father's Bathing

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are in disagreement about something. He wants my two well-developed teenage daughters (his stepdaughters) to come into the bathroom and wash his back while he is in the tub.

I would be happy to wash his back, but Dad prefers that they do it. They reluctantly, have done so in the past but I have told them that they don't have to do it anymore. This has caused ill-feelings on my husband's part. He thinks that because he has provided them with a lovely home they should show their appreciation by washing his back when he requests it.

Your answer will decide. Against It.

DEAR AGAINST: I'm against it too. The girls can show their appreciation to Dad on Father's Day, by providing him with a lovely long-handled brush with which to wash his own back.

DEAR ABBY: I am getting married soon and everything is going smoothly except for one thing. My grandmother is going to wear a white dress! From what I understand from knowledgeable friends, it is an unwritten rule of etiquette that only the bride may wear white. Have you ever heard of this rule? And where did it come from?

My grandmother is getting on in years and I don't want to upset her or hurt her feelings, so how do you suggest I approach her—if at all? Getting Married.

DEAR GETTING: That rule originated years ago to discourage anyone who might try to upstage the bride. It's passe now. But it's not likely that your grandmother has that in mind, so simmer down and don't mention it.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By SYDNEY OMARR
Forecast for Saturday, June 23

ARIES (March 21 - April 19): Cycle is high — take initiative. Problem could arise from one who is envious. But you cannot be restrained — it is necesary to find outlet for feelings, creative urges. Those who try to thwart you may be in for rude awakening.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20): You may be going too fast for your own good. Pay heed to advice of family member. Give yourself time to collect thoughts, time to adjust to different home conditions. Libra, Aries persons figure prominently.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20): Relationship that had been "calm" is likely to become aggressive. Events occur at rapid pace. Find time to be selective. Choose what is constructive. Otherwise, you may pay dear price. Message will become clear.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22): You get opposition but you also obtain results. You are regarded as formidable. Those who previously may have dismissed your efforts now take a second look. Take long-range view. Money, investments are involved.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22): You finish assignment. You get rid of emotional burden. You are "released." You begin to know yourself. Member of opposite sex is involved. Don't play games. You could be hurt. Protect your interests. Avoid making too many promises.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22): New approach to tax question, investment proposal is in order. One who claims to know best is only half certain. Heed your own counsel. Don't risk something for nothing. What you have earned should not be dissipated.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): Much that had been planned is subject to revision. Don't fear change. Be willing to tear down in order to rebuild. Nothing is going to come easy — but what you do now will be worthwhile. Know it and proceed.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov 21): Accent is on basic isues, relations with those who share your interests, work. Your assignment is due to change. What had been undercover comes out into open. Not wise to try keeping secrets. Mix socially. Turn on charm.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21): Lunar aspect is such that you could be involved in lovers' quarrel. Emotions run up and down — strive for balance, moderation. Be aware of details, even those which may appear insignificant. Avoid saying "Never!"

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): Activity centres around home base. Plans are not stable. Gemini, Pisces persons are in picture. One in position of authority acts in unpleasant manner. Key is to be analytical. Get all sides of story.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): Avoid rushing, especially while in traffic. Control temper. Don't write letter in anger. Accent is on how you deal with neighbors, relatives. Short journey is on agenda. Efforts tend to be scattered. Get second wind.

Pisces (Feb. 19 - March 20): You may be pressed to make money decision. Wait. Refuse to be emotionally stampeded. You require additional information. Trust your own judgment now, not views of those willing to take risks — at your expense.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have abundance of intellectual curiosity. Writing is constructive outlet for your emotional energies. You draw to you many born under Gemini and Sagittarius. In August, you could be having glorious vacation or you could be travelling, more so than usual. If single, marriage is on horizon.

Fish and shellfish are among our country's most valuable natural resources. Few other foods can be prepared in so many different ways and none is such a boon for the diet-conscious.

The 10-page illustrated folder "Favorite Fish 'n' Seafood Recipes" presents some delectable quick and easy recipes. Each one was approved for taste and nutritional value by consumer consultaants of the Fisheries Service, Environment Canada.

Among the tempting dishes is 'Cioppino,' an economical, tasty fish stew which is prepared from cod, haddock or other fillets. Another out-of-the-ordinary recipe, 'Atlantic Snow Crab Casserole,' can be made in advance and refrigerated till baking time.

Pilot Wildlife Project Praised by Educators

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

School board officials and principals today praised two young women for their wildlife educational pilot project presented to more than 10,000 pupils in the Greater Victoria and up-island school districts.

The project, initiated by Clio Matheson and Jan Broadland, involved bringing live animals and birds into the schools and with the help of slides and tape recorders teaching young people the importance of conservation.

Sponsored by a Local Initiative Program grant, the project started in January. Since then Quebec has launched a similar presentation for its schools.

Victor Thomson, director of instruction in the Greater Victoria school district curriculum department, said the two women deserved commendation for their work.

"When you can keep an auditorium full of Grade 4 pupils in wrapt attention for a whole hour, you are getting your message through," he said. "It is an excellent project."

Irvine Dawson, principal of Monterey school, said the project was an unqualified success.

Mrs. Matheson and Mrs. Broadland usually go to a school with only one or two animals, such as an owl and a fox, or a badger and porcupine.

The owl, leashed and jessed (blindfolded) sits at ease on Matheson's first while she tells pupils what the bird is and the role it plays in nature. Slides are also shown depicting its habitat and various threatened areas of the species environment. A question and discussions period follows.

Children are also told how they can help save animals.

The animals used in the presentations have either been injured at one time or orphaned and turned over for care.

Speaking on their project, Matheson and Broadland explain the main purpose of the presentation is to stimulate an interest in conservation and wildlife.

"The ideal environmental-study area is the out-of-doors, but the desire to get out and find out must first be aroused, and this is the whole purpose of this program," said Matheson.

An education program to be successful has to get away from artificial ways of teaching," she added. "Children must be made to see, feel, smell and listen.";

Matheson pointed out that modern man is unprepared to cope with serious environmental problems because he has lost touch with his origins as an animal and as an integral part of the natural world.

"The recent urbanization of mankind has meant that values have changed," she said. "Of prime importance to the average man today is urban materialism. The countryside has lost its significance.

She observed that in pioneering days children were surrounded by objects they could see, feel and smell. Birth and death were real. Silence and birdsong were things heard from birth.

She pointed out that all this is reversed for the child of today. Food comes to his table, packaged and repackaged, divorced from its source, air conditioning or central heating provides his climate for much of the day.

"The inter-relationships between man and animal that children once absorbed without conscious and thought had been denied them by their city environment," she said. The vacuum is filled by TV jingles half heard and misapplied.

As an example, she pointed out that children no longer appreciate the scavenging service provided by ants. To them ants are bugs ... you spray them ... pow ... zap ...

Matheson would like to see natural history taught in junior grades and the formation of nature clubs within schools which are also opened to parents

She said in Britain this has been started.

"It is important that we have a properly educated public so that knowledgeable decision can be made on environmental and ecological issues," she added. "It is the only way we can understand what is at stake."

Matheson and Broadland hope to be able to carry their project to summer camps and playgrounds this summer.

Consumers Branch Seeks Bright Minds

By WAYNE HARDING
Times Staff

A corps of consumer advocates is seen as part of the new department of consumer affairs by Phyllis Young, the woman who will probably be its first minister.

Recently named to the cabinet as minister without portfolio responsible for consumer affairs, Ms. Young is in charge of organizing the new department. It will officially come into being with legislation to be introduced in either the fall or spring sessions of the legislature.

In an interview, Ms. Young said consumer advocates "most definitely" would be retained by the new department.

"Your criticism may be that most lawyers are not too imaginative. But there are a few who are and those people are the ones that I'm looking to be of assistance — the young, dynamic, committed, well-motivated and talented lawyers who would like to spend maybe a couple of years — not as a full-time long-range thing — to work for such a department so that they could get a thorough grounding in a lot of things," she explained.

She said such advocates could be retained either on an annual basis or for specific cases.

Class Actions

Young said she would encourage these lawyers to pursue so-called class action suits — those taken on behalf of large groups of consumers wronged. In general, she said she would like to see more class actions pursued as a method of consumer protection.

The core of the new department will probably be the present Consumer Affairs Office, a bureau of four civil servants who now operate under the attorney-general's department, she said.

Already Young works with Michael Hanson who has headed that office since it was created in 1970.

She refers consumer complaints to Hanson and, although he is still technically responsible to the attorney-general, he reports to her on his investigations and follow up.

YOUNG

But the consumer affairs office will require much bolstering both in authority and in staff, Young said.

She believes the department should have power to initiate its own investigations. This would be an extension of the present authority of the Consumer Affairs Officer who is empowered only to act on specific formal complaints.

"I don't think the department would mean anything if we didn't have these investigative powers.

"If you find a situation that keeps recurring then, I think, you need investigators to go in there and nail down the evidence and take the perpetrator to court. In many cases it's been our experience, at the present time the only thing we can offer a person who has been rooked is the advice to seek legal advice."

Young hopes to present the bill creating the new department to the legislature this fall. With it will come new and broader consumer protection law.

"I think we're going to have to move into some areas that are beginning to create problems. But the thing that we wish to avoid, if possible, is having to write legislation to deal with every problem that arises ... because invariably new schemes are thought up by ingenious people and therefore you have to write a new act to stop each nefarious practice.

"Conceivably we could end up with 3,000 pieces of legislation to stop 3,000 dishonest practices."

She noted that Saskatchewan has an act which has one "umbrella paragraph" which give the minister the right, through court orders, to stop trade practices that, in his opinion, are injurious to the public.

Slogan Outdated

"Let the buyer beware" is a slogan that belongs to the 19th century, the new minister believes. Modern technology has put the buyer at a disadvantage and it is the responsibility of the government to give him protection in that circumstance.

"It's not a case of holding anyone's hand," she said.

If merchandisers do not accept the government's philosophy of responsibility in the marketplace, the merchandisers "are going to have to change," she said.

However, she does not see the prospect of "constant friction" between the government and the merchandising trades as a result of the new department's aggressive policies.

But she recognizes that "there will be cases where you'll have to take one or two of the more flagrant abuses of trade practices to court and the rest of the industry, whatever industry it is, gets the message."

Computer May Forecast Health

VANCOUVER (CP) — In a few years, a person may be asked to fill out a form about his living habits and a computer will work out his chances of staying healthy for the next 10 years.

Doctors at the joint meeting of the Canadian and British Medical Associations this week are being asked to fill out test forms to help evaluate a computerized program that does just that.

The health protection branch of the federal health department is testing a new program that gives an individual a quick chance to see whether he has unknowingly slipped into a life style that is dangerous to his health, said Dr. Harold Colburn of the department's non-medical use of drugs program.

It's not just the one or two things people do, such as smoking or not getting enough exercise, that play havoc with their health, he said. These things interact with one another and with the person's age, with the environmental hazards such as air pollution, and multiply.

Colburn and P. M. Baker, an expert in statistical, computerized surveys, hope they can come up with an easy, quick questionnaire that will help people see the effects of these interacting health hazards and help motivate them to change at least some of them.

Smoking, drinking and lack of exercise are all habits the person himself can modify, for instance, Baker said.

The program still is under development, Colburn said. However, they wanted to show doctors some of the things such a questionnaire can do and get their reactions.

The results aren't tabulated yet, but the written comments from many doctors showed they liked the idea and thought it would be a useful health teaching aid.

At present, the computerized questionaire costs about 25 cents for each appraisal and includes questions that indicate it could be expanded for use during the first visit to a doctor.

The test questionnaire involved 44 questions. The computer then worked out the odds on the person staying healthy for another 10 years — and offers some advice about what the patient could do to improve his chances.

One doctor, who appeared fit, filled out the report and the computer told him that, although he was 62, his body was in the condition of that of a man 52. The chances of a heart attack, severe bout of pneumonia and so on were pretty slim.

Others were told they were overweight and should reduce or they had only an 80-percent chance of staying healthy until 1983.

Some got a shock just to find that what they considered "social drinking" — one drink every day after work — was called "moderately excessive" by a computer programmed on the number of drinks it takes to cause diseased livers, elevated blood pressures and so on.

Goodwill Aides Bring in $1,400

President Mrs. E. T. Lea said the Quita Nichol Auxiliary had donated $1,400 to Goodwill Enterprises for the Handicapped in 1972-73.

Mrs. Lea gave her report at a luncheon meeting and installation of officers held this week. Mrs. Lea was re-elected president.

Other officers installed are: Mrs. Arthur Ashworth, honorary president; Mrs. I. J. Kinsey, first vice-president; Mrs. R. A. Caddell, second vice-president; Mrs. J. S. MacKay, recording secretary; Mrs. Joan Mason-Hurley, corresponding secretary and Mrs. John Forbes, treasurer.

Auditor Slams CBC Pay Without Work Rule

OTTAWA (CP) — The CBC still pays hundreds of thousands of dollars in salaries and wages for work that is never done and employees who are not on duty, George Long, acting auditor-general told the public accounts committee Thursday.

The practice, first reported in 1967, cost $450,000 that year, he said, and the corporation, acting on a public accounts committee recommendation, attempted to eliminate the expenditures in negotiations with the unions in 1969, but were unsuccessful.

The payments, Long said, are caused by re-scheduling, where employees are left with nothing to do when last-minute changes are made in programming. The employees affected by the unforeseen changes are allowed to go home.

He also noted that the CBC reported in 1970 that efforts to eliminate the expenditures through negotiation had failed and the committee again recommended that the corporation attempt to eliminate the practice through negotiation.

Bill Clarke (PC — Vancouver-Quadra) suggested that rather than allowing these employees to go home, attempts should be made to find them different work.

Long said that wasn't always possible. They would have difficulty, he said, re-assigning an electrician.

Barry Mather (NDP — Surrey-White Rock), wondered what the bill would be in 1973 "with inflation and all, if it was $450,000 . . . five years ago."

Time to Assemble Real Garden Pictures

With so many lovely shrubs in bloom, there's fun in redesigning parts of the garden simply by taking a branch of this, a spray of that and even a single specimen of the feature plant, putting them together for effect of foliage, flowers and form.

After years of playing the game, this June I've come up with one of the prettiest pictures of all — if you know the plants you may agree, if you don't, look around in outdoor garden centres and in nurseries to find the plants so that you can make your own decision. In the process of getting around, you will discover others.

Two of the three shrubs are escallonias, both semi-evergreen, tolerant of heavy soils, liking sunshine for at least half of each day and sustaining only minimum tip damage in the hardest of winters in the pas 20 years they have been growing here.

The taller one for background is Escallonia Donard Seedling, growing to a maximum of 10 feet if never pruned, but readily controlled by removing a complete branch from low down in the shrub.

This delightful shrub is blessed with small shining green leaves, but its glory in June is the complete smothering of little flowers, of wide open five parted petals, and its fleeting fragrance. Color is white, flushed with pink.

Every new twig and branch ends in racemes of blossoms, from the ground to the topmost longswaying branches. A delightful shrub through its 20 years from the second year of flowering.

But this year, the idea came to see how it would look with some clear scarlet blossoms of Escallonia C. F. Ball poking through the branches, adding its own clean shining dark green leaves.

The scarlet blooms are not so prolific. New shoots end in one perfect blossom larger than those of Donard Seedling with others tipping each sublateral on the same stem. The two colors are quite charming when mingling.

Not satisfied yet, I took a couple of opening buds from the old rose named Albertine, embedding them in short sprays of the two escallonias which I had massed in a wide clear glass bowl.

Albertine is not really old enough to be tagged as old, being introduced in 1921, but she's old fashioned now because she has only one magnificent flush of bloom in June and the sweet rose fragrance which travels 50 feet. Color is two-tone pink and the form is loosely double. Not a "show" rose by modern standards.

Trained as a climber, though Graham Thomas an English rose authority classifies Albertine as a hybrid tea, this shrub makes a superb background for the two escallonias. Their flowers though tiny have between them the same tints as the rose. The scarlet C. F. Ball brings out the deeper tones of Albertine, while the pink flushing of Donard Seedling brings the two magnificently together.

SOLUTION MONDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

In today's deal, which came up in a team-of-four match, a moment's carelessness by the declarer gave the defenders an opening; and they were quick to capitalize on their opportunity.

Neither side vulnerable. West deals.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ◇	1 ♠	Pass	2 ♡
Pass	2 NT	Pass	4 ♡
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ace of ◇.

When this deal was played the first time, West found the perfect opening lead when he laid down the diamond ace. He then continued with the diamond queen, which was covered by dummy's king. East captured the trick by ruffing.

A club was returned to dummy's ace, after which declarer unthinkingly led a trump and finessed his queen, losing to West's king. West needed no further advantage: he played back a low diamond, which East ruffed with his remaining trump, the nine-spot. Declarer over-ruffed with the jack.

At this point, West's ten of trumps had been promoted into the setting trick, for he had the doubleton 10-4 remaining behind declarer's A-8-6-3.

Declarer was very wrong when he finessed his queen of trumps at trick four. West had opened the bidding in first position. And, as declarer viewed his hand and dummy's, West just about had to have the king of trumps. Without that card, West would not have had the slightest semblance of an opening bid.

At trick four declarer should have spurned the trump finesse; and, instead, should have played the ace of trumps and then followed up by leading the trump queen. West would win the queen with the king, as East's last trump fell. When declarer next regained the lead, he would play his jack of trumps, picking up west's ten-spot. Thus he would fulfill his contract, losing only the diamond ace, the ruff of a diamond, and the heart king.

When the deal was replayed, everything was the same as at the first table, except that declarer realized he had a guaranteed contract by conceding a trick to the king of trumps. He did not finesse, playing instead the ace of trumps, followed by the queen to West's king. In so doing, he demonstrated the technique that separates the men from the boys.

FIGURES FUN WITH

By J. A. H. HUNTER

"Only four figures, and all different," Ted commented. "That's easy to remember. It's just one more than four times what you get if you add together the squares of its two halves."

Stan shook his head. "I don't get it. What halves do you mean?"

"You know," replied Ted. "The first two digits make one, and the last two make the other."

(Answer Monday)

Yesterday's answer: POSTIE was 174953.

Weightlifting Mark

MADRID (AP) — Viktor Alexeed of the Soviet Union set two world records in winning the super heavyweight title during the final day of the European weightlifting championships. He broke his own clean-and-jerk record of 523.6 pounds with a lift of 528 and also raised his standard for over-all total to 918.5 pounds.

FIRST 30 SET TO DIVIDE DRAMA BURSARY

About 30 students so far have accepted a share in the $11,000 scholarship and bursary fund of University of Victoria theatre department.

They will participate in the five-week summer theatre workshop on campus under direction of Esse Ljungh.

It will run from July 3 through Aug. 7, terminating in a full production, student designed and directed, of Hendrik Ibsen's Peer Gynt.

There are still some scholarships available.

Donations to the scholarship fund have made it possible for the students to participate at a cost no greater than $40 each.

Contributing to the fund have been the B.C. government, Vancouver Foundation, Leo and Thea Koerner Foundation and Victoria Foundation.

The university provided $500 for five scholarships out of an unrestricted gift of $4,000 from the Canadian Liquid Air Company and $1,000 was contributed by Rothman's of Pall Mall.

$100 Thief Drove a Rolls

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's inflation apparently hasn't affected the living standards of the country's criminal elements. A thief stole $100 from a suburban London pub Thursday and fled in a silver Rolls-Royce, police said.

PADUA — Two Italian journalists have been acquitted on charges of offending against the state religion with a book based on tape recordings of false confessions to Roman Catholic priests.

The two, Norberto Valentini and Clara di Megalio, were excommunicated after publication of their book, Sex in the Confessinal, based on the recordings of 632 false confessions they made to priests.

The book seemed to indicate that many priests showed a lively interest in hearing intimate and graphic details of Miss di Meglio's supposed sexual experiences. She sometimes posed as an engaged girl and sometimes as a married woman.

A Vancouver alderman, a United Church minister and a native Indian woman, active in social and community work, were named Thursday as new members of the Vancouver Police Commission.

Marjorie Cantryn, Rev. Bob Burrows and Ald. Fritz Powers will join the four existing members, including chairman Mayor Art Phillips, to form an expanded commission.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald, who announced the government appointments, said the commission has been enlarged because of "serious crime problems" in Vancouver.

WASHINGTON — Thirty-five members of the naval ceremonial guard, including 13 men who took part in Monday's White House ceremony welcoming Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev, have been transferred because of alleged marijuana use. The incident marks the third time in two months that navy men assigned jobs near President Nixon have been investigated for marijuana use.

LAKEWOOD, N.Y. — What was a scuba diver doing in a pond at the Maplehurst Country Club at 2 a.m.? Bobbing for golf balls, said police. They said the diver, K. E. Anderson, 38, had retrieved a dozen balls when they caught him. Anderson pleaded guilty to petty larceny and trespassing. He was fined $120.

OTTAWA — Federal Conservative leader Stanfield will tour a port and a penitentiary and open a rodeo during a three-day visit to British Columbia this weekend. Stanfield will tour the British Columbia Penitentiary at New Westminster Friday. Saturday he visits Prince George and Prince Rupert, where he will tour the harbor. He will then visit Smithers and end the day in Terrace. Sunday he will open the Lions Club rodeo there. He returns to Ottawa Monday.

NEW YORK — Designers Stephen Burrows and Calvin Klein have won the 1973 Coty American Fashion Critics award, the Winnie, for outstanding fashion design.

BONN — President Georges Pompidou of France arrived here Thursday for two days of consultations with Chancellor Willy Brandt on problems of mutural interest. The meeting is not expected to produce any dramatic results.

OTTAWA — The private stamp collection of former prime minister Lester Pearson has been turned over to the Post Office department and will eventually be displayed in the new national postal museum to be opened next April. The collection includes mint stamps, first-day covers and commemorative albums from Canada, other countries along with personal messages and inscriptions by Pearson's associates.

WASHINGTON — John Connally has signed off his temporary White House assignment, saying he was "not unhappy about anything," but clearly indicating he wants to pursue his political future on his own. The former Texas governor and recent convert to the Republican party said he hoped to end "by mid-summer at the latest" the post-Watergate advisory role for which President Nixon recruited him last May.

BRILLIANT young pianist, Kowk May-Ling, runner-up to the provincial senior piano champion in Vancouver recently, will be guest soloist Saturday at a concert by Victoria Conservatory of Music Choir. The choir, directed by Gladys Pearcy, is presenting the concert at St. Matthias Church Hall, to raise funds for a trip to Britain this year. The concert starts at 8 p.m.

Mafia Chieftain Arrested in Rome

ROME — Police today arrested Frank (Three Fingers) Coppola, onetime reputed Mafia boss of Kansas City, on charges of engineering an assassination attempt against a high police official.

A police spokesman said officers arrested Coppola, 73, at his comfortable home in suburban Pomezia and took him to Rome's Regina Coeli (Queen of Heaven) prison.

He said an arrest warrant issued by the Rome district attorney's office named Coppola as the alleged instigator of an assassination attempt against Angelo Mangano, a police official in charge of investigating the Mafia.

A gunman ambushed Mangano outside his Roman home April 4, fired several shots at him, jumped into a waiting car and escaped. Mangano, 53, was hit by five bullets in the head, chest and arms. He survived the attack.

Coppola has had repeated brushes with the law since the United States deported him to his native Italy in 1948 as "undesirable." He merged from most of them on the winning side.

WRITERS SICK, SAYS AUTHOR

WINNIPEG — Some 200 members of the Canadian Authors' Association were told Thursday by novelist and editorial writer Shaun Herron that people write because they are sick. "What I'm saying is that if the writer was a well man, he wouldn't write," Herron said. "You don't really write books, you throw up."

Writing is a form of therapy, a self-salvation that is needed to turn the sickness of inner sores into imagination, he said.

"To the writer, people are, in the first instance, material. He takes them, messes them about, mixes them with other people, twists and distorts them for his own purposes . . . into the appearance of the real."

Writers who successfully reveal "interior reality" must firt bring their own interior chaos "under a cruelly ruthless discipline," he added. A serious writer writes his obsessions out of his spirit and into his books.

GM's Rotary Engine on Sale Sept. 1974

DETROIT (WP) — General Motors will market "well over 100,000" Chevrolet Vegas powered by a rotary engine with a controversial cleanup device in its exhaust system, GM president Edward Cole disclosed in an interview here.

The significant number of cars to be mass produced by the world's largest auto company makes the rotary the likeliest successor to the up-and-down piston engine for General Motors and is bound to influence the marketing plans of other auto companies as well.

He predicted GM's version of the rotary will avoid the kind of gas loss experienced on the Japanese Mazda, thanks to the same catalytic converter Detroit auto executives assailed so heartily back in March when they sought a one-year delay in the government's clean air standards for 1975 model year cars.

Looking beyond September, 1974, when the rotary Vega will be for sale, Cole envisioned the brightest future yet for the automobile in contrast to critics who claim its days are numbered because of congestion and pollution problems.

9 IN MEMORIAM

DAVENPORT—In memory of my beloved daughter, Shirley Anne Davenport (nee Brodie) who passed away June 22, 1969.
God looked around His garden,
And found an empty space,
He looked down upon the earth,
And saw your precious face.
He put His arms around you,
And lifted you to rest.
God's garden must be beautiful
He only picks the best.
—Ever in my thoughts. Dearly loved—Mom.

DAVENPORT, SHIRLEY — In loving memory of my sister Shirley who passed away June 22, 1969.
God knows how much we miss her
Never shall her memory fade,
Loving thoughts shall ever wander
To the spot where she is laid.

Movies

Walk Like a Dragon (xx), on 11 at 8. White slavery and racial prejudice in San Francisco of the 1870s forms the plot for this 1960 adventure-drama starring Jack Lord and Mel Torme.

Saboteur (xxx), on 13 at 8. This master of suspense, Alfred Hitchcock, uses all the gimmicks in this excellent Second World War spy story set in Nevada and New York. Made in 1942 it tells about an aircraft-factory worker who attempts to clear himself of sabotage charges and stars Robert Cummings and Pricilla Lane.

The Ipcress File (xxx), on 7 at 9. A 1965 English-made tale of cold-war espionage starring Michael Caine as agent Harry Palmer investigating the kidnapping of British scientists.

Life With Father (xxxx), on 12 at 9. A delightful 1947 screen adaptation of the long-running Broadway play about a New York family in the 1880s starring William Powell, Irene Dunne and Elizabeth Taylor.

The Charge of the Light Brigade (xxx), on 13 at 10. Errol Flynn, Olivia DeHavilland and David Niven star in this exciting 1936 adventure story suggested by Tennyson's poem.

Malaga (xx), on 11 at 11. Two men join forces to rob a titled London celebrity of her famous diamonds in this well-made 1960 crime-drama that stars Trevor Howard, Dorothy Dandridge and Edmund Purdom.

Horrors of the Black Museum (xx), on 7 at 11:30. A gruesome British-made 1959 horror drama about a famous crime writer who provides himself with his own material. Christopher Lee and Betta St. John star.

Something Wild (xx), on 12 at 11:30. A 1961 drama that attempts to portray a rape victim's mental ordeal starring Carroll Baker, Ralph Meeker and Maureen Stapleton.

The Party's Over (xx), on 2 at 11:50. An English-made 1963 tale of London Beatniks and the missing American girl whose fate they try to keep secret starring Oliver Reed and Louise Sorel.

Fahrenheit 451 (xxx), on 8 at midnight. Excellent 1966 adaptation of Ray Bradbury's fascinating science-fiction tale about a futuristic society where all books are forbidden, starring Oskar Werner and Julie Christie.

The Fighting O'Flynn (xx), on 13 at 12:15. Swashbuckling adventure about two Irish agents assigned a secret mission involving the capture of a castle held by Napoleon's agents. Made in 1948 and starring Douglas Fairbanks Jr. and Richard Greene.

The Hucksters (xxx), on 4 at 1. A 1947 adaptation of the best-selling novel about a fast-talking young man who cons his way into a top-paying job with an advertising agency. An excellent cast includes Clark Gable, Ava Garner and Sydney Greenstreet.

The Undead (x), on 7 at 1:15. An experiment sends a scientist back to the Dark Ages in this 1957 thriller starring Pamela Duncan and Richard Garland.

Gammera (xx), on 12 at 1:30. A 1966 Japanese-made melodrama about a giant prehistoric turtle that threatens to destroy the world starring Brian Donlevy and Albert Dekker.

Specials

George Plimpton, on 7 at 8. After briefing from 1971 World Champion Jackie Stewart, George enters the gruelling Mexican 1000 — nearly a thousand miles of rocky Baja California terrain. (60 mins.)

Burns and Schreiber Comedy Hour, on 4 at 10. Comics Jack Burns and Avery Schreiber star in this preview of a new summer series. Guests tonight include Jack Klugman, Valerie Harper and Ike and Tina Turner. (60 mins.)

In Concert, on 4 at 11:30. Down-home rock and roll, soul and folk music featuring The Edgar Winter Group, the Doobie Brothers, Jim Croce and War. (90 mins.)

Midnight Special, on 5 at 1. The Bee Gees play host to Wilson Pickett, the Steve Miller Band, rock artist John Kay, and pop singers Jimmy Spheeris and Maxine Weldon. (90 mins.)

Early Saturday Movies

Dawn at Socorro (xx), on 13 at 11:25. Rory Calhoun and Piper Laurie star in this 1954 western about a gunfighter-gambler who falls for a dance-hall girl.

Surrender (x), on 11 at 12:30. A corny 1950 costume drama about a woman involved in bigamy and murder starring John Carroll and Vera Ralston.

The Bank Dick (xxxx), on 13 at 12:55. W. C. Fields, one of the handful of the genuinely great comedians, has a field day in this wonderfully funny 1940 romp. The plot centres on Egbert Souse (Fields) who is made a bank guard as a reward for accidentally capturing a bank robber.

The Reluctant Astronaut (x), on 7 at 2. Don Kotts stars in this 1967 farce about a vertigo-prone young man who becomes an astronaut trainee.

Go Into Your Dance (xxx), on 13 at 4. This was the first time (1935) Al Jolson and Ruby Keeler appeared together after their marriage. This musical with a show business theme has a good score and on the supporting side, Helen Morgan and Patsy Kelley are excellent.

The Gun Hawk (xx), on 5 at 4:30. Rory Calhoun and Rod Cameron star in this 1963 western about an outlaw who hunts down the killers of the town drunk.

Whistling in the Dark (xxx), on 4 at 5. This 1941 comedy was Red Skelton's first starring film and his fans will have a lot of fun with it. It's all about a group of cultists who try to influence a young man to perform a perfect murder for them.

Early Saturday Specials

American Bandstand's 20th Anniversary Show, on 4 at 11:30. Down memory lane with host Dick Clark to salute 20 years of Bandstand's music, dance and fashion. Performing on film and on hand to reminisce: Paul Anka, Bobby Darin, Neil Diamond, Annette Funicello, Paul Simon, Johnny Mathis, Frankie Avalon and Fabian. (60 mins.).

CBC Radio Highlights

Friday, June 22

6:30 (FM) Radio International — The program commemorates the 500th anniversary year of the birth of the Polish astronomer, Nicolas Copernicus, and concerns itself with astromony, past and present. Included: Copernicus, from Radio Poland, a condensation of three documentaries: Nicolas Copernicus-Scholar, Man of Action, Artist; Poland at the time of Copernicus; and Copernicus in the Eyes of his contemporaries and posterity, The Secret of the Universe, from Radio UNESCO, a drama about Copernicus set in Poland during his lifetime. The Long View: A program on the Anglo-Australian Telescope. In 1967 the Australian and British governments announced a joint venture in scientific co-operation . . . . The Light Bucket . . . the Big Eye . . . the Long View. It is the 150-inch diameter telescope, fourth largest in the world, being built at Siding Spring Mountain in New South Wales

8:03 (AM) Between Ourselves — Lost Horizon of the Yukon, a documentary on Klauane National Park in the southwestern Yukon, a vast park area roughly four times the size of P.E.I. Set aside as a game sanctuary in 1943, it will soon be open to the public, it is estimated that by 1985 300,000 people will visit the Park each year.

9:03 (FM) The Bush and the Salon—Western Canadian Medicine. Writer Bonnie LeMay attempts to reflect the social aspects of life in the Northwest Territories as it relates to the importance and proficiency of the medical profession of the time. Produced in Calgary by Fred Diehl. Part I—Covers the time between the great smallpox epidemic in 1867 to the coming of the railroad in 1883.

Poisoning Blamed On Poor Handling

EDMONTON (CP) — Poor food-handling by consumers is the major cause of epidemics of food-poisoning among persons who have eaten seafood, a microbiologist said Thursday.

Dr. Morris Fishbein of the food microbiology branch of the United States department of health, education and welfare, told a symposium the discomfort caused by one particular strain — vibrio parahenolyticus — usually lasts only a day or two.

"Outbreaks usually only occur when the fish is handled in mass amounts," he said.

"A pattern may be noticed in these outbreaks in that the seafoods are grossly mishandled, particularly when dealt with in bulk," as at picnics.

"There are examples of cross contamination, for example — drippings from live to cooked crabs, the repacking of cooked crabs into bushels previously used to transport raw crabs . . ."

He predicted Canada soon could undergo an experience similar to the food-poisoning epidemics experienced in the United States, since the offending organism is found in all coastal waters of the United States and in the Canadian Atlantic.

He said there is no need to frighten people away from eating fish because the organism is susceptible to cold temperatures and bacteria will proliferate only when food is poorly handled.

Russian Buyers Due

EDMONTON (CP) — Four Russian cattle buyers are expected soon in the province to select 600 young heifers and bulls for use in the U.S.S.R., John Hay, secretary of the Alberta Hereford Association, said Thursday.

Hay said in an interview that this is the 14th consecutive summer the Russians have conducted cattle-buying missions, and the pries charged for the animals will be up from previous years.

Grain Books Seized

WINNIPEG (CP) — A Canadian Wheat Board spokesman said a ninvestigation is being conducted into possible infractions of quota regulations in the Portage La Prairie area.

The spokesman said permit books have been seized from 71 grain producers, all of whom deliver to elevators at Portage La Prairie.

The board spokesman said the investigation involves over-delivery of grains from early last autumn to early spring this year.

Crane Nests Sighted

The wildlife service plans to monitor the birds' egg hatch this summer. Ernie Kuyt, a biologist with the service, said 12 of the nests had the normal complement of two eggs and the other had a single egg.

Fear 'Unfounded'

EDMONTON (CP) — The "big brother" fear that computers can control people's lives is unfounded, Grant Boyd, president of the Canadian Information Processing Society said Thursday.

"A computer is a tool, just like any other," Boyd told the CIPS annual conference. "It is the computer user who chooses the direction it will take."

Drug Centre to Open

CALGARY (CP) — The Alberta Alcoholism and Drug Abuse Commission will open a 31-bed detoxification centre in the city in September.

Deer Roam Edmonton

EDMONTON (CP) — About 15 deer were killed while roaming Edmonton streets last year and several more have been spotted in the city this month.

A spokesman for the provincial wildlife department said Thursday most of the animals find their way into the city after mothers who have dropped newborn fawns abandon the yearlings.

PROCEDURES DELAY GIFT OF BACK-UP AMBULANCE

Provision of a back-up ambulance for the new Victoria city-Victoria General Hospital ambulance service by the RCAF 800 Wing will be cleared up by the end of next week, wing president Ted Dovers-Masters said today.

He was commenting on part of Fire Chief Eric Simmons report to the city's health and welfare committee Thursday which said "however, it is my understanding there have been some internal problems of the association in formally declaring their intentions of this gift."

Dover-Masters said there are no "internal problems" but certain procedures had to be followed before the association was fully in a position to donate the back-up ambulance.

Part of this involved the charity committee recommending to the group what should be done with money raised. This had been done, he said, the money was available and all that has to be done now is to draw up papers and have them signed.

Longhouse Opens Tonight

Representatives of bonds from all parts of Vancouver Island will attend the opening of the new $43,000 longhouse on the Brentwood Tsartlip Indian reserve at 7 p.m. today.

Government and civic officials have also been invited to attend the opening ceremonies which will include a masked dance performed only on special occasions.

Own Missile Downs Jet

POINT MUGU, Calif. (UPI) — Two civilian test pilots flying a $20 million navy jet fighter shot the aircraft down with one of its own missiles, according to the navy.

A navy spokesman said Thursday that while the Tomcat was test firing an unarmed Sparrow missile "the missile did not clear the aircraft sufficiently and struck the bottom of the fuselage."

Crash Claims 16

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — A 13-vehicle crash on a highway between here and Rio de Janeiro killed 16 persons Thursday, police said. A number of others were injured. Authorities said the crash began when a bus stopped in heavy traffic about 75 miles from here.

B.C. Prison Overhaul Planned

Anticipating crime will double in B.C. in the next eight years, Attorney-General Alex Macdonald today announced reorganization of the provincial prison system.

Correctional services will become a division within the attorney-general's department, headed by a new assistant deputy minister.

★

Edgar Epp, former warden of the Haney correctional institution, and corrently employed by the Ontario government, was named to the post.

Headquarters of correctional services will be moved from Vancouver to Victoria.

Selwyn Roxborough-Smith, who is now B.C.'s director of corrections, was appointed full-time chairman of the provincial parole board.

MacDonald said negotiations are under way with the federal solicitor-general's department to explore the possibility of the provincial parole board taking over some of the case load of the National Parole Board where British Columbians are involved. A conference will be held in September when Macdonald will discuss the matter with Solicitor General Warren Allmand.

A master planning unit will be established to co-ordinate and project crime and penal research, Macdonald said. The unit will be headed by Malcolm Matheson, now deputy director of corrections.

Matheson is chairman of the three-man Task Force on Correctional Services and Facilities, appointed by the attorney-general last December, whose report was released today. Reorganization of the prison system and its administration were among recommendations of the task force.

Its report noted that Criminal Code offences doubled in the eight years between 1962 and 1970 and forecast a similar increase in the next eight years. B.C. has a significantly higher over-all crime rate than the national average the report said.

Macdonald said the report showed "a raher frightening picture" and the government is seeking "greater citizen input than we have ever had before" to meet the rapid increase in crime.

He said crime is growing because of the province's population growth and because of continued problems of drugs and alcohol use. Fifty to 70 per cent of persons presently in provincial jails suffer "some sort of alcohol problems," he said.

Macdonald said doing away with Wilkinson Road Jail is not a major priority.

He said Oakalla Prison in Burnaby is a "more urgent concern."

"We look to its ultimate abolition as a unit," he said.

The Wilkinson Road Jail — the official name is the Southern Vancouver Island Regional Correctional Centre — is not as old, Macdonald noted, and "we don't regard it with the same urgency."

TRACK, FIELD RECORDS IN DANGER

National age-class records will be in danger at Centennial Stadium Saturday and Sunday when some of the brightest young stars on the track and field horizon go gunning for medals in the annual Victoria Y-Times meet.

More than 900 athletes, including a dozen Vancouver Island aces selected to represent the province in the Canada Summer Games, will be competing in the numerous events, which range from tyke to junior divisions with a few open contests.

Competition starts at 9:15 a.m. Saturday and continues through the afternoon. It resumes Sunday at 10 a.m. and is expected to conclude about 3:30 p.m. (See story on Page 13).

NO, IT'S NOT a new type of protest sign — it's a potential pie. Suzanne Scott, 8, of 631 Cowper, is off to Victoria Horticultural Society's Summer Flower Show with giant stock of rhubarb grown by James and Patricia Caton of 398 Ker. The horticultural exhibit is today and Saturday in the United Church Hall at 932 Balmoral. Suzanne has promised to tie her shoelaces for the show. (John McKay photo.)

Big 2 Vow Peace

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — President Nixon and Soviet Leader Leonid Brezhnev, already planning another summit meeting next year, formally pledged today to avoid military confrontations and threats of force that might trigger nuclear war.

The vows were contained in a policy declaration which also said the leaders of the two superpowers would "immediately enter into urgent consultations with each other" if a nuclear conflict threatened.

Shortly before Nixon and Brezhnev signed the agreement in the East Room of the White House, Treasury Secretary George Shultz and Soviet Trade Minister Nikolai Patolichev met across Pennsylvania Avenue in Blair House to initial another pact intended to strengthen commerce between the United States and the Soviet Union. About 50 captains of U.S. industry were present at the signing.

The two latest accords brought to eight the number reached since the start of the summit talks Monday. They were signed a few hours before Nixon and Brezhnev were to depart abroad the the president's jetliner for San Clemente, Calif., where they planned to conclude their conferences over the weekend.

The decision by the two leaders to hold a third summit meeting in as many years was announced Thursday night at a lavish banquet in the Soviet Embassy.

Their promises to meet again in Moscow next year were accompanied by champagne toasts. The jovial atmosphere reflected the signing earlier in the day of pacts intended to accelerate negotiations to limit and reduce offensive nuclear weapons and exchange research on peaceful uses of nuclear energy.

Today's promises to refrain from military confrontations went into effect immediately upon signing of the policy declaration.

Parole Changes Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — National parole board reorganization, including a decentralized system of local and regional boards, is recommended in the prison study conducted after last year's Kingston penitentiary riots.

The report was tabled in the Commons today by Solicitor-General Warren Allmand.

The Kingston riots left two prisoners dead and 12 injured. The penitentiary was scheduled to be vacated when the riots started.

Justice James K. Hugessen of the Quebec Superior Court headed the four-member study group which recommends replacing the nine-member parole board with five regional boards plus local boards closer to federal and provincial prison institutions.

Criteria for granting parole, the conditions and safeguards should be spelled out in federal legislation, the report says.

The study was ordered in June, 1972, by former Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer. The report was made last Nov. 30 but was not made public then.

OTTAWA — The minority Liberal government changed its position on capital punishment Thursday, proposing total abolition of the death penalty.

Solicitor-General Warren Allmand, in a surprise move, recommended to a Commons committee that the capital punishment bill now before parliament be amended to remove the death penalty for all crimes without any time limitation.

The bill as originally presented would amend the Criminal Code to extend for another five years the trial period for abolition of the death penalty for all crimes but the murder of policemen and prison guards.

Allmand's amendments to remove the exception to abolition and the five-year time limit was coupled with other changes to extend the time which convicted murderers must spend in prison before being eligible for parole.

Most committee members Thursday appeared to support the new total abolitionist stance of the government, but two Ontario Conservatives criticized the move.

"What this means is that the bill is being completely scrapped and we are now being asked to deal with total abolition," said Tom Cossitt (PC—Leeds).

"I must say the suggested amendments leave me a little bit breathless," remarked Allan Lawrence (PC—Northumberland-Durham).

"There was no hint in the House that the government had anything like this in mind."

Lawrence suggested that the solicitor-general's proposals were out of order since they deviated from the principle of the bill to extend the partial ban trial period.

"I suspect the government is trying to do in committee

BANKS 'DELIVER CANADA'

OTTAWA (CP) — Mel Hurtig, chairman of the committee for an independent Canada, used the very words of two Canadian banks Thursday to back up his contention that they are helping increase foreign ownership. (See also Page 3.)

During remarks before the Commons finance committee, Hurtig displayed a November New York newspaper advertisement by the Royal Bank of Canada reading, "We deliver Canada."

"We're happy to be accused of un-Canadian activities," read part of a January Paris newspaper advertisement by the Toronto-Dominion Bank.

Hurtig said Canadian banks are often more willing to finance foreign-owned corporations in Canada and abroad than they are to finance Canadian enterprises.

"All they care about is safe investment," he said in an interview later.

SKYLAB TEAM HOME SAFE

Times News Services

ABOARD TICONDEROGA — Skylab's astronauts came home safely from man's longest space journey today and shunned stretchers to walk unsteadily across the deck of this United States Navy recovery carrier.

The wobbly 60 steps from the Apollo ferry ship to a medical laboratory indicated Charles Conrad, Dr. Joseph Kerwin and Paul Weitz had suffered some effects from a record four weeks' exposure to space weightlessness in earth orbit.

Doctors, not knowing how they might react to earth's gravity after their long weightless exposure, were prepared to lift them out on litters.

Kerwin and Weitz reported some dizziness after splashdown and Kerwin inflated a pair of pressure pants to keep his blood pressure from dropping to the point where he might faint. This temporary effect was expected because of the tendency of astronauts' blood to pool in their legs, away from the brain, as a result of heart laziness induced by long exposure to the lack of gravity.

This time it was a faulty freezing system that began acting up just as they were ready to come home.

Even without the system, two other eight-week missions aboard the spaceship aren't expected to be seriously affected.

Japanese Takeover Halt Demanded

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

The B.C. government is demanding that Ottawa stop the sale of a Prince Rupert fish packing company to a Japanese firm.

Highways Ministers Graham Lea and Minister Without Portfolio Frank Calder said today they have information that Cassiar Packing Co. Ltd. has been sold to a Marubeni Corp. of Japan.

In a telegram sent Thursday to Federal Fisheries Minister Jack Davis, the two ministers said:

"We ask that you intervene to stop the sale of this Canadian fishing company, if the transaction has not been completed and if the sale has been consummated, we ask that you retroactively stop the sale."

The provincial government will buy the fish packing company, Lea said, if the federal government stops the sale.

"We feel that whatever the price is that it can't be too large to save a Canadian industry for Canadians," he said.

Cassiar Packing, situated about 15 miles east of Prince Rupert, is owned by three holding companies — Georgia Packing Co., MacMillan Enterprises Ltd., and Bellmac Enterprises Ltd.

The ministers, who represent Prince Rupert and Atland constituencies, say the Japanese firm has bought 75 per cent of the shares in the holding companies in the sale negotiated March 15.

Calder said he learned of the sale in talks with Ottawa fisheries department officials.

Lea said he met with Davis

DUAL DAYLIGHT TIME EYED IN CALIFORNIA

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Legislation giving Californians an extra hour of sunshine during summer evenings has cleared the assembly.

The bill by Assemblyman Bob Wilson won approval Thursday on a 41-28 vote and was sent to the senate.

It would require clocks to be set ahead two hours instead of one during the daylight savings months of June, July, August and September. The current one-hour daylight savings time period would apply to May and October.

Wilson said his "sunshine act" would reduce crime and traffic accidents because of fewer nighttime hours and lower electrical usuage because of better use of morning daylight hours.

But Assemblyman Robert Badham warned that parents would have trouble getting their children to bed on time due to the extra sunshine time.

He said "beleagured parents" would be saddled with the antics of their "cheery little children running around the house until after 10 p.m."

U.S. POLICY 'CLARIFIED'

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States government announced today a "clarified" policy for crude-oil imports from Canada, designed to provide Ottawa with guidelines for allocating Canadian oil to U.S. customers and to prevent American demand from swamping Canada's supplies.

A knowledgeable treasury department source said the clarification issued today were the result of consultations between Canadian and U.S. authorities designed to help Ottawa adjust its oil exports to new American policies proclaimed by Nixon last April 18.

10 BUSES ORDERED FOR CITY

Ten new 35-foot buses have been ordered for Victoria from General Motors at a price of $440,013 by the provincial government.

General Motors was the higher of two bidders for the contract, Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer said, but GM got the sale because of the availability of GM parts in Victoria.

The government expects delivery in November.

The other bidder was Western Flyer of Winnipeg.

Qualicum Beach Swimming Curb

The posting of the 200 feet of waterfront at the mouth of a small creek came as a surprise to residents of this resort community.

Provincial health officer Dr. Peter Reynolds of Nanaimo said the move was taken because of the high fecal count.

He said the problem is caused mainly by about 25 stores discharging human waste down a storm drain which empties into a creek.

The creek winds through the golf course and empties into the sea.

He said tests showed that even the government liquor store contributed to the pollution problem.

The stores, he said, have not the space to treat the sewage through tile fields.

"The coliform count is exceptionally high," he said. "We had to take steps to protect public health."

Earlier this year, Qualicum residents turned down a referendum for construction of a sewage system.

Harry Klassen, chief of the industrial section of the Pollution Control Branch, said most harbor waters on eastern Vancouver Island are contaminated by heavy concentrations of industrial waste.

"But we are making some progress," he said. "Industries have applications before the branch for permission to upgrade methods of discharging waste."

The Qualicum warning comes hard on the heels of a provincial order closing hundreds of miles of Island beaches to oyster picking and clam digging because of human and industrial pollution.

Also, the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health said the same 16 areas closed to swimming last year are again affected this year.

Jet Explodes During Fueling

Times News Services

TORONTO — An Air Canada DC-8 was destroyed by fire and a series of explosions at Toronto International Airport Thursday, only minutes before 120 passengers were to board it for a flight to Europe.

Two men who were fuelling the plane at the time were seriously injured. Captain Charles Fogal and his eight crew members managed to escape unharmed from the burning plane after the initial explosion.

An airline spokesman said it was not known what led to the explosions, but he noted "there was a report of a fire in one of the engines, or under the wing at the time of refuelling."

Police and airline investigators have ruled out any possibility of sabotage.

Twenty flights were delayed and eight cancelled because of the fire.

At Terminal 1, across the ramp from the burning jet, about 1,000 people looked on as flames shot 100 feet into the air.

A spokesman for Air Canada said the aircraft, which was purchased for $3 million in October, 1968, was "a total write-off. Only a shell of the plane now remains."

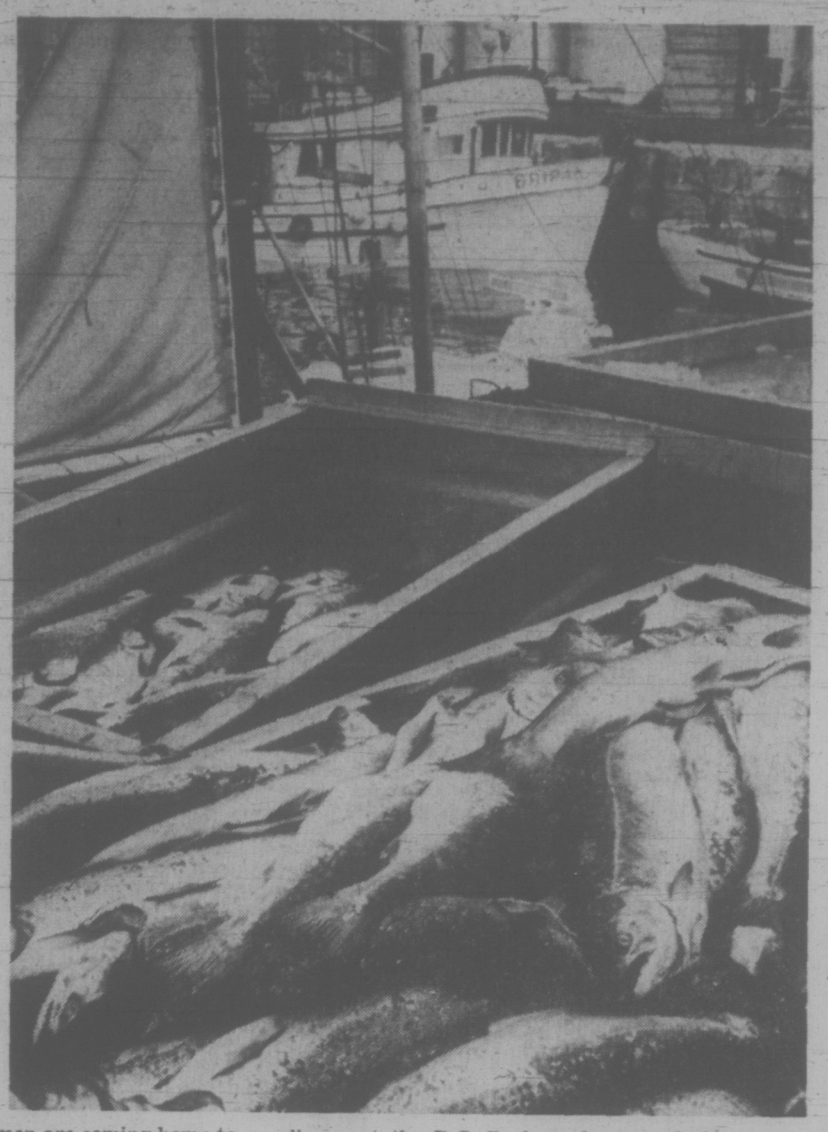
SECOND SECTION



THERE'S GOLD under those scales — the first shipment of coho to hit the city fish markets. The season opened June 15 and boats are coming in early with better-than-average catches for this time of year and the fishermen are coming home to better-than-ever prices. Local fish buyers are paying 72 cents a pound for prime coho. The opening price last year was 45 cents. At left there was a lineup at the B.C. Packers depot at Ogden Point and at right — coho destined for the fresh and canned fish market. Fishermen usually make 10-day trips. (Photos by Bill Halkett).

Judge Rebuffs Lawyer

The lawyer for three nuns sitting in at St. Mary's Priory was rebuffed in a Supreme Court ruling today, latest development in the struggle for control of the Society of the Love of Jesus.

Judge M. L. Drake emphatically dismissed a motion made Wednesday by Hugh McMillan, counsel for the three sisters, which sought a ruling giving them and two supporting sisters in Mill Bay control of the society.

The five sisters had launched a suit against another faction in the society in the dispute which has been under way close to 10 years.

McMillan had argued the other faction had failed to respond to his writ and statement of claim. But he also told Judge Drake that the documents outlining his case (which must be served on the defendant) had been served at the society's registered office, the priory, where the only residents are the three sisters.

In effect, copies of the plaintiffs' case intended for the defendant had been served on the plaintiff.

In his judgment today Judge Drake said "apart from expressing astonishment at the conduct of the plaintiffs' solicitor in bringing this motion at all in these circumstances, I say only that such service was not good service; and the cost of this motion will be paid by the solicitor personally."

Cecil Branson, counsel for the society, said he had been completely unaware of McMillan's moves in the matter, despite the fact McMillan knew Branson's firm was representing the society.

The society will be entering a defence to the claims made by the other side and will be presenting counter-claims. It appears the entire dispute will be taken to court to be settled once and for all, he said.

In statements supporting his motion, McMillan described his clients as the "traditional" faction in the society and the other side as the "modern" faction.

He described the differences in viewpoint between the two and claimed the "traditional" faction has been unable to continue the work the society was organized to conduct, care of the elderly and infirm.

$40,000 for James Bay 'Horizons'

A community centre — for young and old — may become a reality because of a $40,000 New Horizon's grant to the James Bay New Horizons Group.

The grant, largest to any single group from Thunder Bay west, is for 18 months and includes money for a survey at finding a permanent home. All told, Greater Victoria groups received $77,703 out of a total $1.4 million.

Also locally:

New Horizons Craft Village Committee was given $19,108 to open a store staffed by elderly discharged mental patients. The store will sell handicrafts made by former mental patients and will later be expanded to include crafts made by the physically handicapped.

The core group is composed of 21 elderly former mental patients. The project is sponsored by the mental health association.

The New Horizons Gordon Head $12,000 will be used for a retirement activity centre at Gordon Head Parish Church at Tyndall and San Juan.

And also, $6,595 for recreation equipment to the Colwood 60-and-up Club.

The 155 undertakings affecting more than 19,000 people in four provinces were approved to help retired persons benefit themselves and their community.

In supporting need for a drop-in or community centre, group president Gordon Stewart said there are 3,000 retired persons living in James Bay, and the only place available for meetings is the basement of James Bay United Church, 511 Michigan.

The group has access to the hall until fall when church activities will require space.

In a budget presented with its application for the $40,000 grant, the group designated $5,100 for rent, utilities, maintenance and telephone, and $2,000 for a survey aimed at finding a permanent home.

There is $11,350 earmarked for staff including a co-ordinator and office help, $4,500 for a cookery and home economics program, $2,700 for gardening and beautification, $3,500 for contingencies, $2,800 for miscellaneous and $2,000 for recreation projects.

Stewart objected to remarks attributed to Victoria Ald. Tom Christie at a finance committee meeting, about two weeks ago. Christie criticized plans for a new community school, indicating there were plenty of recreation facilities.

"You show me where we have recreation facilities galore in James Bay or any other place," Stewart said. "That's why we're meeting here.

"Three of us searched this area from Douglas Street to the waterfront and couldn't find a place to suit this group.

"I think we have a wealth of brains in this group . . . maybe Mr. Christie could come down for a little night school," the president remarked.

"We are a large force in James Bay and I think we should make our opinions to be heard," said Mrs. Kay Ransom, chairman of the Green Thumb gardening club who also urged a drop in centre for young and old.

Plans by her group include a clean-up-paint-up campaign throughout the district. "There are a lot of places that can be cleaned up, including places owned by the city," she said, citing the front of Safeway store on Simcoe.

The six-months-old New Horizons group lists among its objectives:

Compilation of a history of James Bay, organization of walking and bus tours, discussion groups, services to the housebound and handicapped, low cost transportation and a regular newsletter.

Boy, 14, Leads Wild Chase

A 70-m.p.h. chase through Colwood and Langford Thursday night ended when police arrested a 14-year-old Victoria boy for theft and dangerous driving.

The chase, which covered 25 miles in 25 minutes, started when Colwood RCMP spotted a stolen car on the Trans-Canada Highway near Helmcken at 10:45 p.m.

"We dodged in and out of passing motorists and quite a few cars had to pull way off to the side of the road," said one of the policemen involved in the chase.

The boy was put in the juvenile detention home overnight and was to appear in juvenile court today.

The chase took police along the Trans-Canada to Burnside, to Tillicum, Gorge, Admirals and Craigflower, then to the Old Island Highway and to Atkins Road in Langford.

"After he got into Langford, he drove around and around the streets in circles for about 15 minutes until we finally got him," the policeman said.

At Deville Road and Atkins, the boy stopped the car, jumped out and was grabbed by police officers.

A police car parked across the road at Florence Lake Road failed to stop the speeding car. A police spokesman said the car was parked in such a way as to let the boy around it "if there was no way he was going to stop."

Stalling Charged On $10M Fund For Recreation

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Oak Bay MLA Dr. G. Scott Wallace today accused the provincial government of using delaying tactics in administering its $10 million fund to help municipalities in building sports complexes.

Alarmed at Recreation Minister Jack Radford's announcement that technical and advisory committees will be set up soon, Wallace attempted to see the minister today.

He had urged Oak Bay council to move quickly when the municipality applied for a $333,000 grant after the fund was announced in February. It was on the assumption that the provincial grant would be made that the council went ahead with plans to build a $1.6 million sports complex without going to referendum.

Mayor Frances Elford said today the provincial government's dallying was "inexcusable".

Wallace said that instead of getting an appointment with Radford he was "referred to his executive assistant."

"There's no question of the applications being dealt with in a chronological manner," Wallace said, "the fact that Oak Bay had its application in quick like a bird dog in February doesn't mean a damn thing."

He said the technical committee was to be set up next week and the advisory committee the week following.

"I was told the technical committee would require all sorts of information," Wallace said, "size, shape, construction, whether there's frills or too many frills.

"Oak Bay hasn't been asked for anything, yet I understand all this information could be provided overnight, more or less. This could turn out to be simply a delaying factor."

He said Oak Bay should keep in close contact with department officials dealing with the fund.

"We don't want to be told Aug. 1 (the date Radford has said the first announcements of grants will be made) that the technical committee doesn't have enough information."

Wallace said he was told that the advisory committee would be "landed with the job of deciding which municipalities would be granted money from the fund."

WALLACE

He said he was unable to find out whether the applications already amount to more than the $10 million in the fund.

"He refused to disclose the answer to that question," Wallace said. "I'm beginning to wonder if we have as open a government as Premier Barrett tells us we have."

He decried the amount of government handling involved before grants can be made.

"It has to go from the technical committee to the advisory committee and then to the minister. There is a great deal more bureaucracy involved than was mentioned when the bill was first introduced in the house," he commented.

He'll Run Bureau For Half the Price

The founder-operator of Victoria Rental Aid service has renewed his offer to assume control of a landlord-tenant advisory bureau for half the current estimated annual cost of $12,000.

Jim Nelson made his offer in a letter to Community Council director Garth Homer, with copies to Saanich, Esquimalt, Oak Bay, Victoria and Sidney, and to Lorne Nicolson, provincial minister responsible for housing.

The Community Council is directing a landlord-tenant advisory service on behalf of Victoria city during 1973 for a budget of $12,854. Costs would rise only marginally with the entry of other Greater Victoria municipalities.

Some form of landlord-tenant advisory and complaint-chasing service must be provided by all municipalities this year according to new provincial legislation.

Nelson, who runs a voluntary service designed to help the poor and elderly obtain rental accommodation of acceptable standard, claims to have expertise in the landlord-tenant field generally.

His previous offer to take on the additional work of an advisory bureau for $6,000 was rejected, he said, without being placed before Greater Victoria Intermunicipal Committee.

If the offer is not acceptable to all municipalities, Nelson suggests, then the province should set up a bureau to deal with rental disputes and other housing matters.

Nelson said his offer to serve would cover Central Saanich and the unorganized areas of Colwood, Langford, Metchosin, Glen Lake and Sooke in addition to the areas named.

Service would include information, advice, investigations, court assistance, research, data collection, rental aid and reports to municipalities at least every six months, Nelson said.

The service would be offered to landlords and tenants on a seven-days-a-week basis.

Freight Ferry Returns Tonight

Canadian Pacific's freight ferry Carrier Princess is expected to be back in service tonight after a two-day layoff for repairs to a propeller.

The propeller hit a log near Active Pass on Wednesday and the ferry was able to return to Vancouver under her own power. She was repaired at Burrard Dry Dock.

The ferry has been in operation for three weeks. She carries trucks and some passenger cars between Swartz Bay and Burrard Inlet.

Inquest Ordered in Crash

An inquest has been ordered into the deaths of four Burnaby persons killed Wednesday when their light aircraft crashed in Sidney.

Sidney district coroner Gordon Gerrie said today a date will be set after transport ministry officials have completed an investigation.

Each couple is survived by three children.

Anderson, owner and pilot of the Cessna 170, was an accountant for Hoffars Ltd., a Burnaby marine-engine firm. Sondrup was president and manager of Western Sash and Doors, also in Burnaby.

FIRST 30 SET TO DIVIDE DRAMA BURSARY

About 30 students so far have accepted a share in the $11,000 scholarship and bursary fund of University of Victoria theatre department.

They will participate in the five-week summer theatre workshop on campus under direction of Esse Ljungh.

It will run from July 3 through Aug. 7, terminating in a full production, student designed and directed, of Hendrik Ibsen's Peer Gynt.

There are still some scholarships available.

Donations to the scholarship fund have made it possible for the students to participate at a cost no greater than $40 each.

Contributing to the fund have been the B.C. government, Vancouver Foundation, Leo and Thea Koerner Foundation and Victoria Foundation.

The university provided $500 for five scholarships out of an unrestricted gift of $4,000 from the Canadian Liquid Air Company and $1,000 was contributed by Rothman's of Pall Mall.

$100 Thief Drove a Rolls

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's inflation apparently hasn't affected the living standards of the country's criminal elements. A thief stole $100 from a suburban London pub Thursday and fled in a silver Rolls-Royce, police said.

PADUA — Two Italian journalists have been acquitted on charges of offending against the state religion with a book based on tape recordings of false confessions to Roman Catholic priests.

The two, Norberto Valentini and Clara di Megalio, were excommunicated after publication of their book, Sex in the Confessinal, based on the recordings of 632 false confessions they made to priests.

The book seemed to indicate that many priests showed a lively interest in hearing intimate and graphic details of Miss di Meglio's supposed sexual experiences. She sometimes posed as an engaged girl and sometimes as a married woman.

A Vancouver alderman, a United Church minister and a native Indian woman, active in social and community work, were named Thursday as new members of the Vancouver Police Commission.

Marjorie Cantryn, Rev. Bob Burrows and Ald. Fritz Powers will join the four existing members, including chairman Mayor Art Phillips, to form an expanded commission.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald, who announced the government appointments, said the commission has been enlarged because of "serious crime problems" in Vancouver.

WASHINGTON — Thirty-five members of the naval ceremonial guard, including 13 men who took part in Monday's White House ceremony welcoming Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev, have been transferred because of alleged marijuana use. The incident marks the third time in two months that navy men assigned jobs near President Nixon have been investigated for marijuana use.

LAKEWOOD, N.Y. — What was a scuba diver doing in a pond at the Maplehurst Country Club at 2 a.m.? Bobbing for golf balls, said police. They said the diver, K. E. Anderson, 38, had retrieved a dozen balls when they caught him. Anderson pleaded guilty to petty larceny and trespassing. He was fined $120.

OTTAWA — Federal Conservative leader Stanfield will tour a port and a penitentiary and open a rodeo during a three-day visit to British Columbia this weekend. Stanfield will tour the British Columbia Penitentiary at New Westminster Friday. Saturday he visits Prince George and Prince Rupert, where he will tour the harbor. He will then visit Smithers and end the day in Terrace. Sunday he will open the Lions Club rodeo there. He returns to Ottawa Monday.

NEW YORK — Designers Stephen Burrows and Calvin Klein have won the 1973 Coty American Fashion Critics award, the Winnie, for outstanding fashion design.

BONN — President Georges Pompidou of France arrived here Thursday for two days of consultations with Chancellor Willy Brandt on problems of mutural interest. The meeting is not expected to produce any dramatic results.

OTTAWA — The private stamp collection of former prime minister Lester Pearson has been turned over to the Post Office department and will eventually be displayed in the new national postal museum to be opened next April. The collection includes mint stamps, first-day covers and commemorative albums from Canada, other countries along with personal messages and inscriptions by Pearson's associates.

WASHINGTON — John Connally has signed off his temporary White House assignment, saying he was "not unhappy about anything," but clearly indicating he wants to pursue his political future on his own. The former Texas governor and recent convert to the Republican party said he hoped to end "by mid-summer at the latest" the post-Watergate advisory role for which President Nixon recruited him last May.

BRILLIANT young pianist, Kowk May-Ling, runner-up to the provincial senior piano champion in Vancouver recently, will be guest soloist Saturday at a concert by Victoria Conservatory of Music Choir. The choir, directed by Gladys Pearcy, is presenting the concert at St. Matthias Church Hall, to raise funds for a trip to Britain this year. The concert starts at 8 p.m.

Mafia Chieftan Arrested in Rome

ROME — Police today arrested Frank (Three Fingers) Coppola, onetime reputed Mafia boss of Kansas City, on charges of engineering an assassination attempt against a high police official.

A police spokesman said officers arrested Coppola, 73, at his comfortable home in suburban Pomezia and took him to Rome's Regina Coeli (Queen of Heaven) prison.

He said an arrest warrant issued by the Rome district attorney's office named Coppola as the alleged instigator of an assassination attempt against Angelo Mangano, a police offcial in charge of investigating the Mafia.

A gunman ambushed Mangano outside his Roman home April 4, fired several shots at him, jumped into a waiting car and escaped. Mangano, 53, was hit by five bullets in the head, chest and arms. He survived the attack.

Coppola has had repeated brushes with the law since the United States deported him to his native Italy in 1948 as "undesirable." He merged from most of them on the winning side.

WRITERS SICK, SAYS AUTHOR

WINNIPEG — Some 200 members of the Canadian Authors' Association were told Thursday by novelist and editorial writer Shaun Herron that people write because they are sick. "What I'm saying is that if the writer was a well man, he wouldn't write," Herron said. "You don't really write books, you throw up."

Writing is a form of therapy, a self-salvation that is needed to turn the sickness of inner sores into imagination, he said.

"To the writer, people are, in the first instance, material. He takes them, messes them about, mixes them with other people, twists and distorts them for his own purposes . . . into the appearance of the real."

Writers who successfully reveal "interior reality" must firt bring their own interior chaos "under a cruelly ruthless discipline," he added. A serious writer writes his obsessions out of his spirit and into his books.

B.C. Prison Overhaul Planned

Anticipating crime will double in B.C. in the next eight years, Attorney-General Alex Macdonald today announced reorganization of the provincial prison system.

Correctional services will become a division within the attorney-general's department, headed by a new assistant deputy minister.

★

Edgar Epp, former warden of the Haney correctional institution, and corrently employed by the Ontario government, was named to the post.

Headquarters of correctional services will be moved from Vancouver to Victoria.

Selwyn Roxborough-Smith, who is now B.C.'s director of corrections, was appointed full-time chairman of the provincial parole board.

MacDonald said negotiations are under way with the federal solicitor-general's department to explore the possibility of the provincial parole board taking over some of the case load of the National Parole Board where British Columbians are involved. A conference will be held in September when Macdonald will discuss the matter with Solicitor General Warren Allmand.

A master planning unit will be established to co-ordinate and project crime and penal research, Macdonald said. The unit will be headed by Malcolm Matheson, now deputy director of corrections.

Matheson is chairman of the three-man Task Force on Correctional Services and Facilities, appointed by the attorney-general last December, whose report was released today. Reorganization of the prison system and its administration were among recommendations of the task force.

Its report noted that Criminal Code offences doubled in the eight years between 1962 and 1970 and forecast a similar increase in the next eight years. B.C. has a significantly higher over-all crime rate than the national average the report said.

Macdonald said the report showed "a rather frightening picture" and the government is seeking "greater citizen input than we have ever had before" to meet the rapid increase in crime.

He said crime is growing because of the province's population growth and because of continued problems of drugs and alcohol use. Fifty to 70 per cent of persons presently in provincial jails suffer "some sort of alcohol problems," he said.

Macdonald said doing away with Wilkinson Road Jail is not a major priority.

He said Oakalla Prison in Burnaby is a "more urgent concern."

"We look to its ultimate abolition as a unit," he said.

The Wilkinson Road Jail — the official name is the Southern Vancouver Island Regional Correctional Centre — is not as old, Macdonald noted, and "we don't regard it with the same urgency."

TRACK, FIELD RECORDS IN DANGER

National age-class records will be in danger at Centennial Stadium Saturday and Sunday when some of the brightest young stars on the track and field horizon go gunning for medals in the annual Victoria Y-Times meet.

More than 900 athletes, including a dozen Vancouver Island aces selected to represent the province in the Canada Summer Games, will be competing in the numerous events, which range from tyke to junior divisions with a few open contests.

Competition starts at 9:15 a.m. Saturday and continues through the afternoon. It resumes Sunday at 10 a.m. and is expected to conclude about 3:30 p.m. (See story on Page 13).

NO, IT'S NOT a new type of protest sign — it's a potential pie. Suzanne Scott, 8, of 631 Cowper, is off to Victoria Horticultural Society's Summer Flower Show with giant stock of rhubarb grown by James and Patricia Caton of 398 Ker. The horticultural exhibit is today and Saturday in the United Church Hall at 932 Balmoral. Suzanne has promised to tie her shoelaces for the show. (John McKay photo.)

Parole Changes Sought

OTTAWA (CP) — National parole board reorganization, including a decentralized system of local and regional boards, is recommended in the prison study conducted after last year's Kingston penitentiary riots.

The report was tabled in the Commons today by Solicitor-General Warren Allmand.

The Kingston riots left two prisoners dead and 12 injured. The penitentiary was scheduled to be vacated when the riots started.

Justice James K. Hugessen of the Quebec Superior Court headed the four-member study group which recommends replacing the nine-member parole board with five regional boards plus local boards closer to federal and provincial prison institutions.

Criteria for granting parole, the conditions and safeguards should be spelled out in federal legislation, the report says.

The study was ordered in June, 1972, by former Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer. The report was made last Nov. 30 but was not made public then.

Stop All Hanging, Grits Urge

By IAIN HUNTER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The minority Liberal government changed its position on capital punishment Thursday, proposing total abolition of the death penalty.

Solicitor-General Warren Allmand, in a surprise move, recommended to a Commons committee that the capital punishment bill now before parliament be amended to remove the death penalty for all crimes without any time limitation.

The bill as originally presented would amend the Criminal Code to extend for another five years the trial period for abolition of the death penalty for all crimes but the murder of policemen and prison guards.

Allmand's amendments to remove the exception to abolition and the five-year time limit was coupled with other changes to extend the time which convicted murderers must spend in prison before being eligible for parole.

Most committee members Thursday appeared to support the new total abolitionist stance of the government, but two Ontario Conservatives criticized the move.

"What this means is that the bill is being completely scrapped and we are now being asked to deal with total abolition," said Tom Cossitt (PC—Leeds).

"I must say the suggested amendments leave me a little bit breathless," remarked Allan Lawrence (PC—Northumberland-Durham).

"There was no hint in the House that the government had anything like this in mind."

Lawrence suggested that the solicitor-general's proposals were out of order since they deviated from the principle of the bill to extend the partial ban trial period.

"I suspect the government is trying to do in committee

Big 2 Vow Peace

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — President Nixon and Soviet Leader Leonid Brezhnev, already planning another summit meeting next year, formally pledged today to avoid military confrontations and threats of force that might trigger nuclear war.

The vows were contained in a policy declaration which also said the leaders of the two superpowers would "immediately enter into urgent consultations with each other" if a nuclear conflict threatened.

Shortly before Nixon and Brezhnev signed the agreement in the East Room of the White House, Treasury Secretary George Shultz and Soviet Trade Minister Nikolai Patolichev met across Pennsylvania Avenue in Blair House to initial another pact intended to strengthen commerce between the United States and the Soviet Union. About 50 captains of U.S. industry were present at the signing.

The two latest accords brought to eight the number reached since the start of the summit talks Monday. They were signed a few hours before Nixon and Brezhnev were to depart aboard the president's jetliner for San Clemente, Calif., where they planned to conclude their conferences over the weekend.

The decision by the two leaders to hold a third summit meeting in as many years was announced Thursday night at a lavish banquet in the Soviet Embassy.

Their promises to meet again in Moscow next year were accompanied by champagne toasts. The jovial atmosphere reflected the signing earlier in the day of pacts intended to accelerate negotiations to limit and reduce offensive nuclear weapons and exchange research on peaceful uses of nuclear energy.

Today's promises to refrain from military confrontations went into effect immediately upon signing of the policy declaration.

Japanese Takeover Halt Demanded

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

The B.C. government is demanding that Ottawa stop the sale of a Prince Rupert fish packing company to a Japanese firm.

Highways Ministers Graham Lea and Minister Without Portfolio Frank Calder said today they have information that Cassiar Packing Co. Ltd. has been sold to a Marubeni Corp. of Japan.

In a telegram sent Thursday to Federal Fisheries Minister Jack Davis, the two ministers said:

"We ask that you intervene to stop the sale of this Canadian fishing company, if the transaction has not been completed and if the sale has been consummated, we ask that you retroactively stop the sale."

The provincial government will buy the fish packing company, Lea said, if the federal government stops the sale.

"We feel that whatever the price is that it can't be too large to save a Canadian industry for Canadians," he said.

Cassiar Packing, situated about 15 miles east of Prince Rupert, is owned by three holding companies — Georgia Packing Co., MacMillan Enterprises Ltd., and Bellmac Enterprises Ltd.

The ministers, who represent Prince Rupert and Atlin constituencies, say the Japanese firm has bought 75 per cent of the shares in the holding companies in the sale negotiated March 15.

Calder said he learned of the sale in talks with Ottawa fisheries department officials.

Lea said he met with Davis

DUAL DAYLIGHT TIME EYED IN CALIFORNIA

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Legislation giving Californians an extra hour of sunshine during summer evenings has cleared the assembly.

The bill by Assemblyman Bob Wilson won approval Thursday on a 41-28 vote and was sent to the senate.

It would require clocks to be set ahead two hours instead of one during the daylight savings months of June, July, August and September. The current one-hour daylight savings time period would apply to May and October.

Wilson said his "sunshine act" would reduce crime and traffic accidents because of fewer nighttime hours and lower electrical usuage because of better use of morning daylight hours.

But Assemblyman Robert Badham warned that parents would have trouble getting their children to bed on time due to the extra sunshine time.

He said "beleagured parents" would be saddled with the antics of their "cheery little children running around the house until after 10 p.m."

BANKS 'DELIVER CANADA'

OTTAWA (CP) — Mel Hurtig, chairman of the Committee for an Independent Canada, used the very words of two Canadian banks Thursday to back up his contention that they are helping increase foreign ownership. (See also Page 3.)

During remarks before the Commons finance committee, Hurtig displayed a November New York newspaper advertisement by the Royal Bank of Canada reading, "We deliver Canada."

"We're happy to be accused of un-Canadian activities," read part of a January Paris newspaper advertisement by the Toronto-Dominion Bank.

Hurtig said Canadian banks are often more willing to finance foreign-owned corporations in Canada and abroad than they are to finance Canadian enterprises.

"All they care about is safe investment," he said in an interview later.

U.S. POLICY 'CLARIFIED'

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States government announced today a "clarified" policy for crude-oil imports from Canada, designed to provide Ottawa with guidelines for allocating Canadian oil to U.S. customers and to prevent American demand from swamping Canada's supplies.

A knowledgeable treasury department source said the clarification issued today were the result of consultations between Canadian and U.S. authorities designed to help Ottawa adjust its oil exports to new American policies proclaimed by Nixon last April 18.

SKYLAB TEAM HOME SAFE

Times News Services

ABOARD TICONDEROGA — Skylab's astronauts came home safely from man's longest space journey today and shunned stretchers to walk unsteadily across the deck of this United States Navy recovery carrier.

The wobbly 60 steps from the Apollo ferry ship to a medical laboratory indicated Charles Conrad, Dr. Joseph Kerwin and Paul Weitz had suffered some effects from a record four weeks' exposure to space weightlessness in earth orbit.

Doctors, not knowing how they might react to earth's gravity after their long weightless exposure, were prepared to lift them out on litters.

Kerwin and Weitz reported some dizziness after splashdown and Kerwin inflated a pair of pressure pants to keep his blood pressure from dropping to the point where he might faint. This temporary effect was expected because of the tendency of astronauts' blood to pool in their legs, away from the brain, as a result of heart laziness induced by long exposure to the lack of gravity.

This time it was a faulty freezing system that began acting up just as they were ready to come home.

Even without the system, two other eight-week missions aboard the spaceship aren't expected to be seriously affected.

Jet Explodes During Fueling

Times News Services

TORONTO — An Air Canada DC-8 was destroyed by fire and a series of explosions at Toronto International Airport Thursday, only minutes before 120 passengers were to board it for a flight to Europe.

An airline spokesman said it was not known what led to the explosions, but he noted "there was a report of a fire in one of the engines, or under the wing at the time of refueling."

Police and airline investigators have ruled out any possibility of sabotage.

Twenty flights were delayed and eight cancelled because of the fire.

At Terminal 1, across the ramp from the burning jet, about 1,000 people looked on as flames shot 100 feet into the air.

A spokesman for Air Canada said the aircraft, which was purchased for $8 million in October, 1968, was "a total write-off. Only a shell of the plane now remains."

10 BUSES ORDERED FOR CITY

Ten new 35-foot buses have been ordered for Victoria from General Motors at a price of $440,013 by the provincial government.

General Motors was the higher of two bidders for the contract, Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer said, but GM got the sale because of the availability of GM parts in Victoria.

The government expects delivery in November.

The other bidder was Western Flyer of Winnipeg.

Qualicum Beach Swimming Curb

The posting of the 200 feet of waterfront at the mouth of a small creek came as a surprise to residents of this resort community.

Provincial health officer Dr. Peter Reynolds of Nanaimo said the move was taken because of the high fecal count.

He said the problem is caused mainly by about 25 stores discharging human waste down a storm drain which empties into the creek.

The creek winds through the golf course and empties into the sea.

He said tests showed that even the government liquor store contributed to the pollution problem.

The stores, he said, have not the space to treat the sewage through tile fields.

"The coliform count is exceptionally high," he said. "We had to take steps to protect public health."

Earlier this year, Qualicum residents turned down a referendum for construction of a sewage system.

Harry Klassen, chief of the industrial section of the Pollution Control Branch, said most harbor waters on eastern Vancouver Island are contaminated by heavy concentrations of industrial waste.

"But we are making some progress," he said. "Industries have applications before the branch for permission to upgrade methods of discharging waste."

The Qualicum warning comes hard on the heels of a provincial order closing hundreds of miles of Island beaches to oyster picking and clam digging because of human and industrial pollution.

Also, the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health said the same 16 areas closed to swimming last year are again affected this year.
